CALL ASSEMBLY FRIDAY TO ACT IN RELIEF CRISIS

22 Subjects Listed for Session.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 17.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner tonight summoned the state legislature into special session and ordered the members to convene Friday night to consider Chicago's relief problem and 21 other matters which he deems of an emergency nature.

Under the special session call, the legislature will face a great variety of subjects which will make its task comparable to that of a regular session. Although the primary purpose of the call is to deal with the relief crisis, other important subjects include expansion of the Chicago airport, an automobile drivers' license, initiation of a state constitutional convention, extension of the public utility 3 per cent sales tax, housing law changes, and creation of a state school board.

Proposes $500,000 Monthly.

To meet the fund shortage which has brought orders to close Chicago's relief stations, the governor asked the general assembly to make an emergency appropriation of not more than $4,500,000 from the state treasury, which he said should be expended at a rate not exceeding $500,000 monthly.

The state now appropriates $3,000,000 monthly for relief, the governor pointed out in the preamble to his message [in addition to $12,500,000 annually for old age pensions], to supplement local funds produced by property taxes.

Gov. Horner also asked that consideration be given to a broadening of the base of the 3 cent sales levy to include occupations not now taxed—the proceeds to be used for relief.

Consider Diversion to Chicago.

There was belief in some quarters that powers of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, which distributes funds to the needy, are broad enough so that the entire $500,000 monthly increase the governor indorsed could be diverted to Chicago.

Whether the legislature need be bound by the governor's proposal to limit appropriations to $4,500,000 was a legal matter upon which opinions were not readily available.

Those who read the call as it was flipped out by the statehouse mimeograph machine were inclined to regard the limitation merely as a suggestion, while recognizing the governor's power of veto. It also was regarded as significant that the total additional relief appropriation of 4½ million dollars, if expended at a rate of a half million monthly, would last through January, 1939, when the regular session would be meeting.

Points to Need for Action.

"It is now represented to me," Gov. Horner said in discussing the relief crisis, "that in certain communities the moneys for this purpose in the immediate future will be inadequate to prevent suffering and want among the dependent needy in our state and that other and further means must be provided without delay."

In the section of the call devoted to relief the governor left the door open for the legislature to combine all agencies under one head—probably the welfare department—as has been suggested. The section empowered the assemblymen to:

"Enact laws and to amend or repeal any existing laws in relation to the method of administering care and assistance to needy and destitute persons; to enact laws enabling counties, cities, and other municipalities of the state to take such action or adopt such ordinances and resolutions as will enable them to raise moneys for such care and assistance, and to enable counties, cities, and municipalities to divert or borrow from their various funds such sums as may be necessary to provide for such care and assistance."

Expected to Amplify Views.

In his message which he will send to both houses Friday night, Gov. Horner is expected to expand upon his attitude toward relief legislation, as well as toward other subjects in the call.

He will recommend—as he did tonight—the extension of the sales tax on utility services, which is due to be reduced from 3 to 2 per cent on July 1 unless it is continued.

The governor also will ask changes in the laws so that the state may take advantage of public low-cost

PLAN TO USE U.S. MONEY TO BUY ELEVATED LINES

City Seeks Action on Modernization.

Formal applications for federal aid to finance the rehabilitation of Chicago's elevated lines for operation either as a private enterprise or a city-owned system are expected to be filed soon with the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Both the present operator of the system, the Chicago Rapid Transit company, and city officials have separate plans under consideration, it was learned last night. In the case of the city, informal negotiations already have been opened with RFC officials, who are said to look with favor on the city proposal to buy and modernize the system.

Early Showdown Pledged.

The disclosure was made during and after a heated traction hearing before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson at which Mayor Kelly got a promise of a final showdown within three weeks on the ancient transit unification muddle.

The plans to refinance the "L" lines with government money are to be pushed, it was said, if representatives of the Chicago Surface Lines refuse to enter a unification agreement with the elevated. The plans contemplate continued operation of the system in competition with the surface lines. The elevated service would be augmented by a new system of feeder buses.

Superhighways Included.

If the city purchases the system the ultimate goal, it is understood, would be to convert at least part of the lines into elevated superhighways for private cars and express buses. In this connection it was noted that the proposed downtown subways are designed so they can be used by trolley buses.

An elevated representative said the company wants a quick answer on the unification question so it can proceed with a separate reorganization plan based on a federal loan if the deadlock with the surface lines is not broken.

If the elevated company is unable to get federal assistance and the properties are offered at public sale as Judge Wilkerson has indicated they may be, then, it is understood, the city will bid for the lines and rehabilitate them with federal money.

Quick Action Necessary.

The first intimation of the rapid transit company's plan was given by Judge Wilkerson when he agreed with Mayor Kelly that a quick yes or no answer was imperative, particularly in view of the critical financial condition of the elevated. He spoke several times of "opportunities" for getting funds to finance the system. These opportunities, he said, might not be available later in the year.

William H. Sexton, special city traction counsel, who spoke for Mayor Kelly at the hearing, said that city plans for an early start on construction of three downtown subways make it necessary for the traction companies to give a definite answer on unification. He conferred frequently with the mayor, who sat through the hearing.

Broaches Plan to Bid In.

Sexton broached the subject of the city taking over the elevated. "We can see the possibility," he said, "of the elevated being offered for sale and the surface lines bidding for it. We can also see the city of Chicago bidding for the properties, rehabilitating them, and putting them into use for public service.

Mayor Kelly said later that the city is ready to proceed with an independent elevated plan if unification fails. He criticized the surface lines for the many delays in working out a plan.

"I am ready to do almost anything to get action," he said. "We might rehabilitate the elevated to give competition to those who do not want to make an agreement. It appears that certain interests are trying to take advantage of time. The physical end is all decided. If they cannot finance why not say so, and throw it open so we can do something. We will find some one to run it."

Sexton accused the surface lines'

Puts On Finest Gown to End Life with Gun

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

Gretchen Bowers, a vivacious brunette artist's model, telephoned last evening to the young man with whom she was in love.

She paced the floor in her apartment at 607 Deming place when she hung up the receiver. She read again the four page note she had written him. She donned her most beautiful dress, a formal gown of peach. She rouged her lips.

And then she lay down on her bed and shot herself while he and his parents and their guests were finishing dinner in the family home at 118 Scottswood road, Riverside.

Dies Shortly Afterward.

Mrs. Bowers, who was 23 years old, died a short time later in the North Chicago hospital while her young admirer and his guests were attending a theater, unaware of the tragedy.

The man for whom she ended her life, in the belief that their romance was at an end, is Frank M. Weaver, 28 years old, a University of Wisconsin graduate, who is now a paint salesman. He is the son of Mrs. S. Ashley Guthrie, whose husband is village attorney of Riverside.

Mrs. Bowers was the estranged wife of James M. Bowers, according to her father, Richard N. Puetz of 1422 Jonquil terrace, a brewing company executive.

Four Hear Shot.

Four young women who shared the apartment with her, and a man guest, were in the apartment when she shot herself. They are Miss Helen K. Portman, Miss Ruth Niemann, Miss Helen Blaha, Miss Irene Waldman, and Frank V. Norton of 405 Washington street, Waukegan.

From their stories, Lieut. John T. O'Malley of the Sheffield police gained this version of what happened in the apartment:

Mrs. Bowers, described by her friends as the gayest person in the world, telephoned Weaver in Riverside about 7 p. m.

"Do you still feel the same way about it you did last night?" she asked. . . . "Well, all right." . . . "Isn't it nasty out?"

She Says Something Else.

She said something else that no one in the apartment heard, for later Weaver's mother said she overheard her son reply:

"O, I wouldn't go to that extreme."

Fifteen minutes later the others in the apartment heard the shot and found Mrs. Bowers on the bed, a .32 caliber nickel plated revolver they had never seen before beside her.

While police were taking her to the hospital she pleaded:

"Tell Stony [her nickname for Weaver] to come and see me."

Again and again she kissed Weaver's fraternity ring on her left hand.

GOV. EARLE FAR AHEAD; JONES LEADS KENNEDY

Pinchot Loses; Davis Is G. O. P. Winner.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 18 [Wednesday].—(AP)—Candidates bearing the indorsement of John L. Lewis and the C. I. O. steadily fell behind early today as returns from yesterday's primary voting piled up for the rival Democratic Pennsylvania primary slate backed by the state committee.

Taking the lead from the start Gov. George H. Earle, Democratic state committee indorsed candidate for the United States senate nomination, ran up a big margin over Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia. The vote in 4,962 of the state's 8,075 precincts was: Earle, 501,160; Wilson, 195,385.

Jones Leads Kennedy.

Earle's running mate, Charles Alvin Jones of Pittsburgh, backed by the state committee, though showing less strength on early returns than did the governor, held his lead over C. I. O. supported Thomas Kennedy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. The vote in 4,993 precincts was: Jones, 393,312; Kennedy, 304,949.

Former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, independent Democratic gubernatorial candidate and chief charge maker of a Democratic fight that knew no quarter, ran a poor third to Jones and Kennedy. He had 119,170 in the same precincts.

In the Republican senatorial race, overshadowed by the Democratic contests and the gubernatorial clash, veteran United States Senator James J. Davis pulled away to a long advantage over State Senator G. Mason Owlett. The vote in 4,878 districts was: Davis, 442,849; Owlett, 330,362.

Pinchot Is Beaten.

Returns also showed Gifford Pinchot, seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination a third time at 72, far behind Arthur H. James, Superior court judge. The vote in 5,082 precincts was: James, 636,846; Pinchot, 268,177.

More than a third of the total districts reported were in the first city, Philadelphia. Almost 500 of Allegheny county's [Pittsburgh] 977 districts had reported and the other returns were from the soft coal region of the west, the anthracite area of the northeast, the rich farming sections in the center of the state, and the industrial communities scattered through it.

Pinchot, late in the night, conceded his defeat and wired congratulations to Judge James. In the campaign James accused Pinchot of C. I. O. support. Pinchot countered with the charge James was supported by a huge slush fund.

James Opens Fight.

Judge James, who rose from "breaker boy" in the anthracite mines of his home region in north central Pennsylvania, raised his general election battle cry against the New Deal within a few hours after former Gov. Pinchot conceded.

He had accused Pinchot of being a "half New Dealer," but in a telegram early today to Pinchot he said:

"When I enter the ring against the New Deal this fall we are counting on you in our corner." Pinchot promised to support the Republican nominee.

FARLEY UNDER FIRE

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 17.—[Special.]—James A. Farley, national Democratic chairman, was under fire from both factions of his party again today as voters went to the polls in the Pennsylvania primary because of his efforts to influence the voters on the eve of the election.

Yesterday the national chairman demanded the voters select Gov. George H. Earle, senatorial candidate in one faction, and Thomas Kennedy, candidate for governor in the opposing camp. Such a compromise was necessary to stave off Democratic defeat in the fall, Farley claimed.

See Hand of Lewis.

Farley's pronouncement, which threw the whole campaign into turmoil and befuddled the already bewildered voters, was believed to have been prompted by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and head of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Senator Joseph F. Guffey, who led the faction opposed to Earle and the regular state organization, and C. I. O. Czar Lewis were backing Kennedy in the gubernatorial scram-

WPA Work of Art Turns Out to Be a Bust

Several weeks ago the Parent-Teachers' association of the Volta Elementary school started a movement to present Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, with a marble bust of himself. The first step was to have a clay model made.

This was done by Dr. Prof. Edgardo Simone of the Royal Academy of Arts at Naples and at Lecce, cavalier and commendatore of the crown of Italy, and sculptor of many war memorials in his native land. And the model was good. It looked like Dr. Johnson.

Every one was pleased, and Dr. Prof. Simone's model was turned over to sculptors of the Works Progress administration, who began interpreting it in marble. A day or two ago they finished the bust, so that it may be presented tonight at the Volta school, Argyle street and Avers avenue.

The Nose Is Partially Remedied.

And the bust is good. But, unfortunately, it doesn't look much like Dr. Johnson. There were complaints about the size and shape of the nose. But this was partially remedied. Mrs. Morris L. Minkus of 4857 North Avers avenue, president of the Volta P.-T. A., then voiced her opinion.

"I am no expert, but it isn't such a very good likeness," she said. "The work may be good—it is, I guess—but I am disappointed.

"However," she continued brightly, "maybe if we had known George Washington and President Lincoln we would be disappointed in some of the busts of them we see today."

Dr. Prof. Simone Is Voluble.

Dr. Johnson said he thought the bust a marvelous piece of work. When he was pressed for comment on its resemblance to himself he said that it is the thought behind these things, not the gift itself. Dr. Prof. Simone was more voluble.

"The WPA artists are excellent chiselers," he said. "There is no fault to be found with their artistry. But working in marble—even good Italian marble—has its difficulties. These poor fellows have to use Vermont marble, which is terrible. They have to use it because it is American.

"Every one should be happy that the bust came out as well as it did." Here the doctor, professor, cavalier, and commendatore paused for a deep breath and continued: "But I must not be too critical. For, you see, I am on the WPA myself."

FATHER 'PAYS' FOR NEW SON WITH 11 TIMES HIS WEIGHT IN U. S. MONEY

Memphis, Tenn., May 17.—(AP)—J. Hilliard Brock appeared at a hospital today with a tray full of pennies—10,000 of them—to pay the hospital and doctor bills attendant to the birth of a son. The infant, tipping the scales at six pounds seven ounces, was "worth" 11 times his weight in copper. The coins weighed 73½ pounds. The father explained he and Mrs. Brock saved up the pennies for the event.

PICKET PICKETS PICKET IN MEATY LABOR TANGLE

Since Friday a picket of Cicero local 1397 of the Retail Clerks' International Protective association has been picketing Rossman & Palmer, Inc., a grocery and meat market at 21 West Calendar avenue, La Grange.

The union wants the sixteen grocery clerks as members. The picket's placard says the grocery is unfair to the local. Yesterday La Grange residents watched in amusement the arrival of a rival picket.

He is from Wheaton local 189 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers' union, representing the two butchers in the store. His sign urges customers to patronize the store and states the store is the target of a rival union.

Back and forth the pickets picket, pausing occasionally to chat or to readjust their signs. Both locals are members of the American Federation of Labor.

Concord, N. H., May 17.—(AP)—During the last twenty-four hours, said the weather bureau, more than a foot of snow had fallen on Mount Washington and the temperature stood at 24 degrees. "Indications appeared to promise," the bureau added, "ideal conditions for skiing."

Peer Sells Half of Big City for $100,000,000

CARDIFF, Wales, May 17.—(AP)—Half a city changed hands today when the wealthy marquess of Bute sold part of this world port of 200,000 population for a price understood to be about $100,000,000.

The mammoth real estate deal was believed to be the largest ever recorded in Great Britain.

Neither the purchaser nor the actual price was disclosed, but the sale included wide residential suburbs, shopping centers, and the huge, busy docks from which South Wales exports most of its coal.

Descendant of Famous Family.

Cardiff's municipal area includes 13,628 acres. The marquess did not disclose the acreage of the land involved in the sale, which covered about 20,000 houses, 1,000 stores, and 250 saloons.

The Butes are a famous Scottish family who long have owned large estates in Wales and in Cardiff. The marquess retained his two historic residences here—the famed Cardiff castle in the center of the city, where he has entertained 1,000 garden party guests with ease, and Caerphilly castle, a few miles outside the city.

The marquess himself—a descendant of one of the 19 sons of the 14th century King Robert III. of Scotland—holds three earldoms, three viscountcies and six baronetcies. He owns a total of about 117,000 acres.

Has Eight Palaces.

He has eight palaces, including the fairy story castle at San Roque, Spain, where he houses one of the world's richest art collections.

His revenues from the Scottish Island of Bute alone are described as princely.

Legend says he has priceless treasures from Spanish galleons hidden in secret underground passages under the Cardiff castle.

Britain's largest owner of the lucrative coal royalties, he enlisted as Private John Crichton-Stuart during the world war at a wage of two shillings and ninepence [68 cents] a day.

ble. Kennedy is lieutenant governor and also is secretary-treasurer of the Lewis mine workers.

The deal is reported to have been that Farley would throw his strength behind Kennedy and Lewis could turn his miners out for Senator Alben Barkley, majority leader of the senate, in his primary fight with Gov. A. B. [Happy] Chandler, in Kentucky's primary Aug. 6.

Fight to Bitter End.

The Democratic cannonading kept up until the last minute. Here in Philadelphia, the city of brotherly love, the Democratic city committee adopted a resolution lacing Farley for interfering in a local primary.

"We resent your indorsement of Thomas Kennedy" declared the resolution addressed to Farley. "We deplore the fact that you have seen fit to inject yourself into a Democratic primary in a state of which you are not a resident.

"We believe here in Pennsylvania and Philadelphia that we know best what is good and what is bad for Pennsylvania. We feel that Kennedy is a candidate owned by John L. Lewis and are not willing to submit our party to that domination."

REAFFIRMS 'HANDS OFF'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 17.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today insisted that the White House is continuing a hands off policy in primary election contests.

He asserted his neutrality when questioned about the Pennsylvania primary situation, in which Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, broke his own noninterference rule to indorse one gubernatorial and one senatorial candidate from opposing Democratic factions.

Farley, acting, he said, because the Pennsylvania situation imperils the success of the Democratic party in November, announced his backing of Gov. George H. Earle for United States senator and Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy, right hand man of John L. Lewis, C. I. O. czar, for governor.

Leaves It to Reporters.

Mr. Roosevelt was told that it was difficult to interpret the White House attitude in view of recent statements from cabinet members and silence on the part of the White House. The President retorted that he never knew that presidential silence created a difficult situation.

Asked whether it could not be assumed that the cabinet members were speaking for the administration, Mr. Roosevelt told the reporters to continue to write their pieces, that he wouldn't kick.

The reinvocation of the hands off rule came after a series of primary candidates called at the White House and from its steps told reporters that they had received presidential blessing.

Suggests Same Old Record.

Reminded that Gov. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina announced his candidacy for the senate on an administration platform against Senator Ellison D. Smith, conservative Democrat, the President suggested that White House Secretary Stephen T. Early play the same old phonograph record, a phrase he had used in the past to declare the White House takes no part in local elections.

The record was not played when the President sent his son, James, into Florida to aid in the reëlection campaign of Senator Claude Pepper and when he sent White House Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre into Kentucky to aid in the reëlection campaign of Senate Majority Leader Barkley.

From administration circles it was learned last week that Farley would indorse Earle and Kennedy in Pennsylvania in an effort to save the state for the party in November. It was reported at the time that the move had the full approval of Mr. Roosevelt.

FRANK TO DENY MINTON CHARGES ON RADIO TODAY

G. O. P. Leader and Editor Granted Same Time.

Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of the program committee of the Republican national committee, indicated last night that when he speaks on a national radio chain at 12:30 o'clock today he will make some decidedly pointed remarks about Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.] and his associates on the senate anti-lobbying committee formerly headed by Hugo L. Black.

At his own request Dr. Frank has been given the same broadcasting period used by Senator Minton last Thursday to attack the farm magazine Rural Progress of which the Republican leader is the editor. That attack followed a meeting of Senator Minton's committee at which Dr. Frank was refused the right to speak, although Rural Progress was the subject of inquiry.

Won't Call Him as Witness.

With an explanation that the investigation is a closed chapter in the history of the Minton committee, one of its members, Senator Theodore F. Green [D., R. I.] announced Monday that Dr. Frank will not be called before that body at any of its future sessions. But Dr. Frank does not intend to let the subject drop in that way.

In conformity with a policy of granting equal rights to both sides of a controversy, the National Broadcasting company has allotted Dr. Frank the 15 minutes immediately after the Farm and Home hour in which to answer the Indiana senator.

To Deny Propaganda Charge.

"In my talk," said Dr. Frank, "I shall undertake first to cover the unfounded suggestion of Senator Minton that Rural Progress is a partisan, propaganda magazine. But further than that, I shall try to probe into the motives of the senator in picking out this particular magazine as his target, to make an honest interpretation of what the senator is really driving at.

"Senator Minton's particular phobia is the press. But if this attempt to browbeat and undermine a magazine or a newspaper is permitted to go unchecked, the same sort of political dynamiting will be used against any form of enterprise which declines to make itself subservient to the wishes of Senator Minton and his associates."

Landon Assails Roosevelt's Attitude on Speech Freedom

BY PARKE BROWN.

President Roosevelt's attitude toward the recent Jersey City freedom of speech controversy drew the fire yesterday of Alf M. Landon, his opponent in the election of 1936. As he was closing a speech before the Inland Press association at the Hotel Sherman, former Gov. Landon added to the text of his manuscript a few sentences which started with disapproval of the White House expression that the Jersey City affair was only a local police issue.

"The chief executive," continued Mr. Landon, "must furnish spiritual and aggressive leadership in the Jersey City matter. By his attitude the President indorses this violation of the bill of rights.

"He is in favor of free speech only for his side of the case.

Sees Freedom Being Destroyed.

"And the President apparently would stand by while Senator Minton 'Frank Hagues' the American press."

While these sentences were a last minute addition, the Kansan did include in the press release of his speech an analytical criticism of the Hague incident.

"When Norman Thomas was forcibly evicted from Jersey City," he said, "and two members of the United States house of representatives were not permitted to speak there recently, we were given evidence enough that America is not immune to a tide which is slowly destroying freedom in other parts of the world.

"As a Kansan, I have often smarted under the ridicule heaped upon the middle west by some of the so-called highbrows of some of the older sections. At least we treated Norman Thomas with respect and tolerance when he came to Kansas to speak. In fact, I introduced him. Many of us in Kansas know that we might not agree with the solutions he would propose for our problems, but we were ready to extend him the privilege of discussing them. He was accorded the courtesy due him in a country that must attain freedom of speech if we are going to have freedom of any kind.

"If we meant what we said in '36 and '37 in praise of the constitution and of the Supreme court, and the rights of the minority guaranteed under the constitution and by the Supreme court, we must be prepared to grant the right of free speech to those persons who have views we do not share. Of course they must not advocate violence and must be willing to settle at the ballot box the changes which they propose."

Condemns Censorship Bill.

Former Gov. Landon also condemned the Minton press censorship bill.

"A press operating under such a law," he said, "would not be free. Certainly it could not fairly give both sides of a question if one side happened to represent the views of the federal government or government officials. I cannot believe that congress will even take the Minton bill seriously."

500 DEMOCRATIC WOMEN PLEDGE TO FEED DONKEY

Donkey days are here again. So sang 500 Democratic women leaders from seven states, gathered in the Palmer house yesterday, as they opened a campaign to have a donkey browsing in every home.

The donkeys are of metal, with slits in their backs. With every Democratic woman dropping a nickel a week into one, women leaders hope to amass a fund for state and local campaigns.

Since 1935, the women have raised $68,000 with their donkeys, but full potentialities of the plan are just being grasped, Mrs. Louise Hurley O'Connor of Galesburg, Ill., pointed out. A director for Illinois donkeys, she now has 2,500 at work.

"It's a symbol of the party," she declared, "and if we don't use it as a mite box, use it as a symbol. It is native, if not beautiful."

The theme song was:

"Hee, haw; I can't eat straw.
A penny a day will buy me hay."

The two day conference closed with the donkey luncheon.

Order Recount in G. O. P. Country Towns Primary

A recount was ordered yesterday in the dispute over Republican ballots cast for county commissioners in the country towns at the recent primary. The recount was asked by Commissioner Carl J. Carlson of Blue Island, defeated for renomination by George F. Nixon of Glenview, by 456 according to the official tabulation. Judge Edmund K. Jarecki of the County court ordered the recount.

SEARCH FOR LOST SUPER AIR LINER HINDERED BY FOG

Believed Wrecked Near Los Angeles; 9 Aboard.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 17.—[Special.]—Low hanging mist over the rugged Sierra Madre mountains, north and east of this city, today hindered a comprehensive search by air for a new $80,000 Lockheed super transport plane and its nine passengers that disappeared yesterday afternoon into cloud-blanketed skies. The ship, on a delivery flight, is believed now to have crashed on a fog-shrouded mountain peak not far from Los Angeles.

Only one clew to the probable whereabouts of the missing ship developed during the day. This was supplied by A. W. Sieck, a rancher living in Aqua Dulce canyon, 20 miles east of the regular airway. Sieck said a large transport, flying low, passed over his ranch house about 2 p. m. Monday, headed toward Mount McDill, which rears 5,000 feet above the canyon floor and is one of the highest peaks in the San Gabriel mountain range.

Heard by Forest Rangers.

Mount McDill is on the north side of Mint canyon, which often is used a short cut from Los Angeles over to the regular airway, which approaches the city by a longer and more roundabout track.

It was this route that the new airliner was to follow, according to information before its departure, given by its pilot, Sidney Willey, Lockheed factory test flyer who was in charge. The search today was concentrated in this district because the plane last was reported near there by forest rangers who heard its motors droning over Mount Gleason, 15 miles east of the airport, only a few minutes after its takeoff.

At that time the ship was above the clouds, presumably at an altitude of about 9,000 feet, which would place it safely above peaks in that area. The information given by the rangers coincides with the report of a Western Air Express pilot, flying a regular transport plane, who made radio contact with Willey while in the air.

Unreported After 20 Minutes.

Willey's last contact with the regular transport plane was made about 20 minutes after his take-off. At that time he reported he was at the north end of the canyon and soon would be out over the flat desert country. The desert was free from clouds and the weather from there to Las Vegas was clear.

With Willey aboard the plane, according to the Lockheed company, were the following persons:

MRS. CARL B. SQUIER, wife of Lockheed company's sales manager.

The plane was a Lockheed 14 model, with seats for fourteen persons, a cruising range of 1,400 miles, and a speed of 230 miles an hour.

It just had finished its acceptance tests at the Lockheed factory and was equipped with the latest types of instruments, propellers, and radio.

C.I.O. UNION CITED FOR PICKETING AT ROCKFORD PLANT

Rockford, Ill., May 17.—[Special.]—Contempt summons was served today on five officials of the United Auto Workers of America at the J. I. Case company factory here as 300 pickets continued to keep the plant closed. The five were notified they must show cause Friday why they should not be punished for contempt of court as a result of continued picketing.

U. A. W. A. local 378, a C. I. O. affiliate, also was named in the summons, which means that any member of the union may be included in the hearing.

Despite a Circuit court injunction issued Saturday by Judge Arthur E. Fisher restraining them from interfering with employés entering or leaving the plant, pickets again kept workers from entering the factory today.

The men summoned to court Friday are Charles Fane, president of the U. A. W. A. local; Leonard Key, John Grunau, Byron Heaton, and F. O'Donnell.

2 MISSIONARIES, BRITONS, SLAIN BY BAND OF CHINESE

PEKING, May 17.—(AP)—The deaths of two British missionaries, one of them a woman, because Chinese guerrilla riflemen failed to recognize the British flag and took them for Japanese spies, were reported here today. The victims were Dr. H. G. Wyatt, a physician, and Miss Buelah Glasby.

Two other missionaries who were traveling with them north of Taikuan, Shansi province, said their automobile suddenly was fired upon by the guerrillas. Dr. Wyatt, frantically waving the Union Jack, attempted to approach the soldiers, but was shot down. Miss Glasby was shot to death when she refused to leave the car.

The other two took refuge under the car, which was quickly riddled with bullets, and later convinced the guerrilla fighters of their British citizenship. Their attackers apologized abjectly, and transported them safely back to Taiyuan.

STUDY PROPOSAL TO CUT LICENSES OF FOOD SELLERS

The city council finance committee yesterday began a study of the possibility of reducing the license tax on wholesale food establishments. The fees were boosted last year to supply revenue to aid in restoring depression pay cuts to city employés. The cost of licenses is based on the number of employés and many merchants have threatened to replace workmen with machines if the aldermen refuse to revise the scale of fees.

Malone in Washington to Plead for Pardon

William H. Malone, former chairman of the state tax commission, was back in Washington yesterday, seeking an audience with President Roosevelt from whom he hopes to obtain a pardon. Malone is under sentence of two years for income tax evasion.

TWO WHO INSIST THEY'RE FATHER DEMAND TWINS

And Each Wants Both; Won't Divide.

The Chicago board of health is faced with a delicate problem concerning the paternity of twin babies, a boy and a girl, born out of wedlock on April 25.

The babies now are in the County hospital, to which they were taken last Friday by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, when authorities found them sharing a dark, foul room at 2340 Princeton avenue with Luis Ersing, his mother, two dogs and a cat.

The babies, born a month prematurely, were undernourished. They weighed about four pounds each and were below normal in temperature. They still are in a critical condition.

Two Claim to Be Father.

In the meantime two men—one of them Ersing—are claiming paternity. Each alleged father not only wants Jose de Jesus and Ana Maria, the babies, but is clamoring to see them.

When health officials discovered the plight of the twins, Ersing, who is 24 and unemployed, said he was their godfather. He named a Timothy Alonzo, 28 years old, who, he said, lives on the outskirts of Aurora, as their father. Alonzo, he said, left the babies at his home May 2 to be christened but did not return.

Investigation, however, disclosed that the babies were born at Ersing's home. Ersing then admitted paternity. At this point Lanzarin Timoteo, 265 Alexander street, who is 26 and unemployed, turned up. Timoteo insisted he is the father.

Mother Has Twelve Others.

"The mother of the twins," Dr. Bundesen said, explaining that her name could not be revealed, "is 36 and a widow. Her husband died two years ago. She has had 12 children—not counting these—eight of whom are living. The oldest is a girl of 18. The baby is 2 years old.

"Both of the men have been married. They don't know where their wives are, and are not legally separated. Neither one can marry this woman.

"They both want the babies. Both are fighting for them. They want them in no uncertain terms. I suggested that one take the boy and one take the girl, but, no, each wants both children."

Try Out Blood Tests.

Two solutions may be possible, he indicated. Blood tests taken yesterday of both fathers and both babies may outlaw one father's claim, as the blood groups of parents are transmitted in accordance with hereditary laws.

The other possibility, vague and improbable, but supported by medical history, is that each man may be the father of one twin. Most authorities agree that superfecundation [as this is known] is theoretically possible and also that its does sometimes occur.

"Since the twins are unlike and one is smaller than the other, there is a possibility that they may have two fathers," Dr. Bundesen said. "But the fathers," he added sadly, "won't listen to that. They don't even think much of the blood tests!"

The outcome of the tests will be known today.

Wins a Divorce

MRS. ROSAMOND WARNER.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Judge John J. Lupe yesterday granted a divorce on the ground of desertion to Mrs. Rosamond Moore Warner, 24 years old, from Ezra J. Warner, son of the late E. J. Warner of Sprague, Warner & Co., wholesale grocers. In reply to the desertion charge Warner's attorney, Ernest J. Schein, declared Mrs. Warner is unwilling to give up her social life to accompany her husband to New Mexico, where he has business interests.

Judge Lupe granted Mrs. Warner $250 a month alimony for herself and $100 a month support money for her son, Ezra J. Warner IV. The Warners' marriage was a New York social event of 1932.

OPEN GRAND JURY QUIZ ON INDIANA PRINT SHOP RAID

Vincennes, Ind., May 17.—[Special.]—Six witnesses testified before the Knox county grand jury today as it began an investigation of the police raid on the Walter A. Ewing printing plant April 30, under orders of Mayor Joseph W. Kimmel, who objected to campaign literature against him being printed there.

Prosecutor Wayne Combs submitted a statement by Dr. J. H. Hammond charging the raid constituted a threat to freedom of the press and free speech. Ewing, owner of the plant, who declared the raid was made over his protest and warning that election ballots were being printed at the time, was the first witness.

Others heard were Samuel and Emily Emison, publishers of the Vincennes Post; Charles Green and his wife, employés at Ewing's plant, and George Flack, policeman discharged on an inefficiency charge two days after the primary in which Mayor Kimmel was defeated in his contest for the state senate.

Boxing Bear Gets Tough; Owners Sue for $175,000

Kingston, N. Y., May 17.—(AP)—A bear growled in his cage outside a courtroom here today while attorneys inside argued a $175,000 lawsuit involving him. The Waldorf brothers, Willie and Gustave, who brought the boxing bear to this country, are suing the United Greyhound lines and Central Greyhound Lines, Inc., for loss of the bear's services. They claim the bear was so severely hurt in a truck-bus crash on Sept. 25, 1937, that it became unmanageable and no longer could be used to put on boxing exhibitions.

ARBITRARY TAX RULINGS CHARGED TO STATE BOARD

Nudelman Pledges Quiz on Sales Levy Disputes.

Following charges that the Chicago branch of the state department of finance is acting arbitrarily in refusing hearings to retailers in sales tax disputes, Samuel L. Nudelman, director of the department, last night promised a full investigation would begin today.

The charges against the department were incorporated in a petition drawn by former Municipal Judge John H. Lyle as attorney for Theodore Doumas, owner of the Mason restaurant at 5920 Roosevelt road. Doumas alleged that the Chicago sales tax division raised the amount of his delinquent tax by nearly $800 after refusing him an opportunity to present his books and records in substantiation of his own figures.

Full Hearing Asked.

The petition, addressed to Nudelman, asks for a full hearing. It states that Doumas was informed there would be a hearing in his case last Jan. 21, but when he appeared an attendant in the tax office, 105 West Madison street, casually glanced at the first and last pages of Doumas' account book, then told him he would be notified of the amount due.

On Jan. 31 Doumas was informed he owed $139 for the years 1933 and 1934. He was willing to pay this sum, but on Feb. 15 he received another bill for $908, with no explanation for the increase. Attorney Lyle said that Doumas has receipts to show that he has kept up tax payments, averaging about $20 a month, and only was in arrears for the period in 1933 and 1934 covered by the first bill.

Assails Practices.

"A subordinate in the sales tax office," the petition says, "stated that in holding hearings it was necessary for the department to be hard boiled with the taxpayer. . . . The department and its subordinates, including those of limited experience and capacity, under the present rules and practices prevailing, have become law makers, law interpretators, judge and jury; and such conduct constitutes administrative lawlessness.

"The petitioner is informed by the department that it is not bound by any particular course of procedure except that prescribed by the department; that it is not bound by the rules of evidence and not obliged to hear any evidence, hear witnesses nor take testimony before coming to a conclusion. . . .

Charges Violation of Rights.

"The denial of a full, fair and impartial hearing is a violation of the constitutional guarantee, as will more fully appear from the decision of the United States Supreme court in the case of the Kansas City stock yards" [a decision condemning arbitrary practices by the National Labor Relations board].

Nudelman, who came here last night from Springfield, said he would examine the department's procedure in Doumas' case and would assure him a fair hearing.

"He will get any reduction he is entitled to," Nudelman declared, "and if the sales tax procedure at the Chicago office has been arbitrary I will take appropriate action to stop it. I will go into the whole matter of these hearings."

SPECIALISTS CALLED TO DECIDE AGAIN ON FATE OF COLAN BABY

The committee of eye and X-ray specialists who are to determine the course of treatment for Helaine Judith Colan, the baby afflicted with glioma of the retina, last night were summoned to meet this afternoon in the Hotel Sherman. The child's left eye was removed on May 9.

The committee's meeting, originally set for Thursday, was called by Attorney Samuel Hoffman, acting for the family. He said that a report on the baby's condition had been completed and had been turned over to Dr. Robert H. Good, who performed the operation.

Although results of the report were not made public, it was indicated it may be necessary to remove the baby's right eye. Attorney Hoffman said, however, it will be up to the committee of specialists to decide whether removal of the eye is necessary or to give X-ray treatments in the hope the child may retain partial sight.

The baby's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Herman Colan, and her grandfather, Dr. Morris Hershman, met with Attorney Hoffman last night after visiting the baby in the Garfield Park hospital.

URGES EDUCATION OF YOUTH IN WAR AGAINST SYPHILIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 17.—[Special.]—Education in the control of venereal diseases should begin in the upper grades of grammar school and should continue throughout the student's formal education, Dr. A. J. Levy of Chicago told the Illinois State Medical society here today.

Dr. Levy further recommended education of youth in the application of prophylactic measures.

"When prophylaxis is practiced intelligently among our youth, it will considerably reduce venereal diseases," he said. "Every youth over 17 should be taught to apply prophylactic measures."

Dr. Levy, who is assistant epidemiologist in the state health department, declared that the public must be constantly impressed with the fact that venereal disease, like any other infectious disease, is not a disgrace nor necessarily a sign of immorality.

EXPLAIN RELIEF CRISIS IN SERIES OF QUESTIONS

Answers Tell Problem in Simple Terms.

Chicago's relief crisis is here. What caused this muddle? Why did the Chicago Relief administration run out of money? The following questions and answers explain simply what the relief crisis is all about:

Q.—What is the Chicago Relief administration, or CRA? A.—The CRA is part of the city government, created July 1, 1936, by the state legislature to administer direct relief in Chicago.

Q.—How much does the CRA spend each month? A.—The amount varies with number of persons receiving relief each month. A rough average is $3,000,000 a month.

Q.—How many people are receiving relief today from the CRA? A.—About 93,000 cases, or 270,000 people. A case is any unit receiving relief; it may be an individual, a family, or a nonfamily group.

Q.—Where does the CRA get its money? A.—From the city of Chicago and the state of Illinois.

Q.—Where does the city money come from? A.—The city's share of relief funds is raised by a special tax of 30 cents on each $100 assessed valuation of real estate.

Five Millions Appropriated.

Q.—How much money is this tax expected to provide for use during 1938? A.—Slightly more than $6,000,000. The city council appropriated $5,404,000 of this for use during the year. The balance is used for interest on tax anticipation warants and to cover the loss in and the cost of collecting the tax.

Q.—Where does the state get its money for relief? A.—From the sales tax of 3 cents on each $1 spent in Illinois.

Q.—How much money does the state give the CRA? A.—The amount varies each month. For May it was $1,912,132, which is an average figure.

Q.—What state body grants money to the CRA? A.—The Illinois Emergency Relief commission. The state legislature at its last regular session provided that the IERC should distribute $2,900,000 each month to the CRA and agencies similar to it throughout Illinois.

How Allotment Is Computed.

Q.—How does the IERC decide how much money the CRA shall get each month? A.—It works this way. The CRA is a man who says he needs $3 to spend. All the other men, or similar agencies in the state, say they need a total of $2. The IERC has only $3 to take care of this total need amounting to $5. So the IERC gives everybody three-fifths of the amount needed. This would be $1.80 for Chicago's need of $3. Actually, Chicago's need was nearly $3.40 and the CRA received about $1.90 [actually $1,912,132].

Q.—Where did the CRA get the other $1.50 [actually $1,368,291 of a total need of $3,380,423]? A.—The $1,368,291 was supposed to come out of the city's special 30 cent real estate tax mentioned earlier. But the CRA used up the whole year's sum, $5,404,000, before May 1.

Two Courses Open.

Q.—How did the CRA happen to spend all its money for 1938 in the first four months of the year? A.—Leo M. Lyons, who is the head of the CRA, had the option of doing one of two things. He [1] could divide the CRA's own money into twelve equal portions, which would have given him about $450,000 of the CRA's own money to spend each month, or [2] spend the money on what he considered a basis of need. He took the second course.

Q.—What did Lyons mean by "spending on a basis of need"? A.—The CRA has standards for the amount of relief that should be given. On the basis of these standards more than $3,000,000 has been needed by the CRA each month this year. The state money made up a little more than half of each month's need. In order to keep up to the CRA's standards Lyons spent enough of the CRA's money each month to make up the difference. This was about $1,500,000 a month, or the whole $5,404,000 in four months.

Reasons for Procedure.

Q.—Why didn't Lyons spread the CRA's money through the year and let the CRA standard of relief drop? A.—A number of reasons are given by Lyons and his aids. They are: [1] Many people, including social workers, ministers, civic organizations, and people on relief, do not believe that the standards of relief are high enough now. [2] The CRA gives each case an average of nearly $30 a month in cash relief. Nearly all similar agencies in the state give much less, some of them as little as $8 a month. The relatively high amount of relief given CRA cases increases the total amount needed from the state. Once the CRA standards were lowered, downstate communities would have a way to keep Chicago from getting so much of the state relief money, and the downstate communities would be able to get more for themselves. [3] The only way to get political action to provide more money is to precipitate a crisis. A drop in relief standards is not nearly so apt to precipitate a crisis as is the total removal of relief. [4] Lyons was considering the Chicago landlords.

Q.—What is the position of the landlords? A.—Landlords have been loath to throw relief people without money for rent out into the street. But by keeping these people the landlord assumes an added relief burden in granting free rent.

How Relief Is Issued.

Q.—How does the CRA issue relief? A.—In the form of checks which can readily be converted into cash.

Q.—Can the CRA go on spending money that it does not have? A.—No.

Q.—Can the CRA get credit for groceries and other necessities? A.—Probably not in the amount that such credit would be needed each month.

Q.—Will the CRA continue to receive its regular monthly money from the IERC? A.—Yes, but this will not be enough.

Q.—Could the city council provide extra funds? A.—Tax experts and Mayor Kelly say no.

Indiana Relief

Indianapolis, Ind., May 17.—[Special.]—More than 21 per cent of the Indiana population is dependent on support from federal, state and local governments, the highest dependency load in the state's history, state welfare department records reveal.

More than 686,000 of the state's residents, representing 21.2 per cent population as of 1930 census, received aid from government during March, 263,495 were on general township relief, 337,444 received support from WPA and 85,339 were supported by funds allocated for care of dependent children, old age and blind assistance. Lake led all the counties with 29.2 per cent. Ninety thousand more persons were dependent on government aid than in February when 18.4 per cent of population was listed dependent.

CALL ASSEMBLY FRIDAY TO ACT IN RELIEF CRISIS

Horner Lists 22 Subjects for Special Session.

housing funds which have been earmarked for it in Washington.

The call includes the contentious question of a driver's license law which threw the legislature on the rocks last year when a battle developed as to who should administer the statute—Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes or F. Lynden Smith, the governor's public works director.

State Income Tax in Mind.

In recommending provision for a November referendum on a state constitutional convention, the governor's thoughts are said to be in the direction of a state income tax, which cannot be levied under the present revenue article of Illinois' basic law.

Gov. Horner also asked the legislature to enact laws for the expansion of Chicago's airport, which can only be accomplished by the removal of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad tracks. Bills to this end have been prepared by Joseph F. Grossman, assistant corporation counsel of Chicago.

The city manager plan and creation of a state school board are other important subjects. Both were proposed to the assembly last year—the latter as an administration measure—and both failed.

School Aid Recommended.

The governor noted in the call that a number of school districts in the state are in need of funds and recommended an appropriation of not more than $1,000,000 for their relief. He stipulated that this fund, when determined by the legislature, should be allocated and distributed according to the recommendations of a state school board, thus creating the impression that one bill should be dependent upon the other.

One subject which, observers believe, will result in controversy calls for the regulation and taxation of oil production—which is regarded as the result of the governor's trip into the booming southern Illinois fields a few days ago.

Another subject in the summons would permit the legislature to call upon banks, trust companies, and building and loan associations to report their inactive accounts, which the Illinois budgetary commission believes should revert to the state.

The remaining items call for consideration of the following: An appropriation for a new building at the University of Illinois [not to exceed $700,000]; fixing responsibility for the burial of old age pension recipients; permission to revise the salaries of county and probate judges; legislation for the incarceration of criminal sexual psychopathic persons; permission to counties and cities to establish tuberculosis and venereal disease hospitals; changes in the blind and dependent childrens' pensions laws, and several local validating acts.

Relief Is Shut Off; No Money in Sight for at Least a Week

Chicago's twenty-three relief stations closed yesterday shortly before Gov. Horner issued his call summoning the state legislature into session to deal with the relief crisis. A week from today is the earliest possible time that the legislature can make available funds for the balance of the month.

Relief Commissioner Leo M. Lyons estimated that at least $3,400,000 will be needed each month for the rest of the year by the Chicago Relief administration. The CRA can expect to receive between $1,800,000 and $2,000,000 of this amount each month from the state under present legislation.

Need $1,500,000 a Month.

The $500,000 additional each month suggested by the governor in his call probably would have to be distributed on a state-wide basis, Lyons said. This would mean that Chicago would receive a maximum of $400,000 to meet a deficiency of approximately $1,500,000 each month.

Legislative leaders were agreed last night that Mr. Horner's suggested appropriation of an additional $500,000 a month could be given speedy action in both the house and the senate, but only if it was made divisible throughout the state. Representative Calvin D. Johnson [R., Belleville] said he believed any attempt to increase the appropriation by any more than $500,000 would meet with strong opposition downstate.

Senator Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago], majority leader in the senate, said the amount provided for in Gov. Horner's call is entirely inadequate.

To Ask Larger Appropriation.

"I will introduce a bill Friday night asking for an immediate appropriation of $2,000,000 and a second bill asking for $12,000,000 for the rest of the year," Ward said. "I don't think the governor should try to tell us how much to appropriate."

Senator Earl B. Searcy [R., Springfield] and Representative E. J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago], minority leaders in the two houses, declared they will strive to have the special session overhaul the present state relief setup. The governor left the door open for such action in his call.

All of these men agreed with Representative Benjamin Adamowski [D., Chicago], house majority leader, that the amount of emergency additional relief funds specified by the governor will be put through the legislature in a hurry. Commissioner Lyons joined them in pointing out that the situation downstate is almost as critical as the one in Chicago.

No Funds for 34,000.

Thirty-four thousand relief families in Chicago will receive only surplus commodities and milk until more funds are made available for May. The surplus commodities are purchased by the federal government under the AAA in an effort to put a floor under commodity prices.

The federal authorities set the amount of each commodity that is to be distributed to each client. The CRA is paying for milk on the basis of one quart a day to children under 2 years of age and one pint a day for older children up to the age of 12.

Families of four on relief will receive 2 pounds of dried beans, 4 pounds of butter, 12 pounds of cabbage, 8 stalks of celery, 30 pounds of oranges, and 2 pounds of rice. This is a regularly monthly allotment of surplus commodities.

In Chicago the commodities are distributed through twenty-three stores throughout the city. The stores are manned by WPA labor.

The first orders for surplus commodities and milk will be mailed out tonight. They will go to those who would ordinarily receive relief checks tomorrow. Additional orders will be mailed out as due dates for checks come up.

COTTON ED GIVES SENATE DINERS A TASTE OF FIRE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 17.—[Special.]—Senator Ellison D. Smith [D., S. C.] surprised and embarrassed a little group of administration leaders at luncheon in the senate restaurant today. They were giving the luncheon in honor of Gov. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina, President Roosevelt's candidate to beat Senator Smith for renomination.

"What is this, a conspiracy?" demanded Cotton Ed as he crashed the luncheon. Senator Theodore Francis Green [D., R. I.], the host, blushed, as did his guests, and then told Senator Smith that it was just an informal gathering in honor of Gov. Johnston.

Senator Smith walked over to Gov. Johnston. "Congratulations, governor," he said. "When I get through with you you'll be snowed under so deep you won't know you were in the race."

Storms Out of Dining Room.

Then he stormed out of the dining room, shouting to newspaper men: "When I get ready to announce my candidacy I'll make the announcement on a pine board platform in my home town in South Carolina and not on the steps of the White House after trying to grab myself a piece of the President's coattail."

Senator Green, who arranged the luncheon in honor of Gov. Johnston, was a guest of President Roosevelt on a week-end yachting trip. Others present were Senator Claude Pepper, who made a triumphant return from the Florida primaries yesterday; Joseph B. Keenan, patronage manager of the justice department and chief White House lobbyist in behalf of the Supreme court packing bill last year; Senator Lister Hill [D., Ala.], successor to Justice Hugo L. Black, and Senator Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.], as undeviating in his support of the administration as the others.

One of Nine on Marked List.

Senator Smith is one of nine Democratic senators up for reëlection this year whose political extinction has been decreed by the administration because they fought the court packing bill. He also opposed the scheme for the political regulation of wages and hours and some other administration projects.

Gov. Johnston, in announcing his candidacy against Senator Smith from the steps of the White House yesterday, said he came to Washington at the invitation of the President and that he would conduct his campaign on an issue of loyalty to Mr. Roosevelt.

Senate Adopts Bill to End Block Booking of Films

Washington, D. C., May 17.—(AP)—Film distributors may be fined $5,000 and imprisoned a year for engaging in block-booking under a bill passed today by the senate and sent to the house. Similar penalties are provided for blind selling.

The measure, offered by Senator Matthew W. Neely [D., W. Va.], passed the chamber on a voice vote.

Neely told the senate the legislation would tend to improve motion pictures.

Martha Raye has filed suit in Los Angeles against a magazine asking an injunction against use of photograph in which she posed with a chimpanzee two years ago.

Miss Raye, the suit sets forth, is currently a glamor girl.

Los Angeles., Cal., May 17.—(AP)—Martha Raye, film actress, wants the public to forget that she is the girl noted for her big mouth. She filed suit against a picture magazine asking for an injunction restraining the editors of the publication from using her photograph posing with a chimpanzee, both with mouths wide open. The picture was taken two years ago.

The complaint said her physical attributes and singing voice have so changed during that period that now she is identified with the "higher spheres of culture and dramatic art." Miss Raye is currently a glamor girl, the complaint said.

HUGE SWARM OF LOBBYISTS FEED ON EASY MONEY

Washington Overrun by Special Pleaders.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 17.—[Special.]—A swarm of lobbyists has descended upon Washington to plague congress and the administration for shares of the 5 billion dollar pump priming funds.

In their anxiety to get a share of the latest tide of easy money, various communities, industries, professions, and material producers have engaged lobbyists to press their claims.

The first duty of the lobbyist is to serve as the scout of the interest, group, or organization he represents. He may be employed in a defensive campaign to defeat certain legislation or courses of action or in an offensive campaign to seek enactment of legislation or the carrying out of a policy. Not all lobbyists are considered reprehensible, as many give valuable aid in creation of legislation or administrative policy.

How Lobbyist Operates.

The lobbyist's activities may be largely confined to presenting the side of the case he represents before congressional committees in public hearings, or it may extend to soliciting votes for or against a bill. In departments his activities are to obtain favorable decision upon a matter of interest to the group he represents or an adverse decision against organizations inimical to his group.

The most important lobbies in Washington immediately after the war were the dry lobby, the veterans' lobby, and farm lobby. When prohibition ended the big three became the veterans' lobby, the farm lobby, and the labor lobby.

Under the spending program a fourth was added to the dominating group—the pork barrel lobby. This group, working at cross purposes among its members perhaps, has none the less worked for the flow of easy money.

Groups Seeking Favor.

Among the groups which are directly or indirectly interested in the division of funds and projects in the pump priming program are the following:

American Association of State Highway Officials.
American Planning and Civic association.
American Forestry association.
American Engineering council.
American Institute of Architects.
American Municipal association.
American Public Welfare association.
American Road Builders' association.
American Society of Planning Officials.
Association of General Contractors of America.
Builders and Manufacturers' association.
Bureau of Contract Information.
Cement institute.

Cities Also Represented.

Conference of Mayors of the United States.
Glazed Brick and Tile institute.
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater association.
Highway Users conference.
Mississippi Valley association.
National Association of Housing Officials.
National Builders' association.
National Crushed Stone association.
National Drainage, Levee and Irrigation association.
National Gulf-Atlantic Ship Canal association.
National Housing committee.

Material Groups.

National Industrial Sand association.
National Lumber Manufacturers' association.
National Paving Brick association.
National Ready Mixed Concrete association.
National Rivers and Harbors conference.
National Sand and Gravel association.
National Society of Professional Engineers.
National Terrazzo and Mosaic association.
Portland Cement association.
Structural Clay Products, Inc.
Southern Pine Industry committee.
Western Pine Industry committee.

The great army of lobbyists for easy money is swelled by the governors of states and the mayors of cities, who come to the capital seeking a share of federal money.

Congressmen Also Lobby.

Congressmen themselves are lobbyists for their own states, cities, and districts. It has been said that the federal spending program has made a lobbyist out of every Washington visitor. Capital lawyers are retained by groups unable to maintain Washington offices.

Lobbying is as old as the government. In the first congress a heavy lobby was formed to move the national capital from New York and another for the funding of the national debt and assumption of state debts. The latter measure was supposed to turn on a single vote—that of Representative Vining of Delaware, who arrived in the house just before the final roll call was taken.

Senator MacLay of Pennsylvania wrote in his diary at that time:

"In the senate chamber this morning Butler said he heard a man say he would give Vining 1,000 guineas for his vote, but added, 'I question whether he would do so, in fact.' So do I, for he might get it for a tenth part of the sum.

Various Influences Tried.

"I do not know that pecuniary influence has actually been used, but I am certain that every kind of management has been practiced and every toll at work that could be thought of."

MacLay said government officials and every person under the influence of the treasury were active on behalf of the bill.

MOVE TO DEFER TVA INVESTIGATION SPLITS CONGRESS COMMITTEE

Washington, D. C., May 17.—(AP)—The TVA investigating committee, split down the middle on the question of beginning or deferring its inquiry, looked to a meeting scheduled for tomorrow to produce a decision or a tie-vote deadlock.

Senator Vic Donahey [D., O.], the chairman, has joined three Republican members, Senator Lynn J. Frazier [R., N. D.], Senator James J. Davis [R., Pa.], and Representative Thomas A. Jenkins [R., O.], in favoring postponement until after congress adjourns.

Five other committeemen—Senator H. H. Schwartz [D., Wyo.], Senator Fred H. Brown [D., N. H.], and Representatives James Mead [D., N. Y.], William J. Driver [D., Ark.], and Ewing Thomason [D., Tex.]—favored proceeding at once by calling the deposed chairman of TVA, Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, and the two TVA directors, Dr. Harcourt Morgan, and David E. Lilienthal.

The one remaining member of the committee, Representative Charles A. Wolverton [R., N. J.], thus held a key position. If he should vote with his Republican colleagues, the result would be a five-to-five tie. If he should vote for immediate hearings, the vote would be six-to-four for that course.

PRESIDENT SIGNS $1,090,656,000 BILL TO EXPAND NAVY

Washington, D. C., May 17.—(AP)—The United States formally embarked on its formidable big navy policy today when President Roosevelt signed into law the $1,090,656,000 fleet expansion bill.

The measure authorizes warship, auxiliary vessel, and airplane construction over a 10 year period. Congress enacted it in response to President Roosevelt's advice that "our national defense is . . . inadequate for national security."

As he recommended, the bill provides for a 20 per cent increase in the navy's authorized tonnage. Actually, experts have estimated, it will add from 50 to 75 per cent to the fleet's fighting strength. The new ships and planes will be in addition to others now under construction or already completed under the 1934 Vinson-Trammell act.

Ordinary brushing can't get this scum off plate or bridge—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! Polident not only cleans—it actually purifies plates and bridges without brushing. It gets every bit of scum, tarnish, stain and odor—dissolves it away and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new.

JAP GUNS SHELL SUCHOW; CHINESE ARMY RETREATS

Attackers Poised for Rush Into Rail City.

SHANGHAI, May 18 [Wednesday].—(AP)—Two columns of Japanese infantrymen moved into position today to storm the walls of shell battered Suchow, strategic railway junction city and chief objective of Japan's big offensive in east central China. The area is about 300 miles northwest of Shanghai.

From the low Fengchwang mountains five miles southwest of Suchow, big guns hammered the walls of the besieged city which was the base of the Chinese army defending the Lunghai railway which intersects the north-south Tientsin-Pukow [Nanking] line at Suchow.

The Japanese infantry had captured the town of Changching, which is eight miles to the southwest and was ready to advance on Suchow as soon as artillery fire breached its defenses.

Casualties Heavy in City.

Casualties among Chinese troops crowding the city were believed to have been heavy. Many of the 200,000 residents already had evacuated. Japanese declared their air bombs, shells, and tanks were pounding the Chinese into a state of "pitiful confusion." Japanese war planes were said to be machine gunning fleeing Chinese, who broke up into small detachments to slip through the Japanese units thinly encircling the area.

Chinese were said to be retreating in complete disorder, and Japanese commanders predicted the fall of Suchow within 24 hours.

Chinese sources admitted the situation at Suchow was serious, but said Chinese columns were taking positions against what were termed "raiding expeditions" against the Lunghai railroad west of Suchow. However, the fact that the Japanese had raided the Lunghai was taken by foreigners to mean the Nipponese had almost within their grasp the Suchow area.

Push from All Directions.

Forty-five miles directly south of Suchow on the Tientsin-Pukow railroad, 50,000 Chinese were in full retreat from Suhsien, Japanese reported. A force of 10,000 Chinese was reported "crushed" by low raiding Japanese war planes while fleeing eastward from Suhsien.

Northeast of Suchow Chinese forces which fought off the invaders for two months in the Taierchwang-Pihsien sector were reported retreating. Pursuing Japanese troops were said to be attacking Payitsi, which is only twenty-eight miles east of Suchow.

Twenty-seven miles north of Suchow Chinese and Japanese forces were fighting near Hangchwang, which is on the Grand canal. Thirty-three miles west of Suchow opposed forces were fighting at Hwangkow.

Though the Japanese columns virtually had ringed Suchow, many of China's 400,000 Lunghai defenders were believed to have escaped the Japanese trap. Four Chinese central army divisions were known to have withdrawn by trains to the west before the Lunghai was cut.

Defense Force Now 100,000.

The lack of Chinese resistance was taken by foreign military observers to indicate there had been other withdrawals. It was believed that the Chinese, who are adept at vanishing into the countryside, may have left fewer than 100,000 men in the Suchow area.

The fall of Suchow would give the Japanese control of the Tientsin-Pukow railroad for its full length, from conquered Tientsin to the north, to Pukow, which is across the Yangtze river from Nanking. It would link Japan's North China conquest with the conquered Shanghai-Nanking-Hangchow area and drive Chinese armies to the west, where guerrilla and communist troops have their strongholds.

Chinese military messages from Hankow said seventy Japanese warships were concentrated off Fukien and Kwangtung provinces, indicating further attacks on the South China coast were planned similar to recent attacks at Amoy and Foochow. Twenty Japanese ships were reported off Canton.

FRANCE STIRRED BY MUSSOLINI'S WORDS ON PACT

Paris Tells Rome Speech Caused "Surprise."

PARIS, May 17.—(AP)—A source close to Premier Edouard Daladier today said that Jules Blondel, French chargé d'affaires in Rome, had been instructed to convey to the Italian government an expression of "French surprise" over Premier Mussolini's remarks at Genoa Saturday.

The Italian premier's references to Franco-Italian friendship negotiations, which Frenchmen considered to lack cordiality, were discussed by the cabinet, with President Albert Lebrun presiding.

The cabinet's failure to discuss appointment of an ambassador to Rome reflected its reaction to the Mussolini speech. This had been the principal item on the agenda, but it was passed over.

[Mussolini at Genoa said "it is not known" whether Franco-Italian talks "will reach a conclusion because in the present circumstances, those of the war in Spain, we are on opposite sides of the barricades."]

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet told the cabinet that Blondel and Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italy's foreign minister, resumed the talks today. One obstacle, it was said, is Tunisia, French protectorate in which Mussolini has been promoting Italian interests.

TWO PRISONERS IN NAZI CAMP KILL GUARD AND FLEE

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, May 17.—A notice in the obituary column of the newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter of the death of Albert Kallweit, noncommissioned Storm Troop guard, today confirmed reports of the first known violence in a Nazi concentration camp.

"Kallweit," the paper said, "was the victim of a cowardly attack during the performance of his duty at a lonely post in the Thuringian forest."

The report said two prisoners in camp had killed the guard with a spade and added that their escape probably was facilitated by villagers who gave them clothing. The paper added that "the spirit of Kallweit will ever warn us to be just, but hard as steel, in our supervision of enemies of the state."

LIFE IS NORMAL IN FRANCO SPAIN; NO SIGN OF WAR

Little Destruction Found by Correspondent.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Staf correspondent, who has just returned from Spain.]

In entering that part of Spain controled by the Franco insurgents from the north, the visitor is immediately impressed with the thoroughness displayed by both French and Spanish authorities at the border.

The bridge connecting Hendaye, France, and Irun, Spain, is 300 yards long, with a barrier at each end. Neither side trespasses beyond its respective barrier. The American traveler must be equipped with a revised American passport good for travel in Spain, a French police visa authorizing exit and entrance to France, a Spanish visa, and a special Spanish document called a "safe conduct pass." All these documents require photographs.

After the French customs, passport officials and police satisfy themselves that about all one is taking into Spain is a reasonably healthy body, the barrier goes up and across no man's land one plods.

Calls French Novices.

The north side vivisectionists proved novices. In addition to all the written documents mentioned above, the Spanish want to know your entire outlook on life.

The traveler is escorted by guards into one building for additional forms to be filled out; into another for careful baggage checking; another for personal searching, one knows not for what; still another to count money and examine personal effects, and another for finger prints of all fingers, both palms and a picture with a number above one's head, and finally to military headquarters for a final general once over. If two hours' travel through this gantlet is successful—many are not—one is in Spain.

The country in north Spain is more attractive than that encountered in south, central, and eastern Spain. The mountains are not so high and barren. The countryside is rolling with much vegetation and cultivation in the lowlands.

Farmers Plentiful in Fields.

Farmers, men and women, are plentiful in the fields. Many herds of sheep and nondescript goats dot the roadside. Beasts of burden are practically all steers, with an occasional horse or mule. The draft power of the steers is produced by yokes rigged around the horns. Most of the horses and mules are rigged in old American cattle yokes around the neck. Why a nation doesn't know that efficiency and comfort would be infinitely increased by properly fitted collars is beyond reason.

The soil cultivated is mostly red and sandy gravel. The soft black loam is conspicuously absent in sections visited.

While the country around Irun and San Sebastian was disputed territory earlier in the conflict, there is little evidence of destruction. A few houses are ruined, but most of them by evacuating residents rather than by invading forces. In the large cities, such as San Sebastian, Burgos, and Saragossa, there is no evidence of war except shelters against air bombs and streets full of soldiers in every conceivable uniform, with army trucks, mule carts, etc., crowding out civil enterprise.

Business Seems to Be Good.

Business seems to be good in all lines, with hotels, restaurants and men's clothing stores doing a land office boom. Trains and buses are all crowded, and taxicabs are scarce. Prices vary. In Saragossa, for instance, socks and underwear are about five times Chicago prices, while food and drinks are cheaper.

Hotel accommodations are almost impossible to obtain at any price. Matches are very rare. The reason given for the high price of clothing and scant dress of soldiers is the fact that most of the textile mills in Franco territory were destroyed before the loyalists evacuated.

There is a lot of Spanish money being circulated, both in paper and metal. The common unit is the peseta and the present rate of exchange is about ten to an American dollar. The leading bank in Saragossa, a city of 250,000 population, would not take American dollars at all and money gyps take advantage of it. Similar trouble is not found in other cities.

Situation Appears Good.

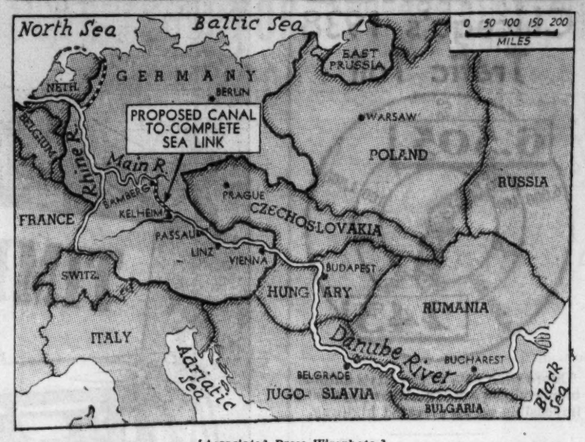
The internal economic condition of Franco Spain appears good, but where money comes from to purchase outside equipment is difficult to ascertain. Individuals contribute liberally. The Philippines are a generous source. An American salesman who had sold hundreds of American trucks to Franco said the money was paid before the trucks were assembled in the United States.

Internally the country is operating similarly to other dictator countries. No individual is allowed to take any Spanish money out of the country and the printing presses are busy. All money brought in by foreigners is "velvet." Spain, being an agricultural nation, has plenty of food and the Spaniards get along without luxuries.

Practically all working in behalf of Franco are fighting for a cause and donate their services. Army officers accept their peacetime pay, which is considerably below the scale provided by law for war service. In addition they have agreed to accept no increase in pay for promotions received during the duration of the war.

The men are paid clothes, food, etc., plus one peseta [10 cents] per day. Yet the bars and restaurants are crowded with soldiers carrying rolls of bills. They, however, probably are the ones who understand dice playing.

New Waterway Across Europe



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Arrow indicates proposed canal to link the North and Black seas, according to German cabinet decree yesterday which says the Rhine, Main, and Danube rivers must be made into one great waterway by 1945. The canal at top has been in use for some time. The waterway would permit 1,200 ton ships to cross Europe.

Decreed by Cabinet

BERLIN, May 17.—The Nazi cabinet of Hitler decreed today that the Rhine, Main, and Danube rivers must be linked in one great waterway by 1945. This necessitates deepening the Danube and completing the Rhine-Main-Danube canal. The project calls for 100 miles of canal with 24 locks to overcome the elevation difference of 160 feet between the Danube and the Main. The purpose of the canal is to enable ships of as much as 1,200 tons to travel from the North sea to the Black sea.

She will serve until May of 1939, completing the term of the late James Anderson. Mrs. Pirie, wife of Robert S. Pirie, lives at 808 Deerpath, Lake Forest. She has been active in north shore civic and club work.

Cardenas Allows Cedillo Resign from Mexican Army

MEXICO CITY, May 17.—(AP)—The defense ministry tonight announced that President Lazaro Cardenas had allowed Gen. Saturnino Cedillo, the "strong man" of San Luis Potosi, to resign from the Mexican army. The announcement came while strong federal troop detachments patrolled the strategic central Mexican state.

CHARGE GERMANS STIR WAR SCARE TO CRUSH CZECHS

Guerrilla Fighting Started, Nazis Warn.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 17.—Germany's tremendous propaganda machinery is building up a war scare by claiming "regular guerrilla warfare has broken out between Germans and Czechs in the Sudeten German territory." The Nazi propagandists assert that the moment is approaching when it no longer will be possible to hold back the aroused population.

The intimidation has proved successful with Sir Nevile Henderson, British ambassador to Berlin, who has warned his government that unless it induces Prague to grant all German demands disaster is unavoidable. The Germans are rushing representatives to London to support Henderson's warning to put stronger pressure on Prague.

Called Policy of Intimidation.

Berlin diplomats who are less susceptible to German propaganda than the British ambassador see in the campaign in the German press and official quarters a repetition of the policy of intimidation which worked successfully for Germany in her conquest of Austria.

These diplomats understand that if Germany realizes England will help to uphold the integrity of the Czech state while aiding the Sudeten Germans get internal concessions, Nazi leaders will warn the press to restrain their propaganda. In such a case, it is believed, a compromise with the Czechs can then be achieved more easily.

In view of the British cabinet shakeup, the Germans hope that their representatives will be able to induce more British officials to become willing to sacrifice Czechoslovak independence for an assurance that thus "war can be averted." It was recalled that Kurt Schuschnigg, fallen chancellor of Austria, agreed to resign when confronted with a warning that an uprising and bloodshed were imminent unless he capitulated.

Visions Disintegration.

The West Deutsche Beobachter today predicted the "disintegration of Czechoslovakia if a quick decision is not taken."

"Czech attacks on Germans once again have greatly increased," it said. "If this state of affairs continues the process of disintegration will not stop at the Sudeten German frontiers, but will cross over to territories inhabited by the Czechs."

The German publishing house, Wunderlich, has published a booklet entitled, "Germany Fights for Europe." All German minorities scattered over Europe are listed and Italy's possession of the South Tyrol is referred to as "illegal occupation."

[The South Tyrol was ceded to Italy by Austria in a post-war treaty settlement.]

Shows an Enlarged Germany.

The cover of the booklet carries a map of Europe showing Germany enlarged with strips of France, Czechoslovakia and Denmark. A map on the back page also shows territories Germany lost through the Versailles treaty, including the Polish corridor and Memel.

The booklet echoes a growing feeling in Germany that the peace treaty cannot be considered dead until the territories Germany lost in the world war are returned to her by means similar to those used in Austria.

FRESH LOYALIST TROOPS REPULSE REBEL ATTACKS

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish frontier], May 17.—(AP)—Spanish loyalist reinforcements, aided by fresh spring rains, tonight blocked again the rebels' attack along the coast toward Valencia.

Fresh government troops manned strong trenchworks on the six mile line inland from Alcala de Chisvert, near the coast, to Cuevas de Vinroma. The line bridged both spurs of the seaboard highway, giving the government control of the direct line south toward Castellon de la Plana and Valencia.

Farther inland the rebels struck again against government trenches northeast of Teruel. The rebels reported the capture of Corbalan, important communications center seven miles northeast of Teruel. Mora de Rubielos, dominating the main Teruel-Sagunto road twenty miles east of Teruel, is the main objective of the rebels in that sector. They reported capture of Alcala de la Selva, six miles north of Mora de Rubielos on a secondary highway.

MODERN SWEDISH MOVE

By CALEB

"HELLO," said the voice on the wire, "can you deliver all the furniture from the eighth floor modern house to this city and install it in an apartment ready for use by tomorrow morning at ten o'clock?"

It was ten minutes after five in the afternoon. The voice was that of a Field representative speaking for his customer from a city a hundred miles from Chicago. He was asking that the Modern Swedish furnishings from the five rooms in one of our model homes be removed that night, sent by van, and set up in an apartment, ready for use some sixteen hours later! A neat assignment in household furnishing service.

Mrs. F—— and her husband had decided on the step following a visit by Mrs. F—— to the modern house here. She discussed the matter tentatively, but upon her return home changed her plans to include a larger apartment. Additional appointments were necessary, and must be calculated on this end simply from a telephonic description given by the Field representative dispatched to the scene of action. The assignment was particularly exacting because Mr. F—— is an expert in architectural design and arrangement.

It was decided at once that the job could be done to meet every condition laid down—and it was! When the sun came up, the van carrying the furniture stood outside the apartment. With swift efficiency the furniture was moved into place—even to the requisite lamps.

At the appointed time the new apartment was furnished—every piece in its place, disposed with impeccable taste to receive the delighted approval of the clients. The larger quarters were so satisfactorily filled that when the van returned, it bore just one piece of furniture that had not been used—a small stool.

Meanwhile, back in Chicago, during the same morning hours our modern house had been re-furnished, and by noon was receiving guests as though nothing had happened. Visitors to the houses on our eighth floor will be interested to know that a speedy move in May has been added to the list of things that establish our model houses as authentic and typical American homes!

at the hospital in a vain attempt to save her life, while she begged that Weaver be sent to her.

"I won't die will I?" she asked.

She died at 10:10 p. m. as nurses were assuring her hopelessly that she would not.

The note, which she had written in a department store waiting room during the afternoon, read in part:

"Stony: You said just before I left you today, 'Whatever you do is all right with me.' Therefore I feel sure you will understand and even possibly condone the step I'm about to take. Thursday night I felt not unlike I do now, but the assurance you gave me then of your love and your desire of a life for us together gave me strength and courage to follow a plan of living which I was meaning to discuss with you last night, but with your views greatly altered from those of Thursday and your love for me gone, as you said, it didn't seem to be of much use.

"It Is Truly the End."

"Stony, as long as you might have continued loving me that and my love for you would have made any achievement possible. However, you saw fit to put an end to our love, and for me it is truly the end. . . . As you know, I've not considered a life without you; it just wouldn't be life.

"You see, darling, I do know I was meant to be yours. I have been and shall always be. . . .

"Your fraternity pin you will of course want, and shall have, but about the ring I feel differently . . . so may the ring be left on my hand, please?

"Remember the toast you made to me once . . . 'Here's to our love, and any one that tries to hurt it will have me to reckon with.'

"I won't say good-by—I never have, and couldn't, so, my dearest,

"Till we meet again."

Weaver Tells His Story.

Weaver's mother said Mrs. Bowers had occasionally been a dinner guest in their home, but that her son was not well enough established financially to consider marriage.

Weaver learned of the tragedy when he returned home about midnight. He collapsed momentarily and then went to the police station to tell his story. Asked if he had been engaged to Mrs. Bowers, he replied:

"Well, no. She had been talking that way, but actually we weren't. I had given her my fraternity ring and my fraternity pin."

Romance Gradually Breaks.

He said the breaking off of the romance had been gradual, but that it was understood the affair was at an end when they met for a brief talk in the loop on Monday.

"It was for her good and mine," he said.

Weaver said she apparently called merely to chat last night, and that she gave him no indication of her suicide plans.

"She had threatened things like that before, though," he said.

The young woman's father reached the hospital after she had died.

"Gretchen," he sobbed, "you would not listen to me. You thought you knew all the answers. O, if I could only fix this with mother.'

"She and Bowers parted two years ago," the father said. "I saw her last a week ago. Her mother is in a state of collapse over the tragedy."

"The men who will have to decide this question," he said, "are D. F. Kelly [chairman of the elevated mortgage bondholders' committee] and the real parties back of the Abbott plan. You know who I mean."

Bankers Are Sponsors.

The sponsors of the so-called Abbott plan for reorganization of the four surface lines companies include A. W. Harris, chairman of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, and Frank M. Gordon, vice president of the First National bank, who head important bond groups.

Philip Harrington, city traction engineer, explained details of the plans for downtown subway yesterday at a crowded public hearing of the city council's local transportation committee, which is headed by Ald. James R. Quinn [50th]. The State street, Jackson street and Washington street tunnels, he said, are only the initial development in a long range subway program.

SAFETY EXPERTS FAVOR SCHOOL DRIVING CLASSES

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago high school training of automobile drivers was described as an accident prevention measure yesterday at the opening session of the sixteenth annual midwest safety conference in Hotel Sherman. Several spoke in favor of the plan.

William C. Knoelk, chairman of the Milwaukee safety commission, told how elementary school safety education has reduced the trafic deaths in this age group.

William A. Sears, instructor in automobile operation at Lane Technical High school, said that if schools are going to prepare youth for their future life, they must teach how to stay alive in this motorized age.

"At Lane during the last year, we have been developing a training technique for possible adoption in other Chicago high schools," he added.

"The course is developing a class of future motorists without bad driving habits that are common among older operators who learned to drive with little supervision."

EXONERATED IN HIT-RUN DEATH; AUTO STOLEN

Louis Gamache, a printing company executive living at 4136 Wilcox street, was exonerated by a coroner's jury yesterday at the inquest into the death of Thomas Smith, 70 years old, of 661 West Madison street. Smith was killed May 1 by a hit and run driver in front of his lodgings. Gamache, to whom the license of the death car was traced, convinced the jurors that his car had been stolen a short time before the accident. Police testified that the ignition system showed evidence of tampering by a thief when the car was found.

MOTORIST HELD TO GRAND JURY IN BICYCLIST DEATH

A coroner's jury yesterday held Roy L. West, assistant manager of the North American building, to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter for the death of George Kenning, 25 years old, of 3238 Elston avenue, who was killed Friday night by West's automobile. The accident happened on Milwaukee avenue, three miles south of Wheeling. Kenning and his brother, Sidney, were pushing a bicycle between them. West was returning from a golf club.

Upon realizing that his brother was seriously injured, Sidney Kenning testified, West and his companion jumped back in their car and fled. Another motorist took the brothers to a hospital. West said that he had gone in search of an ambulance. He was arrested at his home, 4741 North Campbell avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 317 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 243 were killed in Chicago where 6,505 were injured in the same period.

SCAN GEM DEALS FOR MOTIVE IN GLENCOE KILLING

Pistols Found in Bank Vault of Victim.

Through a maze of activities investigators were seeking yesterday for clews that might point to the slayers of Henry Schneider, motion picture operator who was found shot to death in the forest preserve in Glencoe on Monday.

Principally it was Schneider's dealing in diamonds that interested the detectives. Just before he died he was engaged in raffling off a ring described as worth $650. In the room he occupied at 64 West Schiller street were charts showing that he had promoted several such enterprises.

Bought $2,650 Ring in Loop.

It was not made clear where he obtained all of the six pieces of jewelry he insured for a total of $3,455 on March 2, although Investigator Francis Donohue of the coroner's office discovered a bill of sale showing he had purchased a $2,650 ring from a loop firm on that date.

Whether he was wearing this ring when he disappeared early on May 9 could not be determined. If he wore it, it would have furnished a motive for robbers to commit the murder. On the other hand it may have been one of five pieces of jewelry Schneider pawned in March. Tickets for these articles were found in his room.

The possibility that Schneider, who was employed as an operator in the Adelphi theater at 7074 North Clark street, may have been slain in some union trouble was not entirely discounted. However, he was not engaged in union politics and he had a regular job at $90 a week and overtime and appeared to be satisfied with his place.

Pistols in Bank Box.

Rumors that documents bearing on the assassination in 1935 of Thomas F. Maloy, czar of the moving picture operators' union, would be found in Schneider's safe deposit box at the Upper Avenue National bank proved unfounded. The box contained three insurance policies for a total of $12,000, with his mother, Mrs. Mary De Gan, as beneficiary, some clippings, and receipts for union dues.

Wrapped in tissue paper and carefully locked in the box also were two pistols, a .32 and a .38 caliber. They apparently had never been used. These were to be turned over to ballistics experts to learn if they had been used in any shootings.

Women of Little Help.

None of the three women who told Monday of knowing Schneider was able to throw any light on the slaying. One is Miss Rose Hodges, 2735 Giddings street, who said she and Schneider were engaged; Miss Bernice Puscheck of 311 North Waiola avenue, La Grange, who said he recently showed her a small bottle filled with diamonds, and Miss Mary Victor, 1429 North Clark street, to whom he had boasted of his inside knowledge of union affairs.

One of the theories was that Schneider was slain for talking too much. He had boasted of his acquaintance with the big gangsters of the prohibition era, including Al Capone, although his more cynical acquaintances asserted he had never met any of them.

Miss Mildred Henning, 18 years old, 4453 North Merrimac avenue, testified yesterday at an inquest that after a petty quarrel her sweetheart, Arthur C. Shupert Jr., 18, threatened to kill himself. He was found fatally wounded in the basement workshop at his home, 6118 Eddy street, an hour after the quarrel. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while despondent over a love affair.

Murder Motive Sought

STATE WILL ASK LIFE TERM FOR HAMMER MORON

Seven Sex Cases Piled Up Against Him.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Julius Mashalunas, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Ernest Callahan, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Elliott Rollins, colored, sentenced to 15 years for rape and 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary for robbery by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

As seven sex offense charges piled up yesterday against Louis Serraille, twice paroled convict, the state's attorney's office announced that efforts will be made to return him to Joliet penitentiary for the rest of his life. Serraille, a chauffeur, 42 years old, was arrested Sunday by Hyde Park police after assaulting three women, two of them with a hammer.

His police record disclosed he had twice been sent to the penitentiary on rape charges and twice released from prison on parole. In 1933 he was saved from serving a 25 year sentence for the rape of an elderly woman when the Illinois Supreme court reversed his conviction.

Identified by Seven Victims.

"Obviously Serraille is a vicious type and should be kept off the streets so he cannot continue his brutal attacks," declared Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle. "Thus far he has been identified by women victims in two rape cases and five attempted attacks."

The prosecutor explained that as soon as police investigation of Serraille's activities is completed he will be indicted on all the charges placed against him.

"Then there will be no delay in bringing him to trial," Boyle said. "We will seek as many convictions as possible, with consecutive sentences, so that Serraille can be sent to prison for good and out of the hands of the parole board."

Unlimited Term for Rape.

While conviction in an attempted rape carries the indeterminate sentence of one to fourteen years, the prosecutor explained, the penalty in a rape conviction is a definite prison term of years. The court is not limited as to the length of the sentence.

Yesterday Serraille was questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Sam Papanek of the sex bureau at the state's attorney's office. Despite his denials, he was questioned about the rape murder last Aug. 21 of Miss Anna Kuchta, a nurse at the Chicago hospital.

Police said he would be questioned about the brutal slaying a year ago of a girl 14 years old in Milwaukee. Although denying the crime, he admitted being in that vicinity around that time, police said.

WRECK VICTIM DIES.

Sycamore, Ill., May 17.—[Special.]—Injured April 3 in a collision between a Great Western freight train and a passenger train at Clare, near here, Joseph N. Templeton, 68 years old, of Cincinnati, passenger on the train, died in hospital here today.

DEAN MUMFORD IS GIVEN BLOOD; CONDITION GRAVE

Champaign, Ill., May 17.—[Special.]—The condition of Herbert W. Mumford, dean of the college of agriculture at the University of Illinois, was critical today. He was injured in an automobile collision on Saturday night. He was given a blood transfusion at 4 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Mumford, also injured, was reported to be recovering.

Dean and Mrs. Mumford were returning from St. Louis when the automobile which he was driving was struck by an automobile driven by Woodrow Seward, 22 years old, at the intersection of Prospect avenue and John street here.

BRITAIN PROBES SUBWAY CRASH; 6 KILLED, 40 HURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 17.—The British government tonight ordered an investigation into the worst subway disaster in the history of London's underground railway. The disaster occurred this morning when a crowded train crashed into the rear end of another slowly moving crowded train between Charing Cross and Temple stations, under the heart of the city. Six persons were killed and more than forty were injured.

The rear car of the first train and the leading car of the second telescoped with the terrific impact, throwing crowds of office bound workers to the floors as the cars splintered. Everything was thrown into darkness. The mad panic was heightened when a battery beneath one of the trains showered sparks through the tunnel.

Hundreds of doctors and nurses were rushed to the Charing Cross station, which was turned into an emergency hospital. Rescue workers labored for hours bringing out injured victims imprisoned in the wrecked coaches.

ADVOCATES CITY MANAGER PLAN TO SLASH TAXES

A city manager plan of government for Chicago was advocated last night by Dr. Thomas H. Reed at a meeting of business and civic leaders in the Goodman theater, Monroe street and Columbus drive. Dr. Reed is an official of the National Municipal league and aided in instituting the manager plan of government in Belgium.

He asserted that Chicago taxpayers are now imposed on by a spoils system of politics and that the city has failed to bring its government to the level of its other achievements. With a city manager, Chicago would have a sound accounting system and its citizens would not suffer from high taxation, Dr. Reed said.

Robert Todd McKinlay, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the Chicago city manager committee, explained the proportional representation system of voting and recommended it for selecting a city council in the manager plan.

OPEN AUTO DEATH TRIAL OF DUNCAN, LA FOLLETTE AID

State Outlines Its Case Against Political Power.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., May 17.—[Special.]—Thomas M. Duncan, for years a political power in Wisconsin, went on trial today charged with first degree manslaughter, the result of an accident on the night of March 9, when his automobile struck and killed Henry F. Schuette, a retired West Allis business man.

Duncan is executive secretary to Gov. Phil La Follette and a counselor for the Farmer-Labor federation, which is known as a product of his brain and organizing skill.

He generally is credited with having influenced the appointment of Herbert J. Steffes, district attorney, who is prosecuting him.

Steffes Outlines Case.

Despite the power he has wielded Duncan sat today at the opening of the trial and heard District Attorney Steffes say:

"The state will prove that whatever the reputation of this man before the accident, on this night he was driving a juggernaut of destruction and death for forty-three blocks in as mad a dash as this city ever has witnessed.

"Nine police officers will testify he was drunk.

"We will prove he drove his car at an excessive speed, that he sideswiped a car driven by Winifred Ramaker of Cedar Grove, that he weaved away from the Ramaker car, struck the Schuette car which was parked and then proceeded at forty to fifty miles an hour across the viaduct, despite the thirty mile speed limit."

Defense Counsel Silent.

Benjamin Poss, counsel for Duncan, said he had no statement to make.

Duncan sat with his counsel. Mrs. Duncan and his son, Thomas Jr., a student at Yale, of which Duncan is an honor graduate, sat with him.

Dr. Marcos Fernan-Nunez, professor of pathology of the University of Wisconsin, who conducted a post-mortem on Schuette, testified that death was due to intercranial hemorrhages.

Policemen Clarence Block and Anton Kraemer, squad car crew, first to reach the accident on the Wisconsin avenue viaduct, testified to the positions of the body and the car.

THREE CONDEMNED PRISONERS WHO FLED JAIL ARE RECAPTURED

Columbia, S. C., May 17.—(AP)—Three condemned convicts who escaped before dawn today from the Richland county jail here were recaptured early tonight several miles north of here.

George Wingard, 19 years old, of Columbia, and Herbert Moorman, 41, of Detroit, Mich., were taken about sundown after a 300 yard chase along a creek bank and two hours later Clayton Crans of Rochester, N. Y., was apprehended in the same vicinity.

The trio, who wormed their way through a foot square hole made by bending a heavy iron bar in a jail window, are under sentence with three others to die for the slaying last Dec. 12 of Guard Captain J. Olin Sanders in a spectacular attempt to escape from the state penitentiary

JUDGE INSISTS TRIAL OF CRABB BE OPENED TODAY

Pekin, Ill., May 17.—[Special.]—A delay of twenty-four hours was granted today by Circuit Judge Joseph E. Daily in the manslaughter trial of James Warner Crabb, 22 years old, who is charged with slaying his bride of five weeks, Betty Collison Crabb, 19 years old. Judge Daily granted the short delay after overruling a defense motion for a postponement.

Defense counsel has had ample time to prepare the case, the judge held, adding a postponement would mean putting the trial over until autumn.

Attorneys charged that Crabb's statement that he shot his wife accidentally during a scuffle was made only after he had been held incommunicado several hours and had been mistreated by state investigators. They contended that Crabb could not get a fair trial, if the trial should proceed now.

LEYDEN BOARD, IN STORMY SESSION, DEFIES PARENTS

In a tumultuous meeting crowded by more than 200 parents and students, the Leyden township school board last night by a vote of 3 to 2 again refused to renew the contracts of Athletic Coach Lynn Watson and Leland A. Meyer, commercial teacher.

Students of the school went on strike a week ago over the board's action, but had returned to their classes Monday. Attempts last night by students and parents for explanation of the board's action also met with no success.

"The school board is under no obligation to make public the reasons for taking this action," Mrs. Ada Dodge, board president, declared. "Let it suffice that whatever the board does is in the best interests of the school." It was indicated after the meeting, however, that the board may make a compromise settlement by keeping Watson.

COTTON ACREAGE CUT SPURS DIXIE TO RAISE CATTLE

AAA Edict Also Booming Dairying in South.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., May 17.—[Special.]—In making a thousand mile automobile tour down through the valley of the Mississippi river that winds its way through five cotton states—Missouri, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi, and Louisiana—this correspondent found an increasing interest in live stock among planters all along the way.

Farmers in these states say they are forced to turn to hogs and beef and dairy cattle to make use of the increased tonnage of feed that will be raised this year on land taken out of cotton under the AAA program.

Various agencies are teaching the farmers in proper breeding and feeding methods. Their herds are being increased under the impetus of the federal government's new crop control plan. Coördinated with the farmers' live stock raising and feeding program, meat curing and refrigeration plants have been established to serve farmers.

Buys 1,000 Cattle in Texas.

Encouragement is being given by oil mill operators who are seeking to increase the consumption of cottonseed feed which makes an ideal concentrate when mixed with corn and other feeds. Cheese making also is being given a boost to furnish an outlet for surplus milk.

H. P. Coleman Jr., a cotton planter in southeast Missouri, has just returned from Texas where he bought a thousand head of steers which he will finish for the market. The thousand head will be grazed during the summer and held on pasture, waiting for the new crops to mature. This fall they will be turned into feed lots and fattened on crops raised where cotton formerly grew.

Up in the mid-south section within a 200 mile radius of Memphis, taking in parts of Arkansas and Mississippi, farmers are being advised by live stock specialists that they are in the best area in the nation for the raising of live stock. S. R. Morrison, a field agent for a live stock association in that section, is one of the leaders in this movement.

Flock to Live Stock Shows.

Attendance at live stock shows this spring has indicated the growing interest in cattle and hogs. Morrison said that 500 farmers are expected at a live stock show to be held at Como, Miss., in the northwestern part of the state, next week.

J. C. Holton, Mississippi's commissioner of agriculture, said at Jackson the other day that the beef cattle industry is growing rapidly in his state. The legislature recently appropriated money to encourage it. They will be paid out in premiums at four regional live stock shows established in Mississippi within the last few years.

More than 1,000 pure bred bulls and cows have been brought into southwestern counties in Mississippi in the last two years. Beef and dairy cattle, horses, mules, hogs, and sheep are all being exhibited at the regional shows, indicating a diversified interest in live stock, according to Holton.

Establish Forty Packing Plants.

Forty community packing plants have been established in Mississippi within the last few years. Farmers take their cattle and hogs into these plants, where they are made into fresh and cured meat products. Hams, bacon, and shoulders from the hogs are cured for the farmers any time in the year. Beef animals are also processed for the farmers and the fresh carcasses are held in coolers until used. They, too, can be handled any time in the year, winter or summer. The work is done at a reasonable cost to farmers.

Holton explained that one reason more hogs had not been raised and fattened in Mississippi has been due to the fact that the weather is not cool enough for the farmers to slaughter them safely except during a short period in winter. Millions of pounds of meat were cured and held under refrigeration in the community plants last year. It is Holton's opinion that these plants will increase the demand for the production of hogs in his state.

FEDERAL COURT TO HEAR PLEA OF MRS. TEGTMEYER

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday ordered Sherif John Toman to show on May 27 why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued to free Mrs. Daisy Tegtmeyer, 52 years old, from the county jail.

Mrs. Tegtmeyer spent four years in jail for refusing to disclose what she did with $30,000 entrusted to her care as administrator of an estate. Freed pending an appeal of her case, she was returned to Jail on May 6 on order of the Illinois Supreme court.

Her attorney, Charles S. Harvey, contends that her imprisonment is a violation of the constitution and may result in a life sentence, since she is without funds to make good the debt. She also is ill with tuberculosis, he said.

TAXI DRIVER ROBBED.

Benton, Ill., May 17.—[Special.]—Earl Harris, Benton taxi driver, was robbed of six dollars and his automobile last night by two men who engaged him for a trip. Near Johnston City they bound Harris to a fence with wire.

CHICAGO BAKERS DENY THAT BREAD PRICE IS TOO HIGH

Bakers in Chicago yesterday denied a statement made in Washington by D. E. Montgomery, consumers' counsel for the Agricultural Adjustment administration, that the retail price of bread is too high in comparison with the cost of ingredients.

Officials of two large chain stores, which last week reduced the price of their 20-ounce loaves of white bread to eight cents, pointed out that this was well under the 8.9 cents average price per 16 ounce loaf cited by Montgomery. They added that even if the price of ingredients had gone gone down since 1933, labor and wrapping costs had gone up.

Two other large bakeries, whose white bread retails for 10 cents for a 20-ounce loaf, said that ingredient prices were not at their lowest since 1933, as Montgomery charged, and that the price had been 10 cents for a 16-ounce loaf until about two years ago.

DENNIS F. KELLY PRAISED FOR HIS SERVICES TO CITY

Catholics and Irish Dine Retired Merchant.

Dennis F. Kelly, who recently retired as president of The Fair, department store company, was praised as "Chicago's public spirited citizen No. 1" at a dinner given in his honor last night at the Chicago Athletic association. Sponsors were the directors of the Catholic Charities of Chicago, of which Mr. Kelly is president, and the Irish Fellowship club.

It was Mayor Edward J. Kelly who applied the designation to Mr. Kelly, and remarked that in his retirement from the pressure of business he was "going to be more useful than ever."

Praised for Service to City.

"It really isn't a retirement," the mayor added. "Mr. Kelly is merely taking time by the forelock. He'll take a trip to Ireland and come back to assist us again."

Another speaker was Col. A. A. Sprague, who also asserted that Mr. Kelly would give still more service to the public on his return. The Right Rev. W. A. Cummings, director of the Catholic charities, praised the guest of honor for interpreting the work of the organization to Catholic laymen and to business men generally.

Merchant Recalls Early Days.

In his own brief speech Mr. Kelly told of his early years in State street merchandising and spoke freely of the work of the charities. He said he had always supported Mayor Kelly and promised to "support him again."

Formal acknowledgements of the veteran merchant's services to the charities and to the Irish Fellowship club were presented him by former Judge P. B. Flanagan, for the charity group, and Attorney Jerome J. Crowley, president of the club. The dinner was attended by 125 Chicagoans.

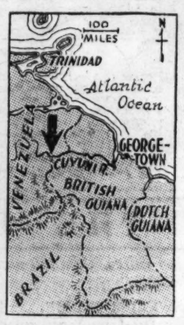
Former Film Actor Found Dead of Fumes from Auto

Hollywood, Cal., May 17.—(AP)—Virgil Jack Dougherty, 43 years old, former film actor, was found dead of carbon monoxide fumes in a parked automobile in the nearby Hollywood hills last night. Dougherty was the husband of the late Barbara La Marr, star of the silent screen.

GUIDE INSISTS HE SAW REDFERN'S PLANE AND GRAVE

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, May 17.—(AP)—A guide told today of seeing wreckage of Paul Redfern's plane, with the lost aviator's grave beside it, "six days' travel" beyond the British Guiana border near where the Cuyuni river flows from Venezuela into British Guiana.



Arrow shows about where guide said he saw plane.

Alexander Gilbert, bushman who guided the recent expedition of Theodore J. Waldeck, New York explorer, into the Guiana wilds, said the expedition learned of Redfern's death from an Indian. This Indian, according to Gilbert, swore he and other natives saw the Redfern plane crash and burn, killing the American flyer.

INSTEAD OF HARSH LAXATIVES

LEMON with SODA

First thing every morning... Start tomorrow!

SO MANY people have told us about a new way to keep regular that we have decided to pass the good word on to you.

Here's the plan. Immediately upon arising, squeeze the juice of a lemon into a tall glass of cold or warm water. Into another glass, put half a teaspoonful of ordinary baking soda (bicarbonate). Pour back and forth, and drink when foaming subsides.

Do this regularly and chances are you'll never need a harsh laxative. This simple beverage made with household ingredients may be all the corrective you need. Actually we are told it increases in effectiveness when followed regularly.

Lemon and soda both help to keep the system normally alkaline and aid in increasing resistance to infection. Many say this reduces their susceptibility to the common cold.

Try it ten mornings—the juice of a Sunkist Lemon in a glass of water with one-half teaspoonful of baking soda (bicarbonate), first thing upon arising.

REAL SOCIAL SECURITY.

One of the great life insurance companies shows in its exhibit of policies that it has three million insured persons and offers their dependents, who may be upward of eight or ten millions, seven billion dollars in protection. This is only one of a number of great companies in which Americans have invested savings for security.

The policyholders are people who have planned their lives prudently. They have not regarded their future as an easily assumed risk with an inevitably safe outcome. For them to hold the protection they have provided for their dependents or beneficiaries they must be able to earn an income and they must save part of it.

Their life insurance company, to do its part, must be able to trust to the stability of its investments. The company to which reference has been made has most of its assets in federal, state, county, and municipal bonds, in railroad and public utility bonds, and in mortgages on city properties, all of which these days, more than ever, are subject to the effects of political management. The insurance funds are tied into thousands of governmental and private activities all influenced by good or bad political decisions.

If anything should break down either the security of the investment or the ability of the individuals to carry their policies, no government could retrieve the situation. The people who support the government as well as themselves would be ruined, and for the others there would be no hope at all.

The value of the security and protection industrious and prudent people have provided for themselves depends on the stability of their monetary system. Inability to carry the burden of governmental debt, the breakdown of industry under taxation and oppressive laws, and the destructive inflation following as the effect of these causes would vitally depreciate the expected return on the policy if it did not destroy the company assets and take all value from the benefits.

THE REVIEW OF THE CADETS.

On Friday afternoon of this week the third annual review of Chicago's high school cadets, R. O. T. C., will take place in Soldiers' field. There are 9,630 cadets, the largest unit of the R. O. T. C. in the country, to be reviewed by Maj. Gen. Drum, commander of the Sixth corps area, and by Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, commandant at Great Lakes. Two stands of colors, donated by THE TRIBUNE, will be presented to the two units selected in the recent regular inspection, and there will be an impressive display of American youth at its best.

A great show and something much more, a revelation of the faith of a great nation and of its hope which lies in its youth. Across the world we have watched the fall of constitutions and the use of great despotisms. It warns us to hold fast to our institutions and to the spirit which has kept them living for a century and a half. In the devotion, the self-discipline, the courage, and strength of loyal American youth lies the future of America and the preservation of its great heritage of human liberty.

THE WAY OF THE TRANSGRESSOR.

Reflection on the way of the transgressor suggests that it is not as hard as it might be. The criminal in the United States has a good many ways of escape from justice. He may, of course, escape detection. If caught, he may in favorable circumstances be able to get a pass from a complaisant police.

He may find that the prosecutor's office has weak links of incompetence, indifference, or worse.

He may get to the trial jury. This has not been uncommon. He may even find an unscrupulous or inefficient judge. This can seldom occur in flagrant form, yet political influence is sometimes useful and, if conditions permit, the appeal to false sentiment, worked up by professional sentimentalists, can be managed to produce surprising results. The latter is far too common.

If he is able to pay for skilful and unscrupulous counsel the process of trial and review offers a good many exits, and if he is convicted and sentenced and the sentence approved on appeal, he still has the rich opportunity of parole. With organized sentimentality always available, often masking political favor, a criminal caught in the so-called toils of justice need not despair.

If all these futile possibilities fail, and he is landed finally in some place of alleged confinement, he may connive at escape and reach fresh woods and pastures new. This, in some localities such as Indiana, offers no mean hope for any enterprising malefactor.

In short, regrettable as any doubt of the validity of the proverb we have cited may be, the way of the transgressor has sometimes seemed to be a good deal easier than the safety of a civilized community ought to tolerate. The job of making it as hard as it ought to be is complicated and troublesome. There is much effort throughout the country expended upon it, but not enough. The chief obstacles to progress are lack of interest and misdirected sentiment, usually professionalized.

CENSORSHIP OF THE RADIO.

Any one familiar with the history of liberty must be struck with the fact that what is happening to radio broadcasting today is an old, old story. Governments fear the radio just as they feared the printing press for several hundred years after its invention. Therefore governments seek to control the radio just as they formerly exercised control over the press. They refuse to set it free as the press was freed, subject only to the general laws against obscenity, malicious falsehood, and kindred abuses.

In most countries, including all the totalitarian ones, the radio is owned and operated directly by the government. In England the broadcasting monopoly is in the hands of a government controled corporation, which comes to the same thing. In this country, where the government is less an object of adoration, radio stations are privately owned and managed but they are subject to a licensing system which is an almost exact counterpart of the method by which Henry VIII. and other monarchs sought to gag the press and largely succeeded. In this country the radio lives in the shadow of a censorship.

Every broadcasting station in the United States must now have a license to operate, just as for centuries in England every printer was required to have one. The radio law allows the Federal Communications commission to grant these licenses for any term up to three years, but the commission has set six months as the limit.

The commission may bring charges before itself against a station and, if the commission then finds that the charges it brought are true, it may revoke the station's license. That method permits at least the formality of a trial. Another method is the summary one of refusing a renewal of the license at the end of the six months' term. To obtain a permit in the first place, the broadcaster is required to sign away his property right in his wave length, the object being to prevent him from appealing to the courts for protection against confiscation.

In the absence of court decisions on the validity of these waivers and other oppressive practices of the commission, the broadcaster is in a peculiarly vulnerable position. To obtain an audience he must invest large sums in programs, sums which often run to hundreds of thousands of dollars. If he loses his license all this investment in good will may be lost irrevocably. Accordingly, the lightest hint from the commission becomes a strident command. The commission [composed of political appointees] is in a position to exercise censorship without seeming to do so.

The commissioners seized upon the Mae West incident a few months ago to make their position abundantly clear. Hard cases, as the lawyers say, make bad law, and in this instance the commission seems to have welcomed the hard case for the sake of the bad law which it wished to promulgate.

Miss West had appeared in a program, heard over many stations, which gave offense to some listeners. Not long afterward the commission addressed a letter to the broadcasters concerned in which it set forth its alleged right to censor programs. The letter was studded with references to the fact that the law explicitly withholds from the commission any rights of censorship but this tell-tale sentence was included:

". . . Upon application for renewal of the licenses of the stations carrying this broadcast, the commission will take under consideration this incident along with all other evidence tending to show whether or not a particular licensee has conducted his station in the public interest."

That is censorship. The commission says that if it does not approve the programs which a station offers that station's license may be withdrawn. The right to censor is asserted on the theory that it is required to deal with obscenity; the aim is to make the enemies of censorship appear as the friends of obscenity. In fact, there are other and equally effective ways of dealing with this abuse [ways which the government is not employing, it might be noted, against publishers of unquestionably filthy magazines which can be bought by any child from almost any newsstand]; and the tyrannical doctrine which the commission has adopted can be extended to political opponents without the change of a syllable. We know, says the commission, what the public should not be permitted to hear and woe to any station where ideas which differ from ours prevail.

The communications commission has a rôle to play as trafic policeman of the air, seeing that stations do not interfere with each other. Beyond that technical regulation there is no excuse for its existence in a free country.

Editorial of the Day

THE NEW DEAL'S WORST ENEMY.

[New York Herald-Tribune.]

We would not think of classifying Mr. Farley's bland pertinacity with the malodorous stupidities of Senator Minton. Yet we cannot help wondering if in the end the cherishing of such a creature as the senator may not corrupt the brains and morals of the entire New Deal.

When Mr. Farley, fresh from shoveling out the taxpayers' millions to bribe the state of Florida, stands up and unblushingly complains because the Republicans are stating their case to the nation by public argument at a supposed cost of half a million of their own dollars, he makes every one blink.

But the chief vote loser for the President is beyond question the senator from Indiana. He had yesterday, once more, just made a complete fool of himself. He had been forced to admit that his ingenious bill to jail editors who did not tell the truth was not to be pushed. This trial balloon for the administration—the President gave it his personal blessing—had collapsed so swiftly and so completely that even the mind of a Minton could perceive that it was ended.

Yet, his hands still sticky from this mudslinging, the senator rushed to the attack of a new victim. This was a western farm journal that upon occasion dared to be mildly critical of the New Deal. Mr. Minton spent most of his committee's session baiting the editor and the rest of the time denouncing Mr. Glenn Frank for seeking to tell what he knew of the publication.

We do not wish to do an injustice to Senator Minton's intellectual abilities. He has plainly succeeded in grasping and comprehending one whole idea—that it is a crime and an outrage for any one to criticize the New Deal. The first duty of a United States senator, therefore, is to jail his political opponents—or, if that idea fails, summon them to Washington, browbeat them, insult them, and do everything possible to intimidate and suppress them.

The senator's mind is so swollen by the necessity of containing this large thought that little things like the constitution and democratic free speech are completely forgotten.

Upon reflection, we apologize to Mr. Farley for mentioning him in the same editorial with Mr. Minton.

FEUDS ARE NOT LIMITED to Kentucky folk. There's one going on right out in Beverly Hills. Two families who live side by side have not spoken for years. Communication, confined to complaints from one and replies from the other, is in the form of placards hung out. The complainer has three. They read: "Please Keep Your Children Off My Lawn," "Mind Your Own Business," and "You Made Too Much Noise Last Night." The other feuder's signs are sarcastic and say: "So What?", "O. K., Dearie!" and "Anything You Say."

TIT-FOR-TAT.

You brought me stardust from out of the skies,
Kindled the lovelight that flamed in my eyes—
You brought a sweetness, a tenderness rare—
You were my Why and my When and my Where.

You gave me nights like a violin's tune,
Showed me the road to a year full of June—
You breathed sheer ecstasy into my heart—
You did all this, and then chose to depart.

So, in return, may I hope for the chance
To some day kick you right square in the pants?

Cafe Dining.

They certainly couldn't be called café society, but there they were—four as handsome and patrician Chicagoans as you could find, dining in a red lether booth at the Buttery at the Ambassador, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Richardson Dunham, and Mrs. Richard I. Stearns, white haired, hatless, wearing black or black and white print informal dinner gowns. Eddy Duchin was dining at an adjacent table; Armand Deutsch, grandson of the late Julius Rosenwald, also was there, eating the roast beef served from a great covered silver dish on a Victorian stand, as they serve it at Simpson's in London.

Iris.

Chicago has two leading iris fanciers, whose hobby is hybridizing. They are David F. Hall, attorney with offices in the Bell building, and Dr. Franklin Cook of Evanston. Growing iris has been Mr. Hall's hobby for some 25 years, during which time he has set out some 20,000 hand-pollinated seedlings. He has four new varieties, a large yellow bloom named Spring Prom, 8¼ inches in diameter; Coronet, old gold in tone; Modiste, which is a mauve bloom, and Salutation, another large yellow variety. When the Midwest Horticultural society holds its iris show next Saturday and Sunday at Horticultural hall in Garfield park about 18,000 feet will be planted in iris.

A LITTLE BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENT at Loomis and Sixty-third thinks the depression is only hearsay. It started out as a candy store. Then a soda fountain was installed, then a lunch counter, then a magazine stand. A rental library was added to its facilities, and now it has become a restaurant, too. We expect them to put in a line of bathing caps, golf balls, and dark glasses any day now.

THE BAR.

(By a convict in Joliet prison, 25 years of age, Joliet, Ill.)

The name of each saloon is Bar,
The fittest of its names by far.
A bar to heaven, a door to hell;
Whoever named it, named it well.

A bar to manliness and wealth,
A door to want and broken health.
A bar to honor, pride, and fame,
A door to grief, sin, and shame.

A bar to hopes, a bar to prayer,
A door to darkness and despair.
A bar to honored, useful life,
A door to brawling, senseless strife.

A bar to all that's true and brave,
A door to every drunkard's grave.
A bar to joys that home imparts,
A door to tears and aching hearts.
A bar to heaven, a door to hell,
Whoever named it, named it well.

THE GROUNDS ABOUT the gray stone mansion of the late Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick are a tangle of high grass, unkempt shrubbery, and low-hanging, unpruned branches. The stone pots once bright with tulips each spring stand empty behind the high iron gates, but along the driveway bursting green buds raise their heads above the choking weeds and long grass. One remembers a quite different scene offered one sunny day a half dozen years ago when the late mistress of the place was taking luncheon in the garden. The lawns were clipped to velvet smoothness and all was order and beauty. A butler was serving luncheon and a footman in livery was wielding a fly swatter with anxious concentration.

THE TERRIERS TOOK US for an early evening walk, pulling impatiently at the restraining leashes that kept them off lawns and flower beds. We crossed the drive and walked west, observing how spring had the city by the throat. People were painting window boxes and working on lawns and flower beds in that last hour of daylight. An old man in shirt sleeves and an old straw hat was setting out wilting white petunias in a ring about a tree in front of his little frame house just off Rush street. We keep thinking about the white petunias and the old man setting them out so lovingly, patting down the earth and sprinkling each flower. We hope they thrive. We hope he sits on his stoop evenings and, looking at his white petunias in a ring, forgets there are 55 night clubs in the vicinity, including the chromium and glass fronted Rose Bowl cater-cornered across the street.

THE MEANING OF CHILLS.

THERE probably is no symptom which informs one more emphatically that he should go to bed pronto than the appearance of a chill, meaning, of course, the old fashioned type, when one really shakes. We may experience mild, shivery feelings which are not significant. But a real jaw rattler betokens a serious infection.

When one is seized with a chill he becomes utterly wretched. The face is pinched and blue because the blood vessels of the skin are contracted, and the pulse is rapid and feeble. The experience presents an anomaly. While the feet and hands are icy, the internal temperature is much higher than normal. Rarely will the victim be able to control muscle movements; the teeth will chatter and arms and legs will be thrown into violent tremblings.

As a rule the affair lasts for only a few minutes, but if severe the agitation may continue for a half hour or longer. As soon as it is over the patient will complain of heat, profuse sweating, and great thirst. In young children convulsions may occur.

What does it all signify? A single rigor may be the first warning sign of an acute infection—pneumonia, influenza, blood poisoning, or erysipelas. Occasionally the passage of a catheter or the insertion of an instrument into the bladder may occasion the manifestation. In such a case it is thought that there is brought about a sudden flooding of the blood stream with bacteria or a toxin of some sort which affects the nervous system and then the muscles.

If—during the course of an illness—a second chill ensues, the assumption is that there has been a spread of the original malady. But a new invader may be responsible. For example, pneumonia may develop in an individual who has suffered cold sensations with the beginning of influenza, but who now exhibits a typical chill. With the onset of middle ear disease or peritonitis, the second episode may take place.

Many of us are familiar with the symptoms of malaria—ague—in which the "shakes" will appear periodically until quinine or some other suitable drug has had a chance to destroy the malarial parasites. But chills most often are observed in diseases in which bacteria have gained entrance to the circulation and have set up nests in vital organs, such as the liver, the heart, or the lungs.

We fail to realize that while the blood carries white cells—bacteria destroying in nature—nevertheless tiny clots [thrombi] from areas not conquered by the leucocytes [white cells] may get into the circulating fluid. Now and then the gall bladder may become the seat of inflammation to such an extent that absorption of poisons will result in this symptom. After each seizure there is the typical fever.

As indicated at the outset, every patient with a chill should go to bed at once and, unless the cause is obvious, the physician will wish to take a sample of blood to determine what variety of microörganism is floating about. Sometimes the prompt use of a serum or a vaccine will prevent further damage.

If an abscess can be found where pus has localized, this may be incised and emptied at the proper time, and many an obscure ailment with repeated cold fits will be relieved completely on evacuating a pocket of pus.

A single shiver may not be of much importance, but should the incident be repeated, every resource of medical science must be brought to bear upon the situation because it indicates that numerous volleys of organisms have been fired into the blood and their source must be located and destroyed.

Once in a while an attack of nerves or hysteria is mistaken for a true chill. The test is simple. Is high fever an aftermath? If not, some nervous origin must be looked for.

WORRY AND THE HEART.

E. G. K. writes: Can an individual develop heart disease through worrying about the possibility? The person in question is in perfect health.

REPLY.

Prolonged, intense worry will lower the resistance of the body and increase the susceptibility to infection. You cannot worry yourself into organic heart disease. You can, however, develop some cardiac disturbances, characterized by an increased rate of beat—even symptoms of palpitation. These represent merely a nervous condition.

TREATING LARYNGITIS.

Mrs. A. J. writes: Is there anything to be done to cure or relieve laryngitis? My husband has had it for almost four weeks and no remedy he has tried helps.

REPLY.

Rest the voice completely—do not even whisper. Apply an ice collar about the throat for several hours each day. Sometimes the inhalation of medicated steam [with tincture of compound benzoin] is of value. I assume that your physician has examined the larynx and that there are no nodules or growths in evidence.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem or clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

ORAL AGREEMENTS.

Chicago, May 14. – [Legal Friend of the People.]--1. Does an oral agreement hold good legally and to what extent?

2. Can an eight years past due account for room and board be collected? How many years after it is due can one still collect?

3. If one has a note signed by the party who owes the bill from that time can he still collect on same? F. H. K.

1. The statute of frauds requires that various listed agreements, perhaps the most important being contracts relating to land, and contracts not to be performed within one year, must be in writing. In general, other contracts need not be in writing.

2. The Illinois limitation period is five years on oral agreements and ten years on written contracts. It seems queer, when your previous question has emphasized the importance of the distinction between oral and written contracts, that you do not give us the facts on this point.

3. The statute of limitations on a note would be ten years.

SOMETHING TO INVESTIGATE.

Ackley, Ia., May 15.—It has been reported that President Roosevelt intimated a desire to have one of the New Deal commissions investigate the big life insurance companies. This is ostensibly proposed on behalf of policyholders. But, as a policyholder endeavoring to provide for a large family, I sincerely desire that he investigate them privately and on his own hook for the purpose of learning some lessons from their management. Already the New Deal has cut the value of our savings, as represented in our policies, by cheapening the dollar, and then increased the cost by cutting the profits on their investments, thus decreasing our dividends and making the carrying burden heavier.

If the President has a real desire to investigate, or have investigations, let him ask the heads of these big companies, and other corporations, as for example, the A. T. & T., or General Motors, to make an investigation of the manner of spending about forty billions of the people's money by the New Deal. This would be a truly progressive move. Then, if he would take the advice of these corporation heads, all of whom have managed other people's money with much greater success than President Roosevelt has, we might indeed hope to see the light of day after a long spell of New Deal darkness. It seems to me that even the ordinary man on the street has learned that no corporation could be run, except into bankruptcy, by the methods used by the New Deal to administer blood transfusions by taking blood from one arm and injecting it into the other. Such a process has to stop some time or the patient will die, because it is simply impossible to do that without waste which will finally exhaust all the blood. F. J. McGREEVY.

CONTRAST.

Coldwater, Mich., May 15.—If memory serves, the much maligned Herbert Hoover turned back 25 per cent of his salary as an example for governmental economy when a depression occurred during his presidential term.

Has any one heard of the Great Humanitarian or Son James giving up anything from their huge incomes during the present depression? Roosevelt worshipers, minus their jobs and poverty stricken, doubtless have their misery reduced by half in the knowledge that their idol has done so well for himself and has feathered his nest and those of his family at the expense of the millions of forgotten men and women about whose welfare he pretends to be so solicitous.

An economic royalist who tries to make a living for his family in business is actuated by greed, so the President declares. By what, would you say, the presidential clan is actuated, in grasping all they can lay their hands on? I don't believe the Greeks had a word for it.

GEORGE C. TURNER.

THE PRICE OF MILK.

Chicago, May 15.—I note F. Ray Bryant's enumeration of costs in preparing and delivering milk and in particular his inclusion of sales tax. If sales tax is included in the sales price, why do the milk companies add sales tax to the total charges?

Are not all food products prepared at considerable cost? Is milk an exception? How about canned and dried foods, bottled goods, etc., requiring special process, cans, packages, labels, containers, etc?

Why have the prices of all food products been reduced during the depression and the price of milk remained continually high? Why are independent milk dealers, who are willing to sell milk at a reasonable price, prevented from doing so? CONSUMER.

THE SWEDISH STRAIN.

Chicago, May 11.—I want particularly to thank you for the fine editorial which you had on May 10, the title of which was "The Swedish Strain," dealing with the celebration which we propose to have June 27 at both Wilmington, Del., and Philadelphia, and also in Chicago on July 16. At the latter place we expect to have the crown prince of Sweden, and Soldiers' field has been engaged to have a gigantic celebration at that time. This will be rather a western celebration, while at Wilmington and Philadelphia the celebration will be the one which will recall the settlement of the Swedes on the Delaware three hundred years ago.

You may recall that the Mayflower and its pilgrims had determined to locate on the Delaware river and that was their destination, but they encountered a severe storm which blew them north and they made a forced landing at Plymouth, Mass., and there they settled in a hostile country which had recently been depopulated by a plague so that there were no Indians there to receive them and they had to make the best of it. However, their full intentions were to go south, and Sweden, eighteen years later, through a charter by the king of Sweden, Gustavus Adolphus, specifically mentioned that this settlement should be along the Delaware. The general opinion is that William Penn was the first settler in this locality, but he came many years after the Swedes had provided all the usual schools, courts of law, etc.

Well, this story is a big, long one and I and many of the others of Swedish heritage are pleased that this story is coming to the surface at this time. For some reason the participation of the Swedes in the colonization and activities in the settling of the Atlantic coast has been rather dormant and it is only recently that records have come to the surface so that now we propose to have this celebration with the participation of so many people, and I thank you for the comments which you gave us in this editorial. FRANCIS J. PLYM,
Swedish-American Tercentenary Association.

A STREET CAR DEFENDER.

Chicago, May 10.—I get so very tired seeing so many letters in your column from "squawking" street car patrons. Perhaps I am a bit too fair, but it does seem to be a lot of fuss over a few pennies, 7 cents, to be exact.

To me it is the very cheapest necessity there is to be bought. I've tried to think of some other purchase we patrons could make for the same price. What article of clothing, food, medicine, or luxury can be bought for 7 cents? Also how far can we run an automobile on 7 cents?

I might add that the only poor service I have ever noticed was caused by other trafic blocking the rails.

In conclusion—to those who rave and rant about street car fares, electric and gas rates—try using a paper and pencil and figure what other absolute necessities or luxuries we can enjoy for the same price—and for how long.

MARCELINE DUVALL.

NOBODY HAS TO READ 'EM.

Chicago, May 14.—Much ridicule has been aroused by the renewed burning of books in Vienna. Yet if one will consider the amount of defeatism, despair, and hopelessness expressed in modern literature the burning of such books cannot be viewed as an offense against the future. There are whole cults of writers who know of nothing worth writing about except the general futility of all life. C. P.

GH.

Chicago, May 14. Yes, Ellen Cox, the "gh" now silent in such English words as "through" once represented a definite sound that no longer exists in our language. It was a voiceless fricative sound formed by raising the back of the tongue toward the soft palate, leaving only a narrow opening in the back of the mouth for the breath current to rub its way through. It was identical with the "ch" sound in the cognate German word "durch," the same sound as is represented in Greek and Russian with an "x" and in the Spanish with the letter "j."

In older English the vowel in "through" came before the "r," as it still does in German "durch," and we usually find this and similar words written in those times simply with an "h," though sometimes also with "ch" or "gh." This sound disappeared from English through weakening of the articulation, so that friction of the breath stream against the walls of the relaxed opening became weaker and less audible and finally wanting.

ALFRED D. SCHOCH.

SECRET ALLOTMENTS.

Oskaloosa, Ia., May 12.—The agricultural adjustment act of 1938 [section 362, page 36] reads:

"All acre allotments . . . for all farms in a county . . . shall . . . be made and kept freely available for public inspection . . . in such county. . . . An additional copy of this information shall be kept available in the office of the county agricultural extension agent or with the chairman of the local committee."

The county agent or county committee will not permit such inspection in this county of corn acreage allotment. I telephoned both places and got no answer as to whether they had such a list for public inspection. From what they said it is plain that they are acting on orders from Washington. Now, Wallace put such clauses in the law to get it passed, but he does not intend to obey the law.

Small farmers cannot bear the cost of a legal test of this action to control compliance with the law. X.

CLOSED GATES.

Chicago, May 12.—So the United States consulate once again refuses a visa to my brother, William Gallacher, communist member of parliament. What a bunch of cowards the rank politicians in this country are—afraid of one lone man's influence! My brother may have different political beliefs but at least he sticks to them; that is more than can be said for some of our political high hats. William Gallacher is a better man than any of them. I don't care whether you print this or not, but I had to write or bust. A. W.

AIRPORT SUGGESTION.

Chicago, May 14.—Would it be practical to submerge the railroad tracks at the Municipal airport and pave over them? This method would do away with the obtaining of new rights of way on either side of the airport, and would also eliminate two grade crossings.

HOWARD C. MORGAN.

BUSINESS FORECAST.

Oak Park, Ill., May 14.—Why all this fretting about recessions, unemployment, and starving millions? All one need do is exist until the summer of 1940, when jobs, money, and full dinner pails will be abundant, at least until election day! Then what? VINCENT V. LOTTS.

The most important tools in America

The United States is easily the "world's largest grocery basket."

How the food industries have helped lower the cost of living and provide work for one-third of our population.

Multiply a knife, a fork and a spoon by one-hundred-and-thirty-million, then set those tools falling briskly to work 3 times a day and you have the picture of a mighty construction and reconstruction job — feeding America.

American industry has freed women from toiling over hot stoves from morning 'til night. It has made available at surprisingly low cost a vast variety of food products of excellent quality, many of them "ready to eat." Along with this, it has introduced dozens of healthful new foods and countless old ones in more appetizing forms and in carefully sealed boxes, cartons and air-tight cans and bottles.

Back in 1909, the pioneer stage of our food industries, the average family spent about 33 cents of every dollar for things to eat and drink. Through increased production and more efficient methods, prices have since been lowered to the point where food takes only 25 cents of the average family's dollar. With food taking the largest single slice of our national income, it can readily be seen that a decrease like this leaves more money to be spent for such things as education, entertainment, automobiles and luxuries.

One out of every three persons in the nation's cities, towns and rural areas, directly or indirectly, on whole or part time, is employed in the production, processing and distribution of food. Over 1,400,000,000 acres of land are required to raise the foods that America consumes. About 500,000 trucks are required to haul and deliver it. And about 615,000 stores handle some sort of food.

Only in a country like America could the food industries have accomplished so many miracles in raising our standard of living.

Chicagoans to Attend Festival at Central City

BY JUDITH CASS.

MANY who are planning to spend their vacations in the west are arranging their trips so that they can be in Central City, Colo., some time during the last two weeks of July in order to attend the seventh annual Play festival in the Central City Opera house.

Ever since the University of Denver reopened the "op'ry house" in the summer of 1932, and revived to some extent at least the romance and thrill of Colorado's gold boom days, the festivals have gained in popularity and this summer's undoubtedly will attract the largest crowd of any.

Victor Hugo's "Ruy Blas," translated and adapted by Brian Hooker, is to be the attraction this summer, opening on July 16 and closing on Aug. 1. Robert Edmond Jones, who produced the first revival, "Camille," and several others, again is to direct the festival, with Richard Aldrich as his assistant. Bramwell Fletcher and Helen Chandler, who were seen in Chicago last winter in Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30," will play the leading rôles.

Famous Teller House Reopened Each Season.

The famous old Teller house is reopened each summer to accommodate the visitors and in every rejuvenated house in the town there are guests during the exciting fortnight in which the old town, dead for so many years, comes to life and simulates the prosperity and gayety of the days before it was a ghost town.

Dude ranchers from near by and some not so near motor to Central City for the festival, some staying only for one day and a night and others lingering for much longer, so entranced do they become by the old town and its amusement features. Every year the Arthur Cables motor up from their home near Santa Fe, N. M., and the Walter Paepckes also are in the audience the opening night each summer that they are on their ranch near Colorado Springs. Mrs. Paepcke's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Nitze, are enthusiastic festival-goers, too, and so are the Harold Pynchons and her mother, Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell, who usually summer at Estes Park.

Mrs. Otis Chatfield-Taylor plans to visit her father, Boris Anisfeld, some time during the festival this summer. Mr. Anisfeld lives far up in the mountains in a quaint little house that was bought by his daughter in 1932 for $35.

Stuarts Leave Today for Wedding of Son.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Douglas Stuart and many members of the Stuart clan are leaving today for Syracuse, N. Y., to attend the wedding Saturday of R. Douglas Stuart Jr. and Miss Barbara Edwards. The bridegroom's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Robert Stuart, is going to Syracuse directly from Pinehurst, N. C., where she has been wintering, and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. James G. K. McClure, and the junior James G. K. McClures will go from Asheville, N. C.

The John Stuarts and the George A. Macdonalds, uncles and aunts of young Mr. Stuart; the junior Edward L. Ryersons, and Miss Betty Smith will be there, and so will the Robert S. Macdonalds and his sister and brother-in-law, the Hugh Waddells, and the junior John Stuarts, who are living in Peterborough, Ont. Robert Macdonald and Edward W. Scott will be the only Chicagoans among the eight ushers who are mostly Princeton classmates of the bridegroom.

Anne and Margaret Stuart, sisters of the bridegroom, will be the only Chicago bridesmaids. Mr. Stuart and his bride will go to Honolulu on their wedding trip, stopping in Montana at the Stuart ranch on their way home. They will live in New Haven, Conn., if Mr. Stuart goes through with his plans to study law at Yale.

Wallace Rumsey to Wed Saturday.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

It Ain't Necessarily So.

Hollywood, Cal., May 17.—In studio conferences Darryl Zanuck always swings a cut-down polo mallet. . . . L. B. Mayer, while talking, always swings a polo pony by the tail. . . . Studio dentists tell me the most marked improvement in youngsters who come out here for movie jobs is their teeth. [It must be consoling to have good teeth and starve.] . . . Blondes photograph better than brunettes, and, judging from the law courts, they also proposition better.

Most wigs made for the movies are of hair from Balkan and Scandinavian countries, and the finest human hair sells for $8 an ounce. . . . Natural white hair is the most expensive, so in case things get tough hold grandpa for ransom and don't let him shave. . . . Cecil B. De Mille was the first producer to insist on wigs of real hair in "The Squaw Man." . . .Up to then heroes and heroines wore wigs made of horsehair and upholstery moss and looked like something the couch dragged in.

Is it true what they say about Hepburn? It all depends on what they're saying about Ka-K-atie, because I've just returned from the preview of "Holiday." If they say she is one of the three greatest American movie actresses it's true what they say about Hepburn. If they say that she has the most expressive face on the screen it's true what they say about Hepburn.

In this picture Hepburn, with her back to the wall, delivers one of the finest performances of her career, on a par with "Stage Door," and Cary Grant was never better. You'll get a deep thrill from the comeback of Lew Ayres as all of us did at the preview, who vaults back into big time brackets over night after being kicked around out here too long. This is one picture that the independent theater owners will book—and like it.

There are no Chinamen employed at Grauman's Chinese theater. . . . In fact, there's no Grauman. . . . Marie Dressler's footprints are still covered by the box office, incidentally, the sorriest jibe at showmanship I've ever encountered. . . . P. T. Barnum and Tex Rickard would turn over in their graves at such minor league blundering. . . . Mr. Moto has never met Judge Hardy or the Jones family. . . . And Charlie Chan ignores all of them.

Corn is this week's specialty at Bob Cobb's restaurant. . . . Garden of Allah is a local apartment house. . . . A motorcycle cop arrested Casting Director Lew Schreiber just to hear his squawky voice.

After the final papers Antoinette Spitzer will become Mrs. Nunnally Johnson. . . . He is a humorist. . . . The Ritz Brothers' real name is Joachim. . . . Eeney Joachim, Meenie Joachim, and Moe Joachim. . . . Joe E. Lewis parodies "Thanks for the Memory" this way: "You always were a headache, and you'll always be a bore."

Add unimportant recollections: I know people named April, May, June, and August. . . . And February has 28. . . . The winning frog at Calaveras jumped 15 feet; explained later that his owner had given him a hot foot. . . . Most remarkable athletic feat in recent years is that of Joe Di Maggio, who has been hitting above .400 since joining the Yanks. . . . Randolph Scott, described as a Texan, is from No'th Carolina, suh.

Benny Goodman's two clarinets are made from the same tree that mothered Charlie McCarthy. . . . Which explains why Charlie hasn't got arms. . . . A Chicagoan writes to learn if Edgar Bergen is much of a Romeo. [Write direct to Shirley Ross, honey.] . . . If a man answers the letter it's Ken Murray.

Mitchell and Durant were one of the topline acrobatic rough house acts, but split up. Jack Durant now does impersonations of Gable, Herbert Marshal, and Paul Muni that stamp him as one of the greatest mimics in his field. . . . This solves the problem of what to do with acrobats. . . . Now we've got to decide what to do with mimics. . . . The whole thing is a vicious circle.

Father and son combinations which have clicked in films outnumber the mother and daughter combinations by 5 to 1. . . . More sisters score solidly in films than combinations of brothers. . . . In the matter of adoptions, girl babies top boy babies in a ratio of 35 to 27. . . . Of the eight towns named Warner in the United States, not one of them has a police department as large as that of Warner's studios in Burbank. . . . Although the slogan of that town is "Bank on Burbank," there is no bank in Burbank.

Actresses' feet are growing longer. [Ten years ago the average girl's foot in the films hit size 4; today the average is size 5½.] . . . Seven out of every twenty Hollywood celebs who are rushed to local hospitals require appendix operations. [That really hits a new low in unimportant news, and I am very happy.] . . . Fashion designers and makeup experts of the movies are men.

Bishop Sheil to Be Head of National C Y O

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, founder and sponsor of the Catholic Youth Organization, last night was slated to become the national leader of that organization which yesterday took on virtually every aspect of a national youth movement. This at least was the unanimous belief of representative youth leaders of sixty-five dioceses who met yesterday at the Palmer house.

When the C. Y. O. was founded only local organization was contemplated, but Bishop Sheil's program for Chicago has spread from city to city until national organization now is demanded.

Following Bishop Sheil's general program the Rev. William M. Delaney of Providence, R. I., described the responsibilities of the national C. Y. O. as being rectangular in form, the four sides being cultural, social, athletic, and spiritual.

Bishop Sheil read a message to the conference from Cardinal Mundelein. It pointed the grave responsibilities created by the inability of young people to find employment.

Delegates will attend the International Golden Gloves boxing contests tonight at the Chicago Stadium. Four of the ten members of the Chicago team are C. Y. O. members.

The Boys Clubs of America, Inc., held the second day's session of the thirty-second annual convention of the organization at the Stevens hotel. The 500 boys' club directors of the country heard that while male leadership for boys' work predominates, yet there is a place for the feminine hand.

Miss Okie Baugus, 543 Wellington avenue, said that boys often regard men as austere and dignified, hard to talk to.

"But boys associate women with their mother or teachers who have guided them through school," she said. "They'll talk to a woman."

WEDDING

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Mary Fogg, daughter of John William Fogg of 6460 Minerva avenue, to O. C. Davis of Louisville will take place on June 18 in the First Presbyterian church of Chicago. After a wedding trip to Canada Mr. Davis and his bride will live in Louisville.

Double Debut Opens Festival on North Shore

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The biggest vernal music project of the Chicago district got triumphantly under way last night, although spring, who was to have been the guest of honor, sulked behind clouds all day and evening. Enough people rolled toward Evanston through the rainy, leafy streets of the north shore suburbs to fill Patten gymnasium to a large percentage of its capacity before the hour scheduled for the first concert of the Evanston Music festival had arrived.

A few minutes after 8:30 the huge curtain which covered the eastern end of the gymnasium parted to reveal the Chicago Symphony orchestra already in place on the platform. Behind it great banks of humanity, the men and women of the festival chorus, reached ceilingward. Before one had a chance to absorb the picture Frederick Stock brought orchestra, chorus, and audience to their feet with the first notes of "The Star Spangled Banner."

The most important item on the program and the one which immediately succeeded the performance of the national anthem was Arthur Honegger's symphonic psalm, "King David."

This work is interesting enough in itself, even without the added excitement of a double debut which last evening's presentation offered. Here is bold music which goes its appointed way irrespective of what any one may think of the methods used. The story of the ancient Israelitish king from his days as a shepherd, through the encounter with Goliath, the revolt of Absalom, the crowning of his son Solomon, and of his own death—all of this is told in music of such impressiveness and power that a listener is forced to concede to Honegger the privilege which belongs to any authentic creative artist—the privilege of choosing his own forms.

Sturdily clashing chords, bright yellow splashes of brass, imperious rhythms, oddly intervaled melodies—these and similar characteristics give "King David" its strange Old Testament quality and its refreshing newness. This surely is as interesting a combination of qualities as the most hardened festivalgoer could require.

The double debut mentioned referred to Agnes Davis, eastern concert soprano, and Bruna Castagna, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera association of New York. The former sang the atrociously difficult parts allotted to her by the composer in a voice which boasts a reasonable amount of warmth and roundness as well as a really remarkable agility. Sometimes the score demands that the soprano carry her oddly contoured part over a forte in the chorus. Problems such as this Miss Davis met with beautiful surety and musicianship.

Miss Castagna did not seem in "King David" the deep and sultry voiced contralto we had expected. However, she had plenty of warmth in her voice and a fine drama in her delivery.

William Miller, resident tenor, acquitted himself magnificently in "King David." A lyrical persuasiveness which always stopped short of exaggeration marked all of his brief solo bits.

Mark Love, as the narrator, retained a biblical seriousness and dignity in his work despite all the temptations for unctuousness which the part offers. Several incidental speaking parts fell to his lot, including the Witch of Endor. To this characterization he gave his all.

The chorus sang with sureness and with considerable beauty of tone, especially in the magnificent "Alleluia." There was an attractive, organlike breathiness in the women's voices, a rugged strength in the men's. Keep-

A New Sun Hat in Cellophane

This summer sun hat is nothing more or less than a disc of transparent cellophane in either green or amber tint. Through the twin slits in the exact center is a band of plain white jersey or printed material to match a dress.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Glamor note for the oily haired: There's a divine new hair perfume out that will serve you as both a dressing and a fragrance. It also deodorizes natural oil and perspiration of the scalp.

This is in the nature of a godsend to women with excessively oily hair, which always is difficult to manage and which can't be dressed with brilliantine. It's a nonolly liquid, with a light bouquet fragrance that is just the type of scent that should be used on hair. Hair doesn't lend itself well to regular perfumes since it has a natural scent of its own that often conflicts.

An atomizer comes with each bottle of this—a very good point, since the perfume can be sprayed evenly and lightly. The clean, lemony scent is an excellent choice for summer. What's more, this hair perfume helps keep the waves and curls in place. It isn't expensive and you'll find it in one or two shops.

Incidentally the makers of this perfume can help you out if yours is the sort of hair that doesn't thrive in the sun. Before you go in for sun bathing or take off on your vacation you can arm yourself with one or two preparations that will serve as a hair protective.

You'll save yourself the price of a flock of reconditioning treatments in the fall and you'll find that your usual autumn permanent will have a much better chance of being successful. Hair, like thin skins, can be damaged by exposure to the sun. Use of a pomade sometimes is helpful—but what you really need depends pretty much on the kind of hair you have.

Printed Silks Will Be Smart on Warm Days

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There's a flurry in prints, clever silk prints so summery and smooth and cool that few can resist them. The colors are exceptionally interesting, the dove gray made crisp with white accents, the dark tones cooled down with white or powdery pastels, and the exotic mixups of strong colors that are smarter than ever before.

The dresses are simple with accentuated waistlines, with shirrings down the short sleeves, and the bodices molded to the body. Most of the skirts are form fitting in outline, with pleats and fullness worked into long lines that keep the streamlines smooth.

White dots against all background colors from dark to pastel are still the freshest and coolest models to be found. Sometimes a patent lether belt is used in vivid color such as vermilion, old gold, or emerald green.

Floral prints are small, precise, and easy to wear; they are the kind that do not spread the figure, and despite the hectic or torrid colorings they are amazingly cool looking.

Printed silk ensembles are plentiful, but they're going out fast. Short hip length jackets swing smartly over plaited skirts, or long coats over matching printed silk dresses with the nipped-in waistlines. Again the smartest prints are small, cool, and crisp, flashing against such stunning background colors as copper, deep forest green, navy, sapphire blue, and the always good black.

White is introduced, as cooling trim, in long bands that streak down the front, in flowers, at the lapel, cuffs and belts. If you crave a stunning silk print to keep you dressed up all summer select your outfit now, while the newest models are hanging around ready for immediate wear.

Fashion photograph . . . a new sun hat for beach lounging or wear with summer linens and cottons as well as dark silk jerseys. The transparent cellophane disc comes in either cool green or amber. A band of printed cotton or white jersey is pulled through the twin slits in the center of the cellophane circle and then tied around the head. It's smart, new, and just what a summer wardrobe needs. The price is around $3, making it the find of the week for a limited budgeteer.

Unfamiliar Faces

SYNOPSIS.

Elizabeth Sandal is shocked to find her two children resent their father's will that unexpectedly left a fortune to her and did not mention them. Dorothea wants to have her own London flat. Oliver hopes to marry into wealth. Elizabeth goes off to Switzerland for a change and rest, and meets Andrew Leicester, who was a groom at her wedding. Andrew, a widower, is returning after years of absence in China to meet his children. William, his son, lives with a bachelor relative. His daughter, Shirley, is with his wife's people. Shirley has become involved in a scandal with an aviator who was engaged to another girl. Her mother's family, so they have written Andrew, can do nothing with her. Andrew hopes to have it out with Shirley before becoming involved with his in-laws. Shirley believes the older generation are all against her, and treats him coolly. Andrew turns to Elizabeth for sympathy. She tries to make friends with the boy and girl.

INSTALMENT XV.

COMPANIONSHIP.

Sitting on the table, looking down on his sister's head, William thought of the old days.

"Duguid was asking for you the other day," he said.

The head shot up.

"Not really, William? Give the old lamb my love. . . . Here's a thought; when our cash turns up let's buy him something. He'd be tickled to death . . . we might be able to run to a watch."

"That's an idea," agreed William.

. . . . . .

Elizabeth met the Leicesters at the train, remarking that she had ordered lunch at the Eden for 1 o'clock. "For I daresay you and your sister are a good deal more energetic than we are likely to be," she said to William, "and in case we miss you I should hate you to starve."

The hint was taken with alacrity, and Andrew smiled.

"A perfect hostess by general consent. You haven't repented your rash offer of last night? . . . You are looking actually less tired, you know, Elizabeth."

"Indeed I am," she replied gayly. "I've heard from my family this morning. The house is still standing, neither of them is ill or dying, and the maids have not decamped. Isn't that wonderful?"

"I don't believe it. You must have been misinformed."

They strolled off companionably together, not troubling to keep the others in sight, and neither much inclined to take very seriously the points of interest in Montreux.

The letters from home had made Elizabeth happy because they had been written rather than for anything they told her. Indeed, their very brevity—Oliver's hurried note and Dorothea's instructions about things she ought to see—were to her a reassuring proof of a relationship beyond need of words or protestations. If she had no deeper reassurance, at least the shadow of estrangement from them was lifted.

The harmony of this transitory reunion with Andrew Leicester had also done more for her than she was likely to realize all at once. By walking in upon her with his problem at the moment when she had too much leisure for the first time in years to think of her own he had restored her balance and removed the sense of isolation from common experience which in her moments of worst depression had beset her.

She had seen herself at that point in a woman's life where her children leave her and her job is done. That their leaving her was natural and inevitable she knew, but the desolation of the future had been frightening.

In this state Andrew Leicester's dependence upon her, though he proclaimed it selfish, was a restorative to her lost confidence. He was widely traveled and, however inexperienced and perplexed as a parent, a pleasant and amusing companion.

He gave her an account of his sister-in-law Jay as seen by his various correspondents, with a few choice extracts from the lady herself, without a smile, and her first dubious question amused him highly.

"Is she like your wife?"

"Great heavens above, no! Do I look the kind of man to marry a book of Familiar Quotations?"

"Then," admitted Elizabeth, laughing, "I can safely say she sounds a public danger."

"Exactly. A good heart which so often accompanies a silly tongue. I wonder why . . ." He broke off, relishing less than ever the prospect of his mother-in-law's house, even for the shortest time he could contrive to remain there without giving serious offense.

"Do you know Geneva, or would it amuse you to go across and look around tomorrow?" he suddenly asked. "If this weather continues it should be pleasant on the lake."

"But you have been there already. They will want something fresh, won't they?"

"Well, let 'em find it for themselves, the young devils," exclaimed Andrew. "Do them good to be ignored for a change. Does Geneva appeal to you?"

"Yes, I should enjoy it," she replied.

"Then that's settled. You play golf, I suppose? I believe we might get some at Lausanne."

"I haven't played for years," protested Elizabeth.

"Then it is high time you did . . . unless it would be too much for you?"

"Thank you for the opportunity to hide my incompetence. I must think about it." She was looking amused. "After all, you did come away to get to know your children."

"Optimistic, wasn't it?"

"But you are satisfied with William at least?" she pleaded, perhaps as much for her own reassurance as his, and not wishing to admit the contention.

He confessed that there seemed no harm in William, and he supposed he must be grateful for small mercies. He was even willing to hope her theories about the girl were sound, though privately recalling that this did not eliminate the confounded nuisance of the Mortimers and their expectations.

If Shirley was so linked to her aunt he would have to leave her there, he supposed, and take himself to bachelor quarters in London. Making his retirement purposeless. Damn those women! He had rather looked forward to having a small place of his own and the youngsters with him. Marriage? To the kind of woman like this one, who would be an intelligent companion, perhaps, but they did not grow on every tree.

However, here they both were, marking time, she to get over her loss, he at the heels of his children, and they might as well amuse each other.

William and Shirley arrived at the rendezvous before the others and walked up and down, viewing the hotel with interest. It was a far cry from the coffee stall of their first morning together and they were beginning to feel pleasantly cosmopolitan.

Moreover, the financial recklessness which had marked the beginning of their travels had had to be curbed, and a free lunch was a gift from heaven. Their quarterly allowance was overdue and their fortunes now at so low an ebb that exhaustive calculations had to precede every excursion made alone, in order to eke out the money until help arrived. To "borrow" from their father presented certain embarrassments, and they preferred to stave off the evil hour.

Elizabeth, as soon as the quartet was complete, led the girl off to find a dressing room where they could wash and tidy up.

"I am not staying here, but at a much smaller place," she explained. "I thought this would be more amusing."

"O," said Miss Leicester.

Elizabeth had hoped to engage the elusive young woman in talk, but this did not promise much more success than usual.

"How fatuous they make one feel," she thought with a mixture of amusement and indignation, and she wondered if this attitude of lofty scorn were not an integral part of the post-war struggle because family life had been split asunder like the world itself. There had been Andrew, forced to leave his children in order to maintain them, and she so tied to the domestic scene and Robert's moodiness that in pity for their youth she had encouraged hers to make their pleasures away from home.

Physical Care Is Important at the Teen Age

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

If we knew as much about the physical side of adolescence as we do about the physical side of babyhood, it would be a great boon to our sons and daughters in their teens, and to us who are their parents.

I mention babyhood and adolescence in the same breath because, although so far apart, they are the two times of fastest growth in the life of a human being. That much we do know about adolescence.

We know also that this is frequently a time of uneven growth and development. The muscles, for instance, don't always keep pace with the bones—you know the big very young fellow who's shot up so fast he has no endurance at all.

"Fits and starts" of first this part of the body and then that characterize the growth and development of many young people. [This is not true of all, however, as some do pass smoothly and evenly through these years.] That this unevenness ties up with temporary personality phases is inevitable.

The young boy mentioned in yesterday's letter had had a prolonged illness, had lost weight, and was not eating well. This below par physical condition would surely have some effect on his spirits and reaction to life generally, and so might partly account for his moodiness. This lad should have special rest and perhaps certain vitamins in concentrated form given under a doctor's direction, and a building up by excellent food and "Understanding the Adolescent" is a booklet helpful to parents and teachers. It will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Seven Thousand Brave Bad Weather to Pay Honor to Leif Eriksen

The annual Leif Eriksen celebration was held yesterday at the Eriksen monument in Humboldt park, and some 7,000 persons attended in spite of the inclement weather. The observance, sponsored by the Norwegian National league, opened with a parade from Artesian and North Hoyne avenues to the monument, where speakers included Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court. The group then adjourned to Harms woods for further celebration. Trafic was re-routed during the early afternoon to permit parking near the monument.

Two-Piece Frock for Summer

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

The indispensable "two-piecer" makes its bow again for summer, but it has taken on new dash. Picture the dainty version at the left in a candy pastel linen, with harmonizing or matching braid for trim. The cap sleeves are cut in one with the shoulders. The neckline is high and collarless and the bodice buttons down the front. Two plaited pockets are a new idea. The skirt is regulation in both styling and comfort, with its seam down the front and its inverted "action" plait.

The same frock may take to a trim collar, if you like, and omit the pockets. This version is attractive in a polka-dotted or embroidered dark cotton or linen. There is no end to the practicality inherent in both these versions. They will serve you well all summer long, and last until you go south next winter.

Style No. 2899 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yards of braid for the collarless version.

Babson Leads Rump Meeting of His Church

Dedham, Mass., May 17. —(AP)— Roger Babson, national moderator of the Congregational church, in a church rented for him by friends at the state conference of the denomination, today demanded "the wings" of the organization's national headquarters "be clipped."

Declaring he had been denied the floor in the local Congregational church, by the state meeting, the Wellesley statistician led several hundred ministers and lay leaders across the street to the Unitarian church and shouted his charges that:

The headquarters in New York had persecuted ministers in their private affairs, kept down ministers' salaries, avoided responsibility, and has been dominated by persons acting in their own interests.

National headquarters should be "liquidated," he said.

On the conference floor, two of Babson's charges were denied by leaders in the church.

The Housewife

The housewife will be glad to know that she doesn't have to take along her china cups on the next family picnic. It's a nuisance to wash them after a supper in the woods, yet more of a nuisance to bring them back wet and sticky.

To solve this problem there are special hot drink paper cups that come with handles. The handles fold back against the cup and need not be used, of course, with a cold drink. But they are convenient for hot tea or coffee. And a whole package of them costs little. EDITH WEIGLE.

Soft custard, like medium white sauce, is a fundamental part of cookery. Many desserts are made with a custard base, and a soft custard alone is one of the simplest, most healthful, and most attractive desserts one can serve a family.

I like to serve it with a dinner I must get in a hurry, because it's so easy to make and because the ingredients always are at hand. Various fresh, dried, or canned fruits, nuts, coconut, cookie or cake crums, sponge cake or lady fingers may be included in the dessert glass to lend interest to soft custard when it's served often.

BUSY WOMAN'S QUICK DINNER
Ham Steaks with Pears
Buttered New Potatoes
Cooked Chicory in Lemon and Butter
Roquefort Tomato Slices on Watercress with French Dressing
Hard Rolls [Bakery]
Soft Custard with Orange Sections.
Coffee

Ham Steaks with Pears.

[Serves Four.]

4 small ham steaks, cut 1 inch thick
1 8-ounce can pears
1 teaspoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon cold water
Cinnamon, cloves

Fry ham quickly on both sides and place on ovenproof platter. Add the juice from the pears to the frying pan. Mix cornstarch with water and add, with a sprinkling of cloves and cinnamon. Heat to boiling and cook gently, stirring to keep smooth, for several minutes. Arrange pears around ham and place under the broiling unit to heat through. Four sauce around ham and serve.

COOKED CHICORY IN LEMON AND BUTTER.

Cut off root from a head of chicory and separate the leaves. Wash thoroughly and cook in boiling, salted water 15 minutes, or until tender. Drain, cut across several times with a knife, and add three tablespoons butter and the juice of a lemon. Add more salt if needed.

To make the salad, spread sliced tomatoes thinly with Roquefort cheese and arrange on beds of watercress. Top with French dressing.

Soft Custard with Orange Sections.

[Serves Four.]

2 cups milk
3 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla

Scald milk in the top part of a double boiler. Beat eggs with sugar and salt until well mixed, and add the hot milk slowly, stirring well in order to blend before egg has time to cook in particles. Return the mixture to the double boiler and stir over low heat. Do not let the water in the lower compartment boil. Too high heat will cause curdling. The water should be just below the boiling point. Cook and stir until a spoon inserted into the custard is coated. Add vanilla and turn out to cool. Custard thickens more upon cooling. Remove membrane from orange sections and place several in each dessert glass. Pour the custard over them. Dates, nuts, sliced bananas, strawberries, or other fruit may be served with custard in this way.

According to CULBERTSON

SKITTISH HORSES.

[Copyright: 1038: By Ely Culbertson.]

Some hands remind me of skittish horses—they simply cannot be handled by any proved method. I am not referring merely to freak hands; it is the normal distributions that often create the most difficult bidding problems. Consider the dilemma in which North and South found themselves in the following deal:

South, dealer.
Team-of-four match.
North-South vulnerable.

WEST
♠ K 8
♥ Q J 10 5 2
♦ Q J 10 6
♣ Q 9

EAST
♠ Q 7 4 3 2
♥ K 9 6 3

SOUTH
♠ 10 9 6
♥ A 8
♦ A K 7 5 3
♣ 8 5 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	1 heart	2 clubs	2 hearts
Pass	Pass	?

I have not completed the bidding in the above sequence, but have inserted a question mark at North's second bidding opportunity. What would you, dear reader, bid on North's hand at that point? Just between you and me, there is no perfect nor even good bid available to North! The most that North can do is to choose the least of many evils. Let us run over all the conceivable calls that North now can make. He can bid three clubs; he can bid four clubs; he can bid two no trump, or he can even possibly double for penalties. He cannot raise diamonds with only the four and deuce as support. He must not even consider jumping to four no trump under the four-five no trump convention merely because he has two aces and the king of a bid suit. At this stage he hasn't the remotest idea whether he can make even game in clubs, let alone a slam. For all he knows, South may have a singleton club.

Well, let us consider the respective virtues of the conceivable calls mentioned. Three clubs is much too weak a bid. South will feel that North is just sparring with the opponents, attempting to outbid them for a part-score; that he has a good club suit, but little, if anything, else. Four clubs is better, but it has the defect of passing the three no trump level which may be the salvation of the hand. Two no trump is not bad if we can overlook the fact that North has no sign of a stopper in the adversely bid suit, hearts. He can, of course, assume that South probably has a heart stopper as part of his original bid, but there is nothing sure about this. South might easily hold the A-K of diamonds and A-Q of spades and not a spot in hearts.

There is one other bid highly unconventional and therefore not mentioned among the conceivable bids which North can make—i. e.: two spades on a three-card suit. This is dangerous and open to misinterpretation. If South holds four spades he may insist on game in that suit and North will find himself playing with only seven trumps.

Weighing all these objections, it appears that North's best solution is to bid four clubs. Three no trump, if bid, probably would depend on a good break in the club suit, and if that break did not materialize the defeat might be severe—i. e.: the opponents might run a great many heart tricks. If five clubs fail, the loss should be comparatively small. [It must be noted that the four club bid is not an absolute force; that South with a weak hand and a singleton club is permitted to pass.] On the cards actually held South would raise four clubs to five, and with the 2-2 trump break the contract would be a laydown. In fact, had diamonds broken as well, an extra trick would be there for the taking.

Good Morning!

Here is propaganda in its lighter vein.

"Lonely White Sail," a soviet film, tells the story of two small boys who save a Potemkin sailor from discovery by White Russian officers who yern to sniff his Red life out.

The tale is developed with intelligence and considerable humor and you will delight in the naturalness of the two youngsters who play the leads, particularly he known as Igor. I understand that they are not professionals but grammar school lads chosen for their likeness to the characters they portray. . . . Supporting them is a cast of able and older players.

The film is an adaptation of a novel and is interestingly staged and costumed. Its English titles are rather less stilted than is usual with those accompanying movies from the soviet studios.

KIND: Comedy drama, using as subject the decline of vaudeville's popularity.

ACTING: Excellent. A glance at the cast names will reassure you as to that.

DIALOG: Right snappy.

PHOTOGRAPHY, SOUND et TRIMMINGS: Okeh.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: "Goodbye Broadway" will hand the not too demanding movie fan an hour's agreeable diversion.

See you soon.

Double Debut Opens Festival on North Shore

ing the whole performance superbly alive and moving was Frederick Stock on the conductor's stand. The amply contoured phrases, which are a feature of his musical style, were movingly in evidence in the chorus mentioned above.

After the intermission came a miscellaneous program in which Miss Castagna gave a new conception of the breadth of her powers in two excerpts from "Carmen" and "O Mio Fernando" from "La Favorita."

Here is an artist who combines surety of musicianship with a vast gift for communication.

The second concert of the festival comes tomorrow evening, the third and fourth on Saturday afternoon and evening.

ARRIVE IN FURS

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

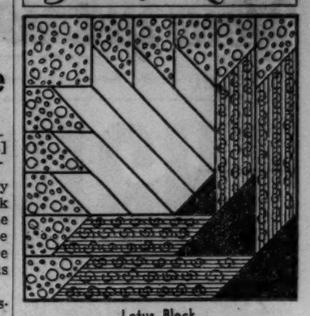
It looked for a time last night as though those who were planning to attend the opening concert of the Evanston Music festival would have to use boats instead of motor cars. However, by the time the doors were opened at 8 o'clock it had cleared sufficiently so that the first of the hundreds of cars that brought the audience from north, south, and west could start depositing their occupants at the doors of the Northwestern university gymnasium.

The moment one stepped inside the rain was forgotten, for there, greeting every one with pleasant smiles and armloads of programs, were some of the Evanston Junior league's prettiest members, among them the Misses Jane Hoover, Prudence and Ruth Johnson, Barbara Berry and Dorothea Wing, and Mrs. Thornton Snead, Mrs. Joseph Hibben, and Mrs. Rudolph Ruggles. They all were in filmy summer evening gowns with no wraps, giving the illusion of a warm spring evening, but the fur coats worn by many others in evening gowns were more in keeping with the weather.

Mrs. Horace A. Armstrong was wrapped in ermine and her daughter, Miss Jean Armstrong, wore a mink coat, when they entered with Mr. Armstrong. Mrs. John C. Slade kept warm in silver foxes and so did Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed. Mrs. Rogers Follansbee, who with Mr. Follansbee was with her parents, the Sewell Averys, wore a short ermine coat, and Mrs. A. Charles Goodrich wore black velvet, very effective with her premature white hair and lovely complexion.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Mills held a sort of reception in their box during the intermission and so did the Walter Dill Scotts. Mr. Mills is president of the festival association and Mr. Scott, of course, is Northwestern's president.

TODAY'S QUILT



Lotus Block.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Lotus Block" first was pieced, at the turn of the century, in the loveliest and most unusual material for a coverlet. Bright, gay, printed flannel was the medium of expression for the graceful flower. The interesting feature of this original quilt is that no two blocks were identical. Every possible color and combination were used, yet the blocks were set together in the most artistic arrangement. They were small, measuring 10 inches square. Present day preference in quilts sets the "Lotus Block" together in an alternate arrangement with plain blocks.

Head G-Man Calls on Women to Whip Our Crime Problem

BY BETTY BROWNING.

Kansas City, Mo., May 17.—[Special.]—The crime problem can be solved if women will arouse the public to consciousness of its danger, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, told members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at the closing session of the triennial convention tonight.

Mr. Hoover predicted that at the present rate three of every four homes will be affected by a major crime within the next few years.

"There are over 3½ times more criminals than there are students in our colleges and universities," Mr. Hoover summarized. "Every man, woman, and child in America pays an annual crime bill of nearly $120."

Mr. Hoover called the parole system as it is administered in many communities a major cause of crime.

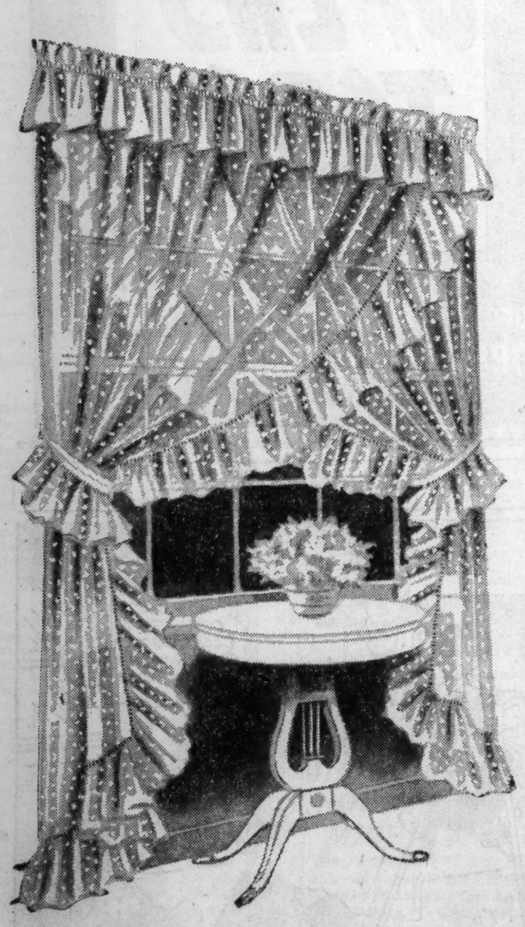
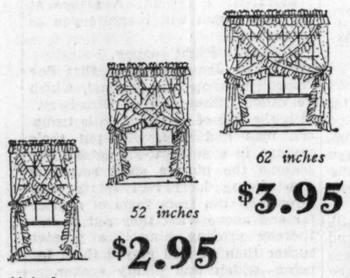
Proportioned PRISCILLAS





$2.45 $2.95 $3.95

It's only good sense to proportion individual curtains to individual windows—which we've done by making the same Priscilla curtain in three different widths. Now the wide window and the narrow window in your living room will look exactly the same—an effect you could never achieve when the same curtain had to hang at windows of different widths. All three Proportioned Priscillas—the 44 inch, 52 inch and 62 inch—are 2½ yards long with picoted triple full ruffles, back hems, and bone rings. In pin dot or cushion dot marquisette in white, ivory or champagne.

GIANTS WHIP CUBS, 6-5, IN 12TH ON LESLIE'S SINGLE

MARTY'S HOMER WITH 2 ON TIES SCORE IN SIXTH

Four Pitchers Fail to Stop Champions.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 17.—The Cubs and the champion Giants, always the best of enemies, staged another of their time honored brawls on the Polo Grounds today, much to the invaders' chagrin. The title holders, who seem to have what it takes when the pressure is on, came up with a run in the twelfth inning to send the Chicagoans sprawling into defeat, 6 to 5, before 19,315.

The finishing touch was applied after a few crowded moments in which Mr. Bill Terry endeavored to outguess Mr. Charles Grimm and vice versa. Clay Bryant, who had served ably as a rescuer of Tex Carleton since the first inning, walked Mel Ott. Hank Leiber furnished a sacrifice. Bob Logan was assigned to southpaw to John McCarthy, but walked him. Wallie Berger was announced as hitting for Lou Chiozza. Whereupon the Cub manager summoned Jack Russell, a right hander. Manager Terry promptly substituted Sam Leslie for Berger. And Leslie singled to center, sending Ott home with the deciding run

Bryant Does Well.

The Cubs started off in a manner that indicated they had escaped from the slump which engulfed them during their home stay. They scored a couple of runs in the first inning off Cliff Melton, who still has a record of six victories and no defeats. That two run advantage was short lived. The champions routed Carleton in the first inning before any one was retired. Bryant then came into action and the big boy pitched eleven amazing innings in which there was only one setback. The setback was two runs in the fifth.

If Joe Marty had not made correct measurements of the skimpy field, the Cubs would have succumbed in regulation time. After Bryant's momentary decline in the fifth, the Chicagoans were trailing by 5 to 2. Marty adjusted this unhappy situation in the sixth. With two of his mates on base he slapped a homer into the seats. This created a tie and also completed the Cubs' scoring for the day, even though they had the bases filled with none out in the twelfth.

Cubs Take Early Lead.

Ott did a tumbling act on Hack's grounder in the first inning and the miscue gave the Cubs a start on their two run lead. Hack went to second on Herman's roller and stayed there while Collins was flying to Leiber. Lazzeri immediately revived memories of '36 and '37 world series by doubling to right, scoring Hack. Galan looped a single over short and Tony scored. Melton lifted himself out of the jam by picking up a gentle tap by Marty.

SOX (REMEMBER THEM?) RAINED OUT ONCE AGAIN

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Arnica and rain, splints and mud, pip and precipitation but no runs, hits or errors. So continues to run the chronicle of the White Sox, an organization once engaged in the baseball business.

You have been told all along that every postponement made the White Sox happy even if each postponement does mean a double-header later on. But really the rainmaker is beginning to dverdo the idea. When yesterday's scheduled opener with the Boston Red Sox was called off the players showed signs of getting a wee bit jumpy at this, the seventh postponement in ten days, their fourth successive day off and their sixth day off in seven, counting Monday's scheduled open date, which was nice and sunshiny.

Big John Will Pitch if—

Unsettled weather and showers is the forecast for today. If this doesn't come to pass, and the teams actually can play baseball, John Whitehead will pitch for the White Sox and Jack Wilson for the Red Sox, these being the gents deprived of the privilege of exhibiting their skill yesterday. Whitehead will be after his second victory of the season, his first having been accomplished just a month ago tomorrow, when he vanquished the Tigers in the season opener.

One month seems like a long time between victories but no other Sox pitcher is in a position to hiss Big John. There isn't a Sox pitcher, you know, who has won two games, although the team has been successful eight times. Moreover, John hasn't been the loser in any games during said month and has the added distinction of having protected a lead for Monty Stratton in the last game the Sox played, way back last Friday.

Eight Twin Bills.

Though the Sox now are confronted with eight double-headers in addition to those normally scheduled, yesterday's washout afforded only the second future bargain for Chicago fans.

Here's the Sox weather log just in case you like to get the sensation of rain splashing in your face: After

BY ARCH WARD.

ALONG about 9:45 tonight two white beams will break out from the balconies of Chicago Stadium and spotlight the first of the seven flags representing the nations involved in the seventh annual International Golden Gloves bouts. . . . A few minutes later there will be a quick shrill of the whistle, the deep clang of the Stadium bell, and the greatest amateur boxing tournament in the world will be off to its thrilling and dramatic finish. . . . Before a capacity crowd of 21,000 the young men who fight for fun, assembled from widely separated parts of the world, will battle it out for the International Golden Gloves championships of 1938. . . . It's a long way from that night in early February when the thousands of boys seeking the richest prize in their favorite sport began banging one another around a west side neighborhood ring in the hope eventually they would arrive at the spot Chicago's standard bearers find themselves tonight. . . . Those of us who have lived with Golden Gloves for the last four months find ourselves emotionally exhausted by what we have seen. . . . Victory by knockouts, victory by defaults, victory by hairline decisions, victory by margins so slight that it seemed unfair to eliminate either boy, but always victory and that tremendous striving to win. . . .

Every one of the thousands of bouts has had its rooting interest. . . . The participants came from Rockford, Minneapolis, Davenport, Cleveland, Omaha, and 300 other midwestern cities, from Rome, Naples, Berlin, Paris, Dublin, Stockholm, Helsingfors, Warsaw, Budapest, and many, many more cities thousands of miles from the scene of tonight's combat. . . . There always was some one you wanted to see win. . . . In one instance, at Deutschland hall in Berlin, we actually came to our feet yelling like the most fanatical collegiate partisan for Ulderico Sergo of Italy when he whipped Miholy Bondi of Hungary, one of Europe's greatest bantamweights, in the finals of the All-European tournament a couple of weeks ago. . . . There's something about the guy that thrills us. . . . He's at his best when the going is toughest, like Notre Dame at Minnesota or Babe Ruth in a world series. . . .

The sixteen young men, eight from Europe and eight from the United States, who will engage in the championship part of tonight's show, are the best of 75,000 who sought this goal. . . . More than 50,000 actually participated in the various European tournaments which climaxed in the finals in Berlin April 29. . . . THE TRIBUNE meet drew more than 23,000. . . . Chicago already has defeated New York, so, with the possible exception of a faint protest from Argentina, the winning team can claim world supremacy. . . . When this department suggested that Europe pool its boxing resources to meet Chicago a year ago, many who have had experience in international sport predicted it never would be accomplished because of national differences among the countries of the old world. . . . The developments have been just the reverse. . . . There has been no difficulty whatever. . . . Nations whose guns from time to time have been aligned against each other buried political strife and have pulled together with a spirit that still has statesmen blinking. . . . Golden Gloves, founded on fighting, has brought peace and friendship, at least in international sport. . . .

We are grateful, indeed, for the splendid coöperation we have received from the International Boxing federation, as well as from the Central Amateur Athletic Union of the United States. . . . Our personal thanks to the gentlemen from Europe who are with us to direct their fighters—Oscar Soderlund of Sweden, Arthur Kankovszky of Hungary, Dr. Franz Metzner of Germany, and Count Gerardo Leonardi of Italy. . . . You can look the world over without finding truer sportsmen.

Aloha Oe, Until We Meet Again, in the same spirit that prevails in the 1938 Golden Gloves!

Ten Years Ago Today—Mrs. John D. Hertz's Reigh Count was an 8 to 5 favorite to win the fifty-fourth running of the Kentucky Derby. . . . An estimated crowd of 80,000 was expected to watch the Derby run in ankle deep mud. . . . Kiki Cuyler's home run helped Chicago's Cubs defeat Boston, 3 to 1, for their twelfth straight victory.

RAIN HALTS GOLF LESSON; WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The sixth annual free golf school conducted by THE TRIBUNE, never particularly fortunate in the weather conditions under which it has been held, last night came another atmospheric cropper. After the switchboard of THE TRIBUNE had been flooded with calls for a solid hour, it was decided to postpone the third lesson of the series, scheduled for last night, until tomorrow night, with the fourth and final class of the regular course, originally intended for tomorrow, set for Friday night.

The rain and the thick mist which descended upon the city at 5 o'clock last night were too much, it was agreed by the members of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association who were to conduct the classes at the four courses of the Chicago park district.

Class on Swing Tomorrow.

The same lesson, devoted to the first portion of the swing, as published in yesterday morning's TRIBUNE, will be given tomorrow night on the same four courses—Columbus, on the west side; Jackson park, on the south; Diversey in Lincoln, on the north, and Marquette, on the southwest.

Lew Waldron of Mohawk will be the lecturer at Columbus, Jock Anderson of Techny Fields at Diversey, Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley at Marquette, and Harry Adams of Elgin, who will register from Medinah this season, at Jackson park.

Each pupil is asked to be present about fifteen minutes before the starting time of each class, which is 7 p. m. If you missed the first two lessons last week, do not consider yourself barred from the school. The P. G. A. members conducting the classes will review the grip and stance, topics of the first and second sessions, at the lessons tomorrow and Friday.

Exchange Tickets on Open.

Exchange tickets for the Chicago open championship, to be played on Olympia Fields July 22, 23, and 24, will be distributed free at the classes tomorrow night. These give the golf fan a 25 cent reduction on all daily

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Europe challenges Chicago!

Tonight is the night. The Stadium is the place. And 21,000 spectators will watch the international drama.

World supremacy in amateur boxing is the stake.

Last year the champions of all Europe fought Chicago to a tie. Since then the nations across the Atlantic have waited patiently for another opportunity to meet the Golden Gloves champions of Chicagoland.

Europe now has assembled its greatest team. It is a team which its officials predict will whip the boys who two months ago proved their superiority over the Golden Glovers of New York.

You Can Get Tickets.

Every reserved seat for this seventh series of international battles has been sold. There remains, however, a chance for you to watch these epic bouts. Tonight at 8 o'clock 3,000 general admission tickets at 50 cents each will be placed on sale. If all are sold, Chicago, by its generous and enthusiastic support of amateur boxing, will establish a new world's indoor record for attendance.

Not even the quadrennial Olympic boxing competition can equal in rivalry the show Chicago is privileged to see. Chicago's visitors, best in the Berlin tournament in which eleven nations participated, face the eight Chicagoland representatives, chosen from a field of 23,000 who four months ago, in twenty-six states, started the annual quest of Golden Gloves.

Two Champions Return.

Europe again presents two of its 1936 Olympic champions, Ulderico Sergo of Fiume, Italy, and Herbert Runge of Germany.

Frankie Kainrath, captain of the Golden Gloves boys, who lost to Sergo last year, once more will attempt to halt the spectacular career of the 27 year old Italian.

Dan Merritt, hard hitting heavyweight from Cleveland, will meet Runge, who last year was knocked out in the first round of his international championship bout by that other great Cleveland heavyweight, Lem Franklin.

Merritt, the 1938 Golden Gloves winner and the champion of the National A. A. U., may be the one to decide the world team title.

How about Kainrath? It seems a legend that Sergo cannot be beaten has grown up. He whipped Johnny Brown in the international bouts with Italy in 1935, defeated Jackie Wilson for the Olympic title in 1936, and won from Kainrath last year. But, if you remember, Kainrath gave Sergo a great battle before losing the decision, and the record may be rewritten.

Nurnberg Tries Again.

Herbert Nurnberg of Germany is Europe's other representative who was here last year. Nurnberg defeated Ed Kozole of Detroit. This year he will face Milton Bess of Indianapolis, a sharper, harder puncher than was Kozole.

The other members of both teams are newcomers to this international

FEUD ON BOXING BOARD LEADS TO VOTE DEADLOCK

Triner and Fitzpatrick Widen Rift.

The rift between Chairman Joe Triner and Commissioner James R. Fitzpatrick of the Illinois Athletic commission became more pronounced at yesterday's meeting of the board as the two commissioners continued bickering over affairs of the commission.

As a consequence, Triner explained nothing of real importance can be decided upon until after a third member is appointed to fill the place of the late George Getz and break the deadlock which occurs nearly every time a vote is taken.

The Frankie Sagilio-Verne Patterson bout in Marigold Gardens next Monday is set for six rounds. It will serve as the semi-final to the ten round main event between Frankie [Kid] Covelli and Sammy Angott. . . . Joe Ojida, Ted Tanner's featherweight protégé, clashes with Bill Jefferson in the amateur show in Madison Athletic club Friday.

Two bouts of one hour each will top tonight's wrestling show in Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue. Jack Conley is paired with Jack [Bad Man] Brown, and Rudy Kay with Walter Palmer. Jerry Meeker faces Joe Corbett, Buck Jones opposes Rudy Strongberg, and Kid Chapman meets Buck O'Neil. . . . Max Marek, 1933 Chicago Golden Gloves light heavyweight titleholder, has accepted a ten round match with Buddy Knox in Sparta stadium June 3. . . . Milt Aron, west side welterweight challenger, took pictures of the Billy Celebron-Harold Brown battle in Marigold Monday. . . . Mrs. Issy Kline, wife of the Golden Gloves trainer, is being treated for head injuries received in an accident on a street car. . . .

Phil Collins, who refereed the first legalized fight in Illinois when he officiated at the lightweight title bout between Sammy Mandell and Rocky Kansas twelve years ago, also was third man when George Nichols won the light heavyweight crown by beating Dave Maier and Tony Canzoneri retained his lightweight and junior welterweight titles by dropping Jackie [Kid] Berg for the full count. . . . Ole Olson and Abie Kaplan have been added to the wrestling card featured by Pat McGill and Dick Stahl in Shewbridge field tomorrow. . . . Harry Thomas will be unable to accept a rematch with Russ Wasser in Minneapolis June 3 because of a prior engagement in St. Louis June 2.—F. M.

Champion Loses in British Women's Golf

BURNHAM-BY-SEA, England, May 17.—(AP)—Jessie Anderson of Scotland, the defending champion, was eliminated in the third round of the British women's golf tournament today by Mrs. R. T. Peel of England, 1 up. Another upset removed Pamela Barton, British and United States champion in 1936. Miss Barton, attempting a comeback after a year's illness, was beaten by Clarrie Tiernan of Ireland, 5 and 3.

Ohio Track Is Muddy for Big Ten Meet

Columbus, O., May 17.—[Special.]—The drying mud on the Ohio stadium track holds whatever doubt there may be to the outcome of the annual Western conference track meet, to be held in the stadium Friday and Saturday. Heavy rain has soaked the track every day since last Friday. The dual meet between Ohio State and the conference favorite, Michigan, was run off as pools of water covered the track Saturday.

Only two champions will defend their titles. They are Bill Watson, Michigan's colored star, who competes in the shotput, discus, and broad jump, and George Halcrow, Chicago, who will defend his quarter mile honors.

Lewis May Score.

Both will have plenty of competition, but the title most likely to change hands is that in the broad jump, in which Hubbard of Minnesota and Walker of Ohio State meet Watson.

A newcomer in track circles, Bob Lewis, Ohio State, took both the 100 yard and 220 yard dashes Saturday. He ran the 100 in 9.8 seconds. In the 220 yard he was timed at 21.2. If the track is dry Friday and Saturday he may win another pair of first places. With him alone, seemingly, rests Ohio's hope for a double winner.

Fenske May Better Record.

Track men hope Charles Fenske, Wisconsin, will crack the collegiate mile record, 4:06.7, set by Glen Cunningham in 1934. The world's record is 4:06.4. The best time Fenske ever made is 4:08.9.

Other collegiate records are not expected to fall, although some Big Ten marks may go. There are no entries who are likely to better Archie Williams' mark in the 440 of :46.5, Bob Osgood's high hurdles record, :14, or Jesse Owens low hurdle time, :22.6. No one is available to run the 100 in better than the accepted 9.4 mark, nor to better the 880 yard collegiate mark of 1:50.3 held by Johnny Woodruff, Pittsburgh.

Cy Young Lands Job Near Scene of Mound Feats

Boston, Mass., May 17.—(AP)—Cy Young, one of the original iron men of baseball, has come home to live within 200 yards of the old Huntington avenue ball grounds where he used to mow down enemy batsmen as the star pitcher for the Boston Red Sox.

Now 71 years old, Cy, who won more than 500 games in twenty-one seasons and pitched three no-hit contests, has given up farming at his birthplace, Peoli, O., to turn hotel man.

He has what most retired ballplayers would consider an ideal job. As manager of Putnam's hotel, a good part of his labor consists of being a greeter, and Frederick H. Putnam, the hotel owner, says the best way for Cy to greet is to go to the ball game every day with his gold, lifetime pass and bring back the crowds with him.

"Back in 1900," Putnam said, "I was running a drugstore here and Cy used to come in with a lot of ballplayers. He suggested that I branch out and start a hotel, and once brought in fifty-three players to stay. That tided me through some of the early rough going and I always appreciated it."

FRANK C. LYNCH IS HONORED AT NAVAL ACADEMY

Annapolis, Md., May 17.—[Special.]—Frank C. Lynch of Kansas City, Mo., has been awarded the Navy Athletic association sword as the best athlete of the year at the United States Naval academy.

Six feet four inches tall and weighing 218 pounds, Lynch was tackle on the eleven, center of the basketball five, and holds academy records for the shotput and discus throw.

William T. Ingram III. of Jeffersonville, Ind., who won the sword last year, will have his name on the Thompson trophy cup as having done most to promote athletics. He is a football back, basketball guard, and is captain and left fielder of the nine.

Big 10 Tennis Stars Ready for Title Play

Chicago's undefeated tennis team looms as a topheavy favorite to win the Big Ten tennis tournament which will be held on the Northwestern university courts in Evanston tomorrow, Friday, and Saturday.

The Maroon team, heralded as one of the outstanding college squads in the country, has won shutout victories in all of its dual meets this season except that with Northwestern. The latter team won one singles match.

Brothers on Team.

Two sets of brothers comprise the bulwark of the Chicago squad. John and Charles Shostrom hold down the No. 1 and 4 positions, while the Murphy twins, Bill and Chet, play No. 2 and 3 positions. The latter pair will defend the conference doubles championship won last year.

While the Maroons are expected to have little difficulty capturing the team title, the battle for the individual championship is expected to develop into a close fight between John Shostrom and Capt. Marvin Wachman of Northwestern.

Injury Handicaps Shostrom.

Shostrom suffered a sprained ankle in the second set of his match with Wachman and did not play against Illinois Monday. He is expected to be ready, however, to get back into action for the conference tournament tomorrow.

Northwestern, which won all of its conference matches except the two with Chicago, will pin its hopes on Wachman and the following players: Frank Froehling, Harry O'Neill, Louis Dudleston, Jerry Clifford, McDonald Milne, and Larry Owens.

The championship tournament will consist of six divisions in the singles and three divisions in the doubles, with each team nominating a player for each division. The team title will be based on the number of matches won in each division. The individual championship will be awarded to the player winning in the No. 1 singles division.

Schurz and Austin Track Teams Split Dual Meet

U. S. G. A. Expects Field of 1,160 in National Open

New York, May 17.—(AP)—One of the largest entry lists in the history of the national open golf tournament was assured for this year's meet when the United States Golf association estimated that 1,160 had been received when the deadline fell this afternoon.

Since the 1938 tournament, to be played June 9 to 11 at the Cherry Hills club near Denver, is being held farther west than ever before, the U. S. G. A. had counted on a substantial drop from last year's record entry of 1,402.

Pending a final checkup, it already is definite that this year's figure will be either the third or fourth largest on the U. S. G. A. books. In addition to last year's, top figures in the past were: 1936, 1,277; 1930, 1,177; 1931, 1,141; 1935, 1,125.

Among the 1,160 names are those of twenty-eight players exempt from the sectional qualifying trials to be held May 31 at thirty-one points throughout the country. The top thirty-one players in last year's field automatically became eligible for the 1938 meet, but three of them, Johnny Goodman, Charles Kocsis, and Frank Strafaci did not enter.

OAK PARK TRACK TEAM OFF FRIDAY FOR STATE MEET

Only one veteran will accompany the Oak Park track team when it leaves Friday morning with Coach Robert Woodruff for Champaign to defend its championship in the annual Illinois state high school track meet.

He is Bill Williams, a senior, who will compete in the pole vault. He placed fifth last year with a vault of 11 feet 3 inches.

This season Williams went 12 feet 7 inches in the Suburban league meet. In the district trials last Saturday at Proviso he placed first, establishing a new mark of 12 feet 4¾ inches. The old record, made by Foster of West Aurora in 1936, was 11 feet 6 inches.

Following the conclusion of Friday night's final lesson, the two ablest pupils in each division will be chosen by their instructors. This graduating class of eight men, eight women, eight boys, and eight girls will then come together for the ultimate judging to be held at Diversey next Sunday afternoon when prizes will be awarded by THE TRIBUNE and the Chicago District Golf association.

Chuck Kocsis of Detroit and Johnny Goodman of Omaha had 71s; Charley Yates of Atlanta a 72; Ray Billow of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Marvin [Bud] Ward of Olympia, Wash., 74s; Freddie Haas Jr. of New Orleans, 75, and Reynolds Smith of Dallas, 76.

CHICAGO FACES EUROPE'S STARS IN TITLE BOUTS

competition. The European coaches and officials did not decide upon their lineup until yesterday. Then, after long consultation, they determined to give Olli Lehtinen of Finland the flyweight position. He will face Walter Cavalieri of Chicago's Catholic Youth organization.

Cavalieri was runnerup in the Golden Gloves finals to Kenny Lottman of Peoria, who now has outgrown this weight class. Walter also lost a close decision in New York, but he is ready for this supreme test. He and Lehtinen will lead off the international championship bouts immediately following the ceremonies at 9:45.

Chicago will depend largely on such stars as Billy Eddy, of Flint, Mich., and Jimmy O'Malley of the C. Y. O. Each won a National A. A. U. championship last month.

Eddy Displaces Dempsey.

Eddy is a hard hitting left hander who displaced the Golden Gloves champion, Eddie Dempsey of Moline, Ill., in the intra-squad workouts. Dempsey is a grand little featherweight, but Eddy, because of his punching power, was rated more effective.

Eddy will meet John Saunders of Dublin. Here is one bout that Chicago believes it can win. The stamina of the Irishman may have been underrated. He may come through, but if he does, Chicago must prepare to take a licking.

O'Malley, Ireland's gift to Chicago, will box Antoni Kolczynski of Poland. Kolczynski, a hard hitter, who has a great international record, may need only one punch, even as did Lem Franklin, to upset the opinions of those who have watched both international squads drill.

This Should Be Good.

The middleweight battle between Booker Beckwith of Gary, Ind., and Adolf Baumgarten of Germany, is presumed to be a toss up. It also will be one of the best matches of the evening.

Chicago will depend on Linto Guerrieri of Rock Falls, Ill., in the 175 pound class. Guerrieri has fooled the experts from the beginning of Golden Gloves competition. They said he couldn't win the title, but he did. They predicted he would lose in New York, but he won. These same wiseacres think that Germany's Richard Vogt will lick Guerrieri, but once more, and how the Chicago coaches hope this wish will be a fact, the Italian youngster may come through.

Three nation-wide broadcasting systems will carry reports of the matches. Newspaper men from Berlin, Warsaw, and Budapest will be at the ringside. Coach Stamm of Poznan, Poland, who brought the Polish boys to Chicago in 1934, is here. So is Arno Helmis of Germany, who attended last year's matches.

Helmis, commentator for the German Broadcasting corporation, will report the bouts for listeners in Germany by way of NBC and short wave facilities. It is expected his description will be recorded and rebroadcast at a more suitable hour for German listeners.

Ceremonies Open Show.

A score of Golden Gloves cities have sent representatives. Judge Samuel Hoyt of New Haven, Conn., president of the National A. A. U., will attend. Avery Brundage, former National A. A. U. president and chairman of the United States Olympic committee; J. Lyman Bingham, assistant to President Hoyt; Capt. Roy E. Davis, chairman of the National A. A. U. boxing committee; L. N. Bloom of the Olympic boxing committee, from Cleveland, and Charles Brennan, secretary of the Michigan association of the A. A. U. and an Olympic boxing committee member, also will see the matches.

Following the preliminaries, the parade of the athletes to the ring, unveiling of flags of competing nations, and short speeches of welcome by Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, and Oscar Soderlund, president of the International Federation, the bouts will begin.

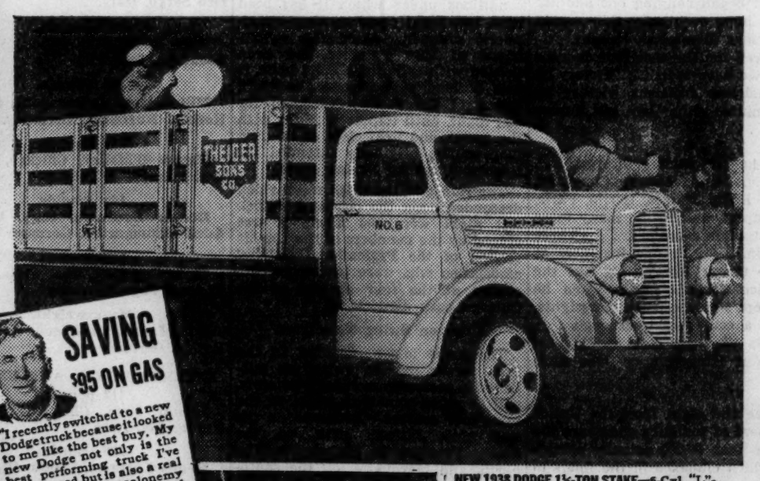
BETTER TRUCK ENGINES

NO WONDER IN NATION-WIDE POLL OWNERS OF LOW PRICE TRUCKS GUESS DODGE PRICE UP TO $135 MORE...YET DODGE IS PRICED WITH THE LOWEST

Exhaust Valve Seat Inserts—One of the many quality features pioneered in the low-priced truck field by Dodge truck engineers. Save gas and valve grinding. (Workman is installing valve seat inserts.)



NEW 1938 DODGE 1½-TON STAKE—6-Cyl. "L"-Head Engine—(133" W. B. with 9' Body and 159" W. B. with 12' Body)—19 special "econo-mizers"—yet still priced with the lowest.

DODGE trucks have long been famous for their engines. Undoubtedly that is one reason why so many buyers in a recent national poll over-estimated Dodge prices as much as $135.00. Yet Dodge trucks are now priced with the lowest!

In this poll hundreds of owners of low-priced trucks were asked to estimate prices of the low-priced trucks. We feel there is only one reason why so many often greatly over-estimated Dodge prices. That is because they believed Dodge trucks have greater value! Perhaps you, too, have thought of Dodge trucks as being "worth more" or "higher priced." Then you, too, will welcome the news that today there is only a comparatively few dollars difference in prices of the low-priced trucks.

Try a Dodge before you buy any truck. Remember, many Dodge truck owners report "saving $95 a year on gas alone." See your Dodge dealer.

SAVING $95 ON GAS

"I recently switched to a new Dodge truck because it looked to me like the best buy. My new Dodge not only is the best performing truck I've ever owned but is also a real money saver. On gas alone my figures show I'll save around $95 this year."—August J. Sell, Norwood Park, Ill.

4 Piston Rings—Dodge trucks alone in the low-priced field, give you 4 piston rings. The others have only 3. Dodge construction is obviously better. Saves gas and oil. (Workman is inserting pistons.)

Dodge engineers work tirelessly—new ways are constantly sought to make your Dodge truck even better and more dependable. (Pictured is engine test on dynamometer.)

Many are now operating Dodge trucks because of the low down payment and liberal terms made available to them.

BAUERS YIELDS ONE HIT BUT BEES BEAT PIRATES, 1-0

Boston Scores on a Pass, Single and Error.

Boston, Mass., May 17. — (AP) — A throw by Lloyd Waner struck Elbie Fletcher, a base runner, on the back today to ruin Russ Bauers' one hit pitching performance and give the Boston Bees a 1 to 0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. Southpaw Milt Shoffner upheld his end of the mound duel by holding the Pirates to three hits.

Fletcher, who drew a pass when he led off for the Bees, raced to third when Deb Garms got the lone Boston hit, a single to center with none out in the first inning.

The ball bounced off Fletcher and landed in the players' runway in the grandstand. Fletcher was waved in with the winning run and Garms was advanced to third, where he died as Bauers retired the next three batters. From then on only two Bees reached first, Garms on Bauers' second and last base on balls in the third and Rabbit Warstler, who drew a pass from Relief Pitcher Rip Sewell in the eighth. Score:

McGEE, CARDS WIN, 2-1.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 17.—(AP)—Bill McGee opened the St. Louis Cardinals' eastern trip today by pitching a one hit game to turn back the Brooklyn Dodgers, 2 to 1.

McGee's bid for no hit fame was spoiled by Goody Rosen, Dodger center fielder, who singled to left to open the sixth, and came all the way home as Ducky Medwick let the ball get past him for a three base error.

Besides turning back the Dodgers in order in seven of the nine innings, fanning nine and walking only one, McGee got two of the Cards' eight hits off Luke Hamlin and figured in both runs. He singled in the third then scored on Stu Martin's double, and drove Don Padgett home with the deciding tally in the seventh with another single. Score:

came to the rescue and Leiber slammed a fly into Marty's hands, Ripple scoring after the catch. McCarthy singled through second, but the drive hit Umpire George Magerkurth, so Ott wasn't allowed to advance. Chiozza and Danning then flied out.

Giants Step Out.

The second produced no runs for either party, but between hits and passes there was plenty of action. In the Cubs' portion Hartnett singled with one out and Hack singled after two were gone. The hits went to waste when Herman flied to Ripple. Bryant opened the Giants' half by walking Melton. After Moore had popped out, Bartell also walked. The two men advanced on a passed ball. Ripple was thrown out and as a quick solution to Ott's home run inclinations, an intentional pass was issued. Bryant then struck out Leiber.

The champions unleashed four hits in the fifth to increase their lead to 5 to 2. Ripple launched this affair with a single to right. Ott was taken care of on a fly to Galan, whereupon Leiber singled to center to atone for the strikes Bryant blew past him in the second inning. McCarthy whistled a single past Herman, Ripple scoring and Leiber going to third. Chiozza struck out, but Danning propelled a single into left and Leiber registered. Melton fouled to Hack.

Marty Takes Charge.

The sixth, which Marty featured with his fourth homer of the year, began with a pass to Collins. Lazzeri helped himself to a single through short. Galan's intentions to assist were ruined by a fly ball to Leiber. Melton threw up a couple of wide pitches and a strike to Marty. Then in his desire to slip over another strike, he made the pitch too good. Marty lined it into the lower right field deck and followed Collins and Lazzeri home with the tying run.

After the Marty homer the Cubs didn't have much chance for a close inspection of the bases until the tenth. Hack was the first man up in this inning and he almost drilled a hole through one of Melton's shin bones with a liner which caromed into right field for a single. Herman contributed the customary sacrifice and Collins flied to Leiber. Lazzeri was next, so the Giants went into conference. The decision was an intentional pass to the ex-Yankee. Galan then grounded to Bartell to force Tony at second.

Cubs Boot Chance.

The home tenth added more confusion to the party. Leiber walked, McCarthy bunted and Bryant caught it on the fly, but the umpires intervened. They ruled that Bryant had balked on the pitch, so Leiber was told to go to second and McCarthy to continue his time at bat. McCarthy's reprieve resulted in a pass. Then Bryant really went to work. Hartnett charged over to the Giants' dugout and grabbed Chiozza's fly and Bryant fanned Danning and Melton.

In the twelfth the Cubs acted as if they really meant business. Hack doubled to left for his third hit. Herman was purposely passed and Collins beat out a bunt along the third base line. This filled the bases with none out. Coffman came in at this point. Lazzeri tapped to Bartell, whose throw to Danning forced Hack at the plate. Galan fouled out, and what had appeared to be a rally vanished completely when Marty bounced to Bartell. The finale came a moment later.

ROSS RESTS FOR A DAY; RESUMES DRILLS TODAY

Grossinger Lake, N. Y., May 17.—(AP)—Barney Ross rested today before resuming training for his 15 round welterweight title defense against Henry Armstrong in Madison Square Garden Bowl May 26.

Ross is perfectly satisfied with his condition.

"During the rest of the training period," he said, "it will be only a matter of maintaining the speed, accuracy in punching and boxing skill I believe I have attained now. I think I'll enter the ring in perfect shape."

The champion's only work today consisted of a four mile jaunt on the road. He will resume the regular grind tomorrow.

The Play That Beat Bauers

Russ Bauers' one hit pitching against the Boston Bees yesterday was nullified by this play. It happened in the first inning. Fletcher, Bee first baseman, going to third on Garms' single, the only hit off Bauers, was struck in the back by L. Waner's throw. Fletcher, sliding into third, leaped up and raced home while Pittsburgh's third baseman, Handley, chased after the ball. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

French to Face Hubbell Today in Polo Grounds

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 17.—Larry French will pitch for the Cubs against the Giants in the second game of the series tomorrow and probably will draw Carl Hubbell as his opponent. Hubbell was slated to start today but was granted an extra twenty-four hours of rest as the result of being hit on the forearm during yesterday's pre-game practice.

The editor of Giant Jottings, which is one of those occasional periodicals distributed to fans, took a slight dig at our Cubs. In a piece about the Chicago team, he spoke of it having "the only three man management in the National pastime." No names were mentioned.

The great Diz Dean, having completed his two weeks of fungo chasing, will start reconditioning his arm tomorrow. He will be permitted to do only a little easy throwing and after several days of such exercise will be permitted to pitch in batting practice, provided the kink doesn't reappear in his $185,000 arm.

The Cubs will line up differently tomorrow. Demaree will be back in his old right field position. Jurges will be returned to shortstop, where Lazzeri has been holding forth. Galan will bat third and Demaree will try to do the cleaning up. Hartnett will follow Demaree. Collins, who has been batting third, has been assigned to the No. 6 spot.

There was great commotion in the Giants' half of the ninth. Moore led off with a pop in short center and Lazzeri, after catching the ball, dropped it when about to make a throw. Umpire Tiny Parker raised his arm indicating an out, but yanked it down when he saw Umpire George Magerkurth, who was standing at first base, making motions that the batter was entitled to base. The Cubs raised the dickens with Magerkurth, who finally smelled a mouse. He asked Umpire in Chief Charles Moran for advice and the latter ruled the ball was legally caught.

RAIN PREVENTS INDIANA-ILLINOIS BASEBALL GAME

Bloomington, Ind., May 17.—[Special.]—Indiana and Illinois will have to wait at least another year before meeting on the baseball diamond for the first time since 1917.

Today's scheduled game was canceled because of wet grounds.

Sox ('Member Them?) Are Rained Out

the Sox spent two days of perfect weather in Washington losing extra inning games to the Senators, they went to New York for three games. They played and lost the first of the three at Yankee stadium on Sunday, May 8. They were rained out May 9 and 10 and moved on to Boston for two games. They played on May 11, and lost a tough one, but were rained out on May 12. They played and won in Cleveland on Friday, May 13, and were rained out May 14 and 15. Monday, day before yesterday, they worked out under a warm sun and caught up on their clinical notes, while eastern clubs moved west. At 1 o'clock yesterday morning it started raining again, and you guess when it's going to stop.

The Red Sox will stick around till tomorrow evening and then will take off for St. Louis, the Yankees heading this way the while. The world champs will be here two days, followed by the Senators for three days, the Athletics for two, and the Tigers for three. The Sox then will move east again.

WHITEHILL HOLDS A'S TO FOUR HITS; INDIANS WIN, 5-1

Cleveland Clusters Runs in Two Innings.

Cleveland, O., May 17.—(AP)—Earl Whitehill turned back Philadelphia's Athletics with four hits today to give Cleveland a 5 to 1 victory.

It was a mixed triumph for the Cleveland southpaw, however. He was wild in the first inning, when two passes and a hit batsman plus Bill Werber's single gave the Mackmen their run.

George Caster, the Macks' pitcher, also was wild. In the fourth, Ken Keltner, who had doubled, took third on one of Caster's wild pitches, then came home on Whitehill's single. Keltner had scored Hal Trosky with the tying run.

Another wild pitch in the seventh scored Jeff Heath, who had tripled to start the inning. Averill then walked and Trosky hit his fifth home run of the season to score him. Score:

SOCIETY'S NEW KEYNOTE IN SMOKING

STRATEGIST II. IS RULED OFF FOR AURORA MEETING

Bad Actor Left at Post for Third Time.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The ancient horse Strategist II. made sure yesterday that he's not going to be overworked this season as was last year when he paraded thirty-eight times to the starting gate on race tracks which stretched from one end of the country to the other.

He went out and got himself a vacation, not by any meritorious running he did in the mud of the Aurora course, but because he acted the part of the meanest, ugliest horse on the track.

For the third time in four starts at Aurora he refused to start with the others in his field, then paid no attention whatever to the bonfire his backers started with the mutuel betting tickets they held on him.

Strategist II. Is Barred.

This called for drastic action. It came quickly. Strategist II. was sentenced to go on a vacation for the remainder of the meeting. The sour old rascal isn't likely to be around pleading with the judges to get his suspension lifted. He likes to loaf too much for that to happen.

Strategist II., now 7 years old, races for Dan Hardy. When he refused to come out of his corner running Jocky Melvin Knight gave him a couple of vicious cracks with his whip. From then on Strategist II. turned in a winning race. He was some fifteen lengths behind his field going down the back stretch. It was too great a handicap. He finally finished fourth behind the long shot Donna James, Popular Vote, and Jack Knife. Donna James was at 11 to 1 in the betting.

A Former Stake Runner.

Strategist II. once was a stake star and a great sprinter. But because of his lack of ambition at the post he gradually has tumbled down into the lowest selling plater ranks.

Horses of this type furnished all the entertainment at Aurora yesterday because of the rainy weather and the muddy track conditions. The better grade steeds remained in their stalls. Perhaps that made Strategist II. jealous.

Reigh Count, the greatest of our Chicago champions, just couldn't be kept out of the picture with such conditions prevailing.

His mud running son, Count Valiant, bred and foaled on the John Hertz farm, went to the post as a redhot favorite in the best race of the day. It was a dash at six furlongs. Some capable mud runners were in the field.

Count Valiant Wins.

Count Valiant never faltered. He let Enagala make the pace for him until the last turn. At that stage Jocky J. G. Wilson gave the Count his head. He romped to the front. At the finish he was six lengths in front and still drawing away from his rivals.

He rewarded his backers with a $5.40 mutuel payoff. French Duchess, dam of Count Valiant, also raced successfully in the Hertz silks. The Count is 3 years old. He races for Paul Kelley of Chicago.

Betting Handle at Maryland's Tracks Drops

Baltimore, Md., May 17.—(AP)—Betting on Maryland's race tracks slumped $1,440,395 this spring from the $13,383,968 wagered a year ago. Figures released today by the state racing commission revealed a thirty-eight day total of $11,943,573.

Bad weather plagued the Bowie and Pimlico meetings. Pimlico's big day, the forty-eighth running of the Preakness Saturday, brought driving rains, and the crowd of 25,000 was 20,000 less than expected.

The state tax on betting is 1 per cent, and the drop means a loss of more than $14,000 in taxes. Six and a half per cent of the wagering goes to the tracks.

Pimlico's betting for twelve days was $4,248,511, a daily average of $354,042, which was $45,180 less than the average last spring.

Havre De Grace, blessed with better weather, reported $4,485,400 for fourteen days, compared with $4,535,801 for the same period last spring. The daily average dropped $810.

Bowie's daily average decrease was the largest, $50,289. The total for twelve days was $3,209,662, compared with $2,859,843 for nine days last spring.

MISS BALKO, rushed into the lead soon after the start, opened up a good lead rapidly but weakened in last sixteenth and barely lasted. VEEKS dropped back after a fast start, was taken wide while working her way up on the outside and close strongly. MAGNOLIA CASH knocked back at the far turn, recovered quickly from the mishap, swerved under pressure in last furlong, but finished strongly.

LESSING, taken under light restraint early but always close up, came extremely wide entering the stretch, disposed of IMMUTABLE in last furlong and drew out to win with something to spare. IMMUTABLE, away fast and showing speed for seven-eighths, weakened thereafter under strong urging. HURRY HAWK moved up strongly approaching the final three-eighths, was steered to the inside and tired after reaching contention.

DONNA JAMES, away fast and hard hustled throughout, courageously shook off challengers in the last three-sixteenths and was extended the limit to retain a safe advantage. POPULAR VOTE moved up with a rush while racing on the outside, got to the leader in the stretch but hung in late stages. JACKKNIFE, never far out of it, kept in the middle of the track throughout but gave on well.

GAELIC, showing a liking for the footing and off well, set the pace under light restraint to the far turn where he opened up a safe lead and was never threatened. BROWN MAN, held in reserve for seven-eighths, improved his position gradually thereafter and closed strong. HAZEL EYE began slowly, raced far back to the final quarter and taken to the outside finished with a rush.

COUNT VALIANT, much the best, was rated in close pursuit of the leader for a half mile, moved into command swiftly when straightened out in the stretch and was well in hand at the end. PEDANT, unable to keep up in early stages, closed rapidly in last furlong. ENAGALA was much used setting the pace for the first half mile and weakened when challenged by the winner.

SWIFT LAD responded well to strong urging in last three-eighths and made up some ground.

RADIO COLUMNIST SWINGS THROUGH BROADCAST NEWS

Air Mail Record Circles the Globe.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

RECORD: Five weeks ago WBBM dispatched a blank record westward around the world. In Honolulu, London, Paris, Rio, Havana, and Washington, among other places, salutes to the American air mail anniversary were recorded. Postmaster General Farley and Postmaster Kreutgen also contributed bits to this vocal autograph book. Yesterday Hal Burnett brought the record back by air from Washington in a plane piloted by Larry Fritz, pioneer air mail pilot. This around the world record will be put on WBBM as a special air mail week feature at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow.

DEFINITION: Following his broadcast with Edgar Guest on It Can Be Done, Leo Fitzpatrick, Detroit broadcaster who has been campaigning against swinging the classics, gave his definition of swing: A musical cocktail composed of two parts jaz, one part improvisation—with a dash of gin and jitters!

COMEBACK: The Mills Brothers make their first American appearance in a year or two on the Al Pearce show next Tuesday. The Vagabonds, by the way, who broadcast from local NBC studios, are probably at least as good a vocal crew as the Mills unit.

PUFF: Harold Stokes' 6 to 6:15 program on Thursdays [W-G-N] which he calls Sweet and Low is a soothing and relaxing period.

PREMIERE: An all colored revue is to be broadcast each Wednesday night from 8:30 to 9:30 from the stage of the Regal theater on the south side over WIND. First one is May 25.

PLEA: An F. M. McGee, listed in the phone book, has appealed to Jim Jordan, who is Fibber McGee, to do something about that name. The real Mr. McGee receives phone calls from fans of the radio comedian day and night. Jim Jordan had his phone number taken out of the directory some time back. But there are seven others by his name listed. They also get a modicum of inquiries.

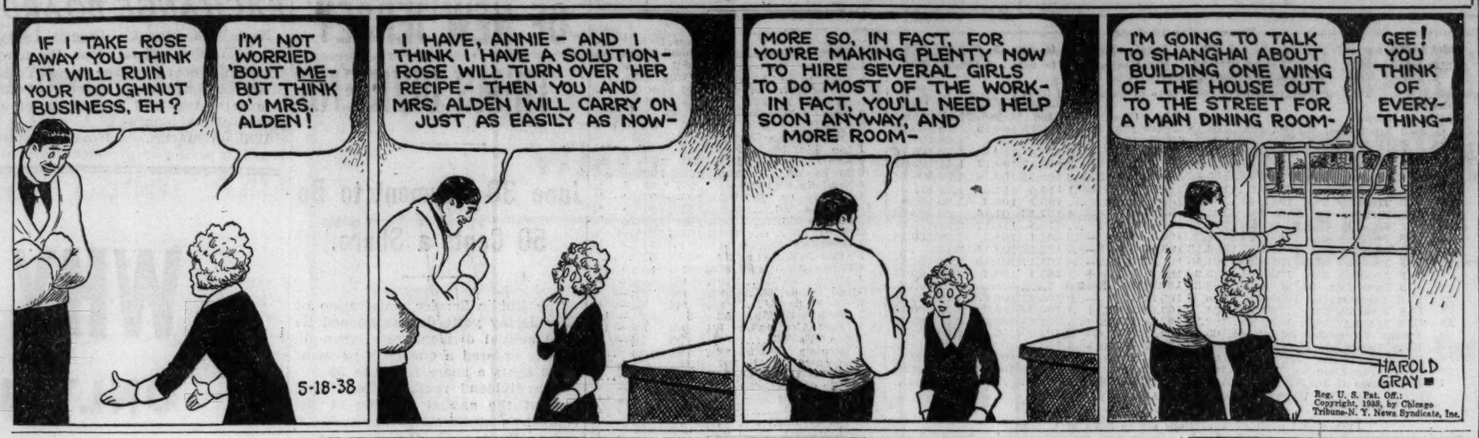
OBSERVATION: Hattie Noel and Bert Gordon [The Mad Russian] are doing a lot to give the Eddie Cantor show a lift. Hattie Noel's name is one that probably will become generally familiar. There was a good laugh Monday evening in Gordon's crack, "What, another Deanna Durbin!" when Hattie, who weighs 200 pounds, burst forth in a red hot and low-down vocal version of a blues number.

TELEGRAM: The day his fourth child, a girl, was born, Phil Baker received this wire from Eddie Cantor: "Quit poaching or I'll take up the accordion."

RECOVERING: Bess Flynn [Mother Moynihan], the author of Bachelor's Children, is recovering from an operation in Mercy hospital. She will be missing from the air for another week or two.

REPLACEMENT: Glenn Gray and his Casa Loma crew will replace Jan Garber shortly on the Burns and Allen show.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Great Expectations



HONOR FORMER PRESIDENTS OF BAR ASSOCIATION

Fourteen of the 21 living past presidents of the Chicago Bar association attended a dinner in compliment to them last night in the quarters of the association. Among the nearly 400 guests were representatives of every branch of the legal profession.

The fourteen were Mitchell D. Follansbee, Amos C. Miller, William Tracy Alden, Roger Sherman, William H. Sexton, John M. Cameron, Russell Whitman, Carl R. Latham, Francis X. Busch, Charles P. Megan, John D. Black, Henry A. Gardner, Hebert M. Lautmann, and Charles M. Thomson. Those who sent regrets were Frank J. Loesch, Thomas M. Hoyne, only living charter member; Edgar B. Tolman, John T. Richards, Silas Strawn, James M. Sheean, and William P. Sidley.

Justice Francis S. Wilson of the Illinois Supreme court was toastmaster; the guests were introduced by Hayes McKinney, president of the group, and the past, present, and future of the association were discussed by Mr. Whitman, William King Jr., and William A. McSwain.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

by HOMER NEISZ

What are most midwest farmers doing on the farms now? Read "Day by Day on the Farm"—a year 'round chronicle of what happens on a modern farm—by Frank Ridgway. Tribune agricultural editor. This fascinating book contains 94 pages with 58 human interest photos. Get a copy at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 25 cents. Hay Crop Prospects.

May 17, 1938.

ALFALFA and clover meadows at the Tribune's Du Page county farm now offer prospects for the best hay crop since 1935, when the first and second cuttings of alfalfa were unusually heavy. With the exception of one field of red clover, all the legume meadows on the farm came through the winter in good condition and the plants are making satisfactory growth.

The farm has been short of clover and alfalfa hay for the last two years. The dry summer of 1936 cut the yield of hay that year and most of the meadows were ruined the following winter when alternate freezing and thawing of the ground caused the plants to heave out of the soil.

Some Seeded in Winter.

There are thirty-seven acres of alfalfa and twenty-six acres of red clover on the place to be cut for hay this summer. Part of the alfalfa was seeded in February of 1937 on land that had been sown to wheat or rye the previous fall. The rest of the alfalfa and the clover were seeded with oats last spring.

The fields seeded in February are the best. The farm manager has observed that winter seedings of clover and alfalfa at the farm usually do better than when the seeds are put in with oats in the spring. There is no noticeable difference in the crops the first summer, but the February seedings come through the next winter in better condition and make heavier yields the second year. The manager thinks the difference is due to deeper and stronger root systems being established by the plants when the seeds are sown in February.

A twenty-two acre field of red clover that was sown with oats last spring winter killed so badly that it has been plowed up. There was a good stand of clover on the field last fall.

There are 73 acres of new legume seedings on the farm—20 acres of alfalfa, 23 of red clover, and 30 acres of red clover and timothy. A small amount of alsike clover was put in the red clover and timothy mixture. The new seedings were greatly benefited by recent rains. The plants were not up far enough to be seriously damaged by heavy frosts last week.

New Plants Sent Up.

Corean lespedeza that was sown last spring in an alfalfa field is sending up new plants. This strain of lespedeza is an annual and comes up from seed each year. The field is not to be used for hay, but will be pastured during the summer. The lespedeza is not expected to get high enough to furnish much grazing before the first or middle of July.

There are good stands of both Corean and Harbin lespedezas in test field A. The plots were seeded in the spring of 1935 and have produced good crops each year since. Sericea, a perennial variety of lespedeza sown in 1935, did well for two years, but was a failure last season.

TRUSTEES FREED FROM LIABILITY IN ESTATE'S LOSS

Judge John Prystalski ruled yesterday that two trustees of the estate of Joseph Korzeniewski, wholesale flour dealer, were not personally liable for alleged negligence in failing to dispose of assets of the estate, which shrank in value from $111,000 in 1929 to $11,000 in 1937.

The accounting suit against the trustees was brought by Mrs. Susan Klarkowski, wife of Judge Stanley Klarkowski, and Ramond E. Korzeniewski. The trustees are Mrs. Irene K. Kadow, wife of Ald. Z. H. Kadow [33d] and Harry Korzeniewski. All are children of Joseph Korzeniewski.

RISE IN PREMIUM OF LUMBERMENS UNIT REPORTED

Decrease Noted in Fatal Auto Accidents.

Despite an adverse effect on compensation insurance premiums caused by declining pay rolls, the total premium income of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company during the first quarter of 1938 exceeds that obtained in the first quarter of 1937, James S. Kemper, president, declared at the annual meeting held yesterday in Chicago.

Kemper said also that profits during this period also were satisfactory, with loss ratios on both automobile and compensation insurance being relatively favorable.

Accident Rate Falling.

"Serious automobile accidents have shown a marked decrease so far this year," he stated. "We believe that this decline is due primarily to the fact that the nation-wide agitation for safer driving has at last had an effect.

"Increasingly we see evidence of the immediate reduction in accidents which communities can effect by instaling efficient methods of trafic control and enforcement programs aimed particularly at fast driving, which is such an important factor in the present accident toll.

"The fact that certain states and communities have slashed their accident rates drastically through these methods has justified the program we undertook several years ago through our foundation for trafic police training at Northwestern university's trafic safety institute and through our 'Not Over Fifty Club.'"

Directors Reëlected.

Retiring members of the board were reëlected. H. J. Pelstring, secretary of the Pennsylvania Lumbermen's Mutual Fire Insurance company, Philadelphia, was elected a member of the advisory board.

Kemper announced the promotion of three members of the staf. Frederick Pier, manager of the Los Angeles office, has been made resident secretary of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company and its associated company, the American Motorists Insurance company. R. C. Merritt, midwest superintendent of agencies, and John D. Ring, district claims manager in Boston, were made assistant secretaries of both companies.

Board of education warants for 1937, totaling $763,000, were called for payment yesterday by James B. Mc Cahey, school board president. The warants called are numbers E-32 to E-55, B-272 to B-427, and P-12 to P-18 Interest on the warants will stop May 23.

Allied Mills.

Investors' Guide: Please send me information on Allied Mills stock listed on the New York Stock exchange.—H. N. P.

Answer: Allied Mills, Inc., a $13,149,000 company, is a processor of grains. Its products fall into three main divisions: live stock feeds, soy bean products, and distillery products.

The line of soy bean products includes "Kreemko" soy bean flour, oil meal used by live stock feeders and oil used by manufacturers of paint and linoleum. The company's soy bean processing plants are at Peoria and Taylorville, Ill., and Portsmouth, Va.

The Century Distilling company, a wholly owned subsidiary, manufactures such distillery products as gin and whisky. The distillery, located at Peoria, Ill., has a daily capacity of 80,000 gallons of whisky.

Live stock feeds are sold under the "Wayne" anu "Armo" brands and include a complete line for all domestic animals. Feed plants are located at Omaha, Neb.; Peoria, Ill.; Fort Wayne, Ind.; East St. Louis, Ill.; Buffalo, N. Y., and Portsmouth, Va. The live stock feeds are marketed in twenty-five states from Nebraska eastward through dealers and the fifty-five feed stores operated by the company.

The company's statement for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1937, showed that feed operetions accounted for approximately 53 per cent of its total volume of business; retail feed stores, 15½ per cent; soy bean operations, 10½ per cent, and distillery operations, 21 per cent.

Net income for the twelve months ended March 31, 1938, declined to $970,756, or $1.03 a common share, from $2,398,446, or $2.70 a share, in the preceding twelve months. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1937, net income was $2,354,955, or $2.50 a share, compared with $2,539,702, or $2.86 a share, in the 1936 fiscal year; $2,090,963, or $2.36 a share, in 1935; $888,445, or $1 a share, in 1934; $382,226, or 43 cents a share, in 1933, and $209,942, or 22 cents a share, in 1932.

The company had 946,000 shares or no par common stock outstanding on March 31. No dividends have been paid since June 15, 1937, when $1.50 was disbursed, bringing the 1937 fiscal year payments to $2. The shares must be regarded as speculative pending an improvement in earnings. The company sold 59,125 additional shares of stock to its stockholders in June, 1937, to provide funds for expansion.

GEN. AMERICAN TRANSPORT. HAS PROFIT NEAR '37

Decline Is Small in First Quarter.

General American Transportation corporation, world's largest operator of railroad freight cars, showed only a moderate decline in first quarter profits, as reported yesterday, compared with those for the corresponding 1937 period. Net profit was $845,372, or 82 cents a capital share, compared with $1,120,000, or $1.10 a share, in the March quarter of last year.

Among other March quarter reports a drop in earnings was shown by Superheater company, and net losses were reported by Spicer Manufacturing company, maker of universal joints and other automobile parts, and the Sullivan Machinery company, manufacturer of mining and quarrying equipment. Park & Tilford, Inc., distributor of liquors and drug sundries, showed a drop in earnings for the period.

Candy Concern Earns More.

Fanny Farmer Candy Shops, Inc., reported a sharp jump in April earnings, compared with those of April of last year. Only a slight drop for the fiscal year to March 31 was shown in the annual report of Rudolph Wurlitzer company, maker of musical instruments.

Fanny Farmer's profit for April of $122,455 brought net income for the first four months to $237,767. In April, 1937, the company had profit of only $18,088, but net for the four months was slightly higher than in 1938, amounting to $245,297.

Superheater Company of Delaware's March quarter net profit of $74,451 did not include dividends of $55,735 from a Canadian affiliate received in January, but declared out of 1937 earnings. The company's profit for the March, 1937, quarter totaled $858,844, including $425,115 on the sale of reacquired company stock.

Wurlitzer Net Is Lower.

Rudolph Wurlitzer's net income for the fiscal year ended March 31 totaled $2,011,240, or $4.84 a common share, compared with $2,264,055, or $5.74 a share in the preceding fiscal year.

Farny R. Wurlitzer, president, told stockholders that, although the manufacturing and retailing divisions of the company were profitable, "the real estate division, which is one of our major problems, showed a loss of $150,395, as compared with a loss of $248,356 for the year ended March 31, 1937."

He added that considering tax and rental trends he doubted real estate losses could be held as low next year.

PLEDGES JOB AID BY UTILITIES IF FETTERS ARE CUT

Washington, D. C., May 17.—(AP)—The private power industry, Philip H. Gadsden said today, is ready to give "full coöperation" in expanding plants and creating jobs if the government will restore confidence to utility investors.

Gadsden, who is chairman of the committee of utility executives, testified before the senate appropriations committee in opposition to provisions of the administration's $3,154,000,000 relief and public works bill which, he said, would mean government duplication of private power facilities.

"The private power industry," Gadsden asserted, "can and ought to be a mighty machine for creating jobs and spreading social benefits to all the people. The time has come to look ahead constructively in the American way. If investor fears of federal utility policies can be allayed, utility management will respond as a patriotic duty."

Co-ops Unite for Showdown on Labor Acts

BY THORNTON SMITH.

Marshfield, Wis., May 17.—[Special.]—Farmers' dairy coöperatives, through whose channels a large part of Wisconsin's milk, butter, and cheese is marketed, joined hands today for a showdown against unionization of their plants. The coöperatives have declared that the industry is being threatened by "restrictive and coercive regulations under the state and national labor relations act to the detriment of dairy farmers."

Three resolutions adopted here at a meeting of the directors of the Wisconsin Dairy Industries coöperative declared the opposition of the organized farmers to acts of labor boards and pledged resistance against collective bargaining with any group unless it gives substantial evidence of its responsibility for carrying out its part of the contract.

Federation Newly Organized.

The Dairy Industries coöperative is a newly organized federation of cooperatives. Sixteen members of the board met here. Their labor situation differs from the usual employer-employé ratio in a labor dispute, because the employers in each coöperative represent up to as high as 1,500 to 2,000 farmers while the employés are confined to about 20 in each creamery or cheese factory.

Recognizing their numerical superiority, the employers plan first to seek political relief by exemption from the labor acts. Their resolution read: "Resolved, that the Wisconsin Dairy Industries coöperative take steps to exempt the dairy industry from the regulations of the state and national labor relations act and to propose amendments giving the dairy industry a voice before the labor boards so that equality and justice may prevail under these laws, which are today proving so harmful to the dairy industry."

Insist on Surety Bond.

A second resolution pledged the cooperatives never to enter any agreement for collective bargaining with any group which does not first give a substantial surety bond to compensate the employers in case of violation of the contract.

A third resolution adopted the wage scale of the Wisconsin Butter Makers' association as the basic scale for the industry. N. S. Clark, Milwaukee regional director of the national labor relations board, has defined the butter makers' association as an independent union which would not be acceptable to the board.

The attitude of the dairy coöperatives was defined by August Kanning of Ladysmith. "Outside agitators," he said, "backed by the labor board, are making demands the dairy industry cannot and will not meet."

Headed by B. L. Bowen.

B. L. Bowen, manager of the Richland Creamery coöperative, which is now in a dispute with the NLRB, is president of the federation. "We must resist these encroachments or surrender all right the farmer has in running his own marketing plants," Bowen said.

"If the situation keeps up, farmers having canning peas, cherries, and fruit that must be handled quickly when ripe can expect trouble at harvest time. If the farmers haven't any rights left, let's find out about it now."

C. L. Doeringsfeld, Grant county, said: "This talk of farmer and labor uniting and farmers voting the same as labor is so much wind," he said. "Every concession forced by labor and the labor board comes right out of the farmer's milk check."

ROOSEVELT ACTS TO CUT BUSINESS' REPORT BURDEN

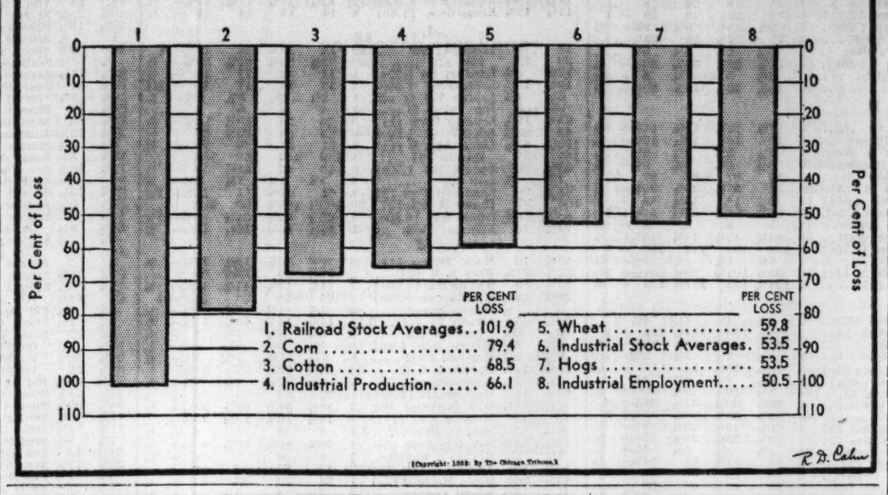
Washington, D. C., May 17.—(AP)—President Roosevelt announced today he was taking steps to relieve business and industry of some of the expense and inconvenience involved in the preparation of "large numbers of statistical reports" they are required to file periodically with the government.

Expressing concern at the extent of such reports, he directed the central statistical board to determine their number, decide where duplications exist and make recommendations for consolidations in the interest of efficiency and economy.

He announced this action at his press conference and then raised the question of requiring the nation's citizens to fill out questionnaires with various useful statistical information when they go to polling places to vote. Election day might be changed to citizens' day, he said.

He added he was not advocating such a system, but that private organizations are studying it.

Per Cent of 1933-1937 Recovery Which Has Vanished



Gary Bank Is 100% Liquid, Gasser Says

Into that extremely limited number of entirely liquid banks long led by J. M. ["Hundred Per Cent"] Nichols' First National Bank of Englewood yesterday stepped W. W. Gasser, president of the Gary State bank, Gary, Ind. Gasser announced that his institution has boiled its loans and investments down to a point where its liquid assets—cash, short term government paper, etc.—now equal 100.3 per cent of its deposit liabilities. The bank's deposits total $12,047,005 and its liquid assets aggregate $12,089,058, he said.

Gasser, who during the dark days of the 1933 bank panic pulled his institution through intact despite the fact that it had to pay out 80 per cents of its total deposits, yesterday explained some of the reasons why his bank has decided to ignore the advice of administration leaders in Washington and convert itself from a lending and investing agency into a virtual storehouse for its depositors' cash. The attitude of depositors being what it is today, he said, the bank "cannot make loans where there is any question at all about repayment."

No Other Way Possible.

"Supposing I gave you a million dollars in cash, told you to open an office and keep it open every day except Sundays and legal holidays, and instructed you to keep my money ready for withdrawal on an instant's notice," he said. "What would you do with that money? If you wanted to keep faith with me all you could possibly do with it would be to hang on to it and be ready to turn it over to me on demand.

"That illustrates as well as anything I can think of the attitude of today's bank depositors and the position of today's banker. There is no escaping this.

"Considering that banks now offer federal deposit insurance, under which depositors are guaranteed recovery of their money in an emergency up to $5,000 on each deposit, there is actually no reason for fear on the part of the rank and file of bank patrons. But it is a fact that such fear does exist."

Evidence of Hoarding.

To back up this assertion Gasser pointed out that the total amount of currency in circulation in the United States is now about six and one-half billion dollars, compared with four and one-half billions in 1928 and six and one-quarter billions at the peak of the bank panic early in 1933. He cited this as evidence that hoarding of cash is now more prevalent than during the 1933 crisis.

I. C. BOARD'S FIRST MEETING IN CHICAGO WILL BE HELD TODAY

Directors of the Illinois Central railroad will meet in Chicago today for the first time since it was decided to bring these meetings from New York to this city, where the road has its general offices. The action by the road has been hailed as a victory for middle westerners who have been working against New York rule over middle western companies.

The stockholders at their annual meeting at 11 o'clock this morning are expected to approve a plan to enlarge the board of directors by two. The present board consists of twelve members, with the governor of the state of Illinois an ex-officio member.

Because the meetings in the past have been held in New York, Gov. Horner has not attended them. There is some speculation as to whether he will attend the Chicago meeting.

Expect Steel Prices Will Be Unchanged

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Steel prices are expected to be maintained at their present levels in the announcement of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation of its third quarter price schedule, due to be made shortly, according to reports yesterday. Little possibility of price reductions was seen in steel quarters.

Announcement that prices will be continued at their present level is expected to have a steadying influence on the steel industry because other industries which usually consume steel are hesitant about buying when there is a possibility of price reductions.

Rumors of Price Cuts.

There have been rumors in the steel industry that Carnegie-Illinois was contemplating price reductions, which were to have preceded a reduction in the dividends on the preferred stock and action to bring about wage reductions.

Any move to reduce wages, it was pointed out, would have to be preceded by negotiations with the steel unions—now largely under the control of John L. Lewis' committee for industrial organization. Furthermore, the other expenses of the steel industry have risen as they have in other industries.

Prices Steady Since March, 1937.

Steel prices generally have been maintained at the present levels since early in March, 1937. The third quarter prices were reaffirmed early in March—much earlier than customary—because of agitation at that time over commodity prices.

In February of this year there was a reduction of $4 a ton on cold rolled steel sheets—a basic steel product used in large amounts by the automobile industry.

WAGNER MAKES THREAT TO DITCH RAIL LOAN BILL

Assails Roads for Pay Cut Move.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 17.—Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.], chairman of the senate banking and currency committee and sponsor of a bill to liberalize Reconstruction Finance corporation loans to railroads, today threatened to block action on the legislation in view of the proposed 15 per cent reduction in railroad wages. The roads have notified the labor brotherhoods of intention to make the cuts, effective July 1.

Sen. R. F. Wagner.

Wagner called a meeting of his committee for tomorrow morning and told the senate: "At the meeting, of course, the question will be raised as to whether the proposed legislation should pass in the face of a threat to reduce the wages of employés of the roads. The proposed legislation is for the purpose of aiding the present employés so that their employment may be retained and to increase employment by the reëmployment of railroad workers."

Follows Earlier Attacks.

Wagner's denunciation of the proposed railway wage cut followed a series of such outbursts in the senate yesterday led by Senator La Follette [P., Wis.]. Wagner said the pending bill was the result of an agreement between the RFC, the railroad brotherhoods and railway managements. At the hearing on the bill, he added, the question of the 15 per cent wage reduction was not mentioned and no member of the committee knew anything about it.

Wagner said that other objections to the pending bill had been raised by representatives of bondholders' and stockholders' committees and that these also would be considered.

Wheeler Joins Protest.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee, who called the first conference on railway relief legislation, seconded Wagner's remarks regarding the proposed wage cut.

"I agree with the senator entirely," Wheeler declared.

The pending bill would amend the RFC act insofar as it relates to the financing of railroads through loans and purchases or guaranties of obligations, and add a new section relating to the financing of rail and shop appliances, rolling stock and other equipment.

2 Firms Give Bit of Cheer to Stockholders

Stockholders of two petroleum companies at annual meetings yesterday heard some words of encouragement in contrast to the general reports of reduced earnings.

Walter S. Hallahan, president of the Plymouth Oil company, reported that its earnings for the first quarter of this year exceeded those of the first 1937 quarter. Eugene Holman, president of the Creole Petroleum corporation, told stockholders that earnings are running at about the same rate as in 1937.

Hallahan told the Plymouth Oil stockholders that earnings for the first quarter of this year totaled $702,982, equal to 69 cents a share, against $649,319, equal to 61 cents a share, in the corresponding 1937 period.

Warns of Excess Output.

"There has been an excess of production which has been dangerously high," Hallahan continued. "However, the recent action of the state railroad commission of Texas in closing down production for two days a week undoubtedly will clarify this situation shortly [the company's principal properties are in Texas]. There also has been a substantial reduction in refinery runs since curtailment of crude production and this no doubt will be reflected in reduced stocks of crude gasoline within a few weeks."

Holman told the Creole Petroleum stockholders that both earnings and production this year to date have been running at about the same levels as last year.

Venezuela Sales Gain.

Since the Mexican government expropriated foreign owned oil wells in Mexico, the Creole company has been getting some extra fuel oil business from its Venezuela properties, Holman disclosed.

G. Temple Bridgeman, vice president of the Pacific Tin corporation, told stockholders that the statistical position of tin is unfavorable to a large production this year. Costs of producing tin have risen nearly 1 cent a pound, he said, and are now about 21 cents a pound.

Operations of the W. A. Sheaffer Pen company are being conducted at a profit despite the general decline in business, the management of the company told stockholders at the annual meeting.

PROPOSE MERGER OF ALLEGHENY, LUDLUM STEEL

New York, May 17.—(AP)—Merger of the Allegheny Steel company and the Ludlum Steel company to form a $30,000,000 combine producing principally alloy steels, with chief plants in the Pittsburgh and New York state steel areas, was approved today by the boards of directors of the two companies.

The merger proposal will be submitted to stockholders, and if approved the combine will be known as Allegheny-Ludlum Steel corporation. Stockholders' meetings to act on the merger plan have been scheduled for Aug. 10.

Each stockholder of the two companies, the announcement added, will be entitled to the same number of shares "in Allegheny-Ludlum Steel corporation as he now holds in either Allegheny or Ludlum or both."

OLD DAWES BANK 90 MILLION LOAN IS CUT IN HALF

Receiver Tells Woes in Quarterly Report.

The Central Republic Trust company on May 3 owed the Reconstruction Finance corporation $44,291,546 of the original $90,000,000 loan made to the old "Dawes bank"—Central Republic Bank and Trust company—in 1932 shortly before it closed. This was disclosed by the RFC yesterday in connection with the quarterly liquidating statement of Central Republic filed by Receiver Charles H. Albers and approved in the Circuit court. Central Republic Trust company is the liquidating shell of the old bank.

Payments by the liquidators of $726,000 in the quarter ended April 30 brought the total principal repaid on the RFC loan to $45,708,454 and interest paid to $14,910,134. An additional $5,000,000 loaned by downtown Chicago banks at the time of the RFC advance was repaid previously. All receipts from liquidation, after deductions for expenses, now go to the RFC, which charges interest at 5½ per cent on the unpaid balance of the loan.

Rufus Dawes' Debt Cut.

The report showed that the indebtedness of Rufus C. Dawes, who owed the bank $172,000 when it went into receivership in November, 1934, has been reduced to $8,177 and that collateral held against the debt is worth more than the balance due. Dawes, former president of A Century of Progress, is one of the four Dawes brothers whose family investment company, Dawes Brothers, Inc., now being dissolved, last May paid more than $1,000,000 double liability assessment in full on stock holdings in the Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

Insight into the involved and difficult process of liquidating "slow collateral" was found in Albers' 200 page report, which disclosed various ills of borrowers—some "hopelessly insolvent," and others making efforts to repay their debts at considerable sacrifice.

Relative to the "Safe Driver Reward Plan" for Buyers of Automobile Insurance

The Insurance Brokers Association of Illinois, whose membership embraces the leading insurance brokers of this State, has made a careful analysis of the so-called "Safe Driver Reward Plan," now being publicized by certain insurance companies, and as representatives of the insurance buying public, whose interests we are pledged to support, the Association makes known that it cannot recommend it as the most favorable plan for the automobile insurance buyer. This is one of the facts upon which we based our decision:

A careful driver with a record for safe driving can buy Public Liability and Property Damage Insurance on a private passenger car in financially sound companies with premium credit in advance for the so-called "SAFE DRIVER REWARD" —thereby eliminating possible dispute relative to "SAFE DRIVER REWARD" refund at the end of the policy year.

Letters of a business man to his son

XLVI

DEAR SON:

Do you remember the story of King Lear, whose goodness and charity came, in the end, to be but bitter tea, with himself reviled and despised?

I provide this setting for the tragedy that is being enacted at the Nieuboldt's—with good old Frank McLeod as the innocent victim. Appointed as executor of John Nieuboldt's will when both were young men, Frank was 65 and ready to retire when John died. The estate was pretty big and pretty complicated. But Frank had to assume the manifold duties of executor. He did as well as any man could—considering his age and the limited equipment of one man to act as an investment manager in an estate vast enough to require a dozen.

The estate, of course, has shrunk—nearly one half, despite every caution and prudent action of which Frank is capable. The family has been buzzing at him like angry bees. The worry has aged him, destroyed his friendship with the Nieuboldts, and leaves him wondering at night if he had done all he could do that day to do the job well.

Frank has sacrificed the best of his declining years in a labor he did not ask for and which should not have been asked of any man. John could have employed the trust department of his bank—a skilled, responsible and trained group of men—and much trouble and grief would have been spared his family and his best friend. I hope the situation clears up—but knowing human nature, I'm afraid it won't.

Affectionately, DAD.

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 17. Stock market prices were irregular at the close today as some strength developed in the afternoon following early weakness. Losses outnumbered the gains, however. The list narrowed somewhat, there being trading in only 582 issues. Of these 221 closed lower, 196 higher, and 165 unchanged from Monday's finals.

However, both the industrial and utility averages closed higher, but the carrier group was a small fraction lower. With training again slack, total volume was 416,060 shares, compared with 395,920 in the preceding session.

The list opened heavy. Near the close of the first hour an attempt was made to rally the list, but this proved futile, and interest lessened. In the afternoon, however, prices moved up from their lows and a number of leaders were able to push into the plus column. The last hour saw the list backing and filling.

Power and light shares remained among the most active groups. Electric Power and Light, Consolidated Edison, and North American company were the three most extensively traded issues of the day and each closed up with small fractional increases.

Pivotal industrial shares managed to add fractions to 1 point. Aviation issues worked fractionally higher, paced by Douglas Aircraft. Oils were mostly lower. Leading communication issues firmed.

New York Bonds.

New York, May 17.—(AP)—Heavier offerings of rails helped give the bond market a downward slant today. Losses of fractions to about 2 points predominated in the rail division, eliminating some of the ground carrier obligations gained on the vigorous April and early May upturn.

Departing from the main trend was a sharp run-up in Hudson and Manhattan bonds after an interstate commerce commission examiner had recommended that the carrier, an underground link between Manhattan and New Jersey, be permitted a rise in passenger fares. The refunding 5s finished nearly 4 higher at 48¾ and the income 5s were up 4 to 19. Among rails, Northern Pacific 4½s of 2047 were off 3½ at 53¼, Pere Marquette 5s off 1 at 66, Southern Railway general 6s off 2 at 43½, and New York Central down nearly 2 at 53¼.

Chicago Stocks.

Although most issues declined yesterday on the Chicago exchange, two utility stocks, the volume leaders, were among those showing strength. Middle West, the most actively traded issue, advanced ⅛ to 6⅛ on sales of 1,400 shares, and Commonwealth Edison gained ½ to close at 26½, with 1,100 shares sold.

Trading in the list as a whole was dull, with a total volume of 12,000 shares against 13,000 Monday. The Tribune average of 20 stocks slipped 0.03 to 8.56.

Marshall Field dipped under a late selling wave to close ⅜ lower at 7⅜, and Borg-Warner finished off ⅛ at 20¾. Crane company common was off ⅛ to 16, and Athey Truss Wheel held unchanged at 3. Swift capital stock gained ¼ to 16½.

Bank Stocks.

First National bank stock declined $4 a share yesterday, being quoted at $173 bid, $177 asked. Continental Illinois National shares gave up $1, at $57.50 bid, $58.50 asked. Chicago Title and Trust company stock slipped back to $124 bid, $127 asked, off $4 a share.

LIQUIDATORS CUT OLD DAWES BANK DEBT $726,000

quarterly payments of $375 each due Feb. 13 and May 13 on a $6,000 note which he owes. "Such forbearance," Albers said in his report, "is based upon Mr. Litsinger's request, predicated upon the fact that his financial circumstances have become so acute that it is impossible for him to make the two payments requested to be postponed."

A reduction in quarterly instalments from $250 to $125 until Feb. 3, 1939, was granted to R. R. Reeder Jr., whose note for $2,250 is held. Reeder is a junior partner in the firm of McKinsey, Wellington & Co., a firm of business counselors, of which James O. McKinsey, former chairman of the board of Marshall Field & Co., who died last December, was senior partner. The report said:

Partnership Problem Told.

"Mr. Reeder states that until the partnership can pay to Mr. McKinsey's estate the interest which Mr. McKinsey had in capital and profits of the business, he and the other partners will be required to reduce substantially their monthly drawings from the business."

The voluntary assumption of a liability of $10,700, by Walter R. Ross, 72 years old, an attorney, was reported by Albers. Ross agreed to indorse two notes totaling that amount now owed by his wife and three sons. He offered to pay interest in full at 4 per cent instead of 6 per cent called for on the notes. No interest has been paid since 1931.

A settlement with Oliver E. McCormick, treasurer of Middle West corporation, for 50 cents on the dollar on his $7,500 note was authorized on the condition that his stockholders' liability of $5,500 be settled on a like basis. Payments are to be made quarterly over a five year period.

Original Debt Settled.

McCormick's original debt of $135,000 was settled in October, 1933, the report said, by payment of $5,000 in cash, a note for $10,000, and the sale of collateral for $43,000, leaving a net loss to the Central Republic of $77,000. The $7,500 note now being settled represents the $10,000 note less $2,500 repaid by McCormick.

Under terms of the agreement McCormick was to pay on the principal half of any income in excess of $14,000 a year, but Albers reported that Middle West had informed him that McCormick's present salary of $14,000 a year was the maximum he could expect to receive.

"It is a question," Albers said, "of either going along with McCormick under terms of the agreement or taking a chance of his carrying out a threat of resorting to bankruptcy."

The receiver authorized settlement for $6,000 cash payment of a mortgage for $7,000 due in 1934 from Henry Gloede Jr. and Anna Gloede. The mortgage is secured by property near Racine, Wis., used by Gloede as a material yard for his contracting and excavating business, and appraised at $2,250 in 1936.

Cites Legal Difficulty.

Although Gloede has a net worth estimated at more than $162,000, the difficulty of getting a deficiency judgment under Wisconsin laws made the $6,000 settlement advisable, Albers said.

One case reported by Albers revealed that the RFC had been and would continue to be occupied with the display of the paintings of old masters, including Corot, Velasquez, Rubens, and Rembrandt. The acquisitions of the art treasures resulted from the holding of stock in the Merrimac Concord Pictures corporation as collateral against a note of Robert Jackson executed with Central Republic. The company owned the paintings, which the RFC was authorized to continue to display in the Metropolitan - Reynolds galleries in New York.

BEGIN SERVING 91 SUMMONSES IN $3,300,000 SUIT

New York, May 17.—[Special.]—Process servers were busy today serving summonses on the ninety-one defendants, many prominent in financial circles, who were sued yesterday for the recovery of $3,300,000 on the ground that the amount was fraudulently diverted from the assets of the Continental Securities corporation. The investment trust is being reorganized.

The move followed the signing of an order late yesterday in federal District court in an action brought by Arthur A. Ballantine as trustee of the corporation. Ballantine charged the firm's portfolio was "looted."

Among the defendants are Paine, Webber & Co. and Granberry & Co., members of the New York Stock exchange; Prentice & Brady, a former exchange firm; Reynolds Investing company; J. Henry Schroder Banking corporation, the Chase National bank, the National City Bank of New York, and the Westinghouse Electric International company.

Westinghouse Increases Employe Bonus for May

New York, May 17.—[Special.]—Employés of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company will divide approximately $180,000 extra pay on May 31, representing a 3 per cent adjusted compensation in addition to their regular earnings for the month, A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board, announced today. A year ago the adjusted compensation in May amounted to 15 per cent of employés' regular earnings. Last month's figure was 1 per cent, the smallest disbursement since the plan was launched in May, 1936.
